A program of rare entertainment will be presented to the disabled veterans in the Veterans Hospital at Tuscaloosa on Friday, January 13th, according to an announcement made here Tuesday.

This program is being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary of Chilton county, and was arranged at a joint meeting of the Auxiliary and Legion last Monday night at the courthouse. At the meeting Monday night, there were several entertainers from over the county who gave a sample of their wares before the gathering and the selection was made from these.

On Saturday night, of this week, those who were selected by the ladies of the Legion Auxiliary for this program are asked to meet at the courthouse for a rehearsal. The public is invited to be present at this rehearsal and see the entertainers go through their parts. There will be no charges. Following is the line-up of the program to be given the disabled veterans:

COMMISSIONERS REFUSE TO AID COUNTY SCH'LS

Say Money Is Needed for The Roads And Other County Purposes And Needs

Things came to a decided point at the courthouse last Friday so far as the hope of aid from the Commissioners Court for the schools was concerned.

An appeal was also placed before the members of the City Council of Clanton for a supplemental fund to reopen the grammar school of Clanton, and this was met with defeat.

The reply from the court was a unanimous and decided "No," and all schools in the county, excepting the high schools failed to open their doors to the children last Monday morning as has been the custom in past year. Following is the statement given the News by Judge Reynolds:

"A great deal of publicity and propaganda has been put forth to the effect that the court of county commissioners of Chilton County would finance the schools of Chilton County as much as the court of county commisisoners regret to see the school finances in the deplorable condition they are in and would like to see a nine months free school in every neighborhood in view

EDITORIAL

IT ISN'T FAIR

In looking back over events for the past several years, nothing is so evident as that a great many mistakes and errors in judgment have been made by all of us. In view of the mass of material things which surround us, we can explain the depression in no way except that we have mismanaged the whole thing. We believe this reasoning will apply to a considerable extent to practically every phase of business, including state and county affairs. We thought. a few years ago, that good times would continue. We mapped out extensive programs of building roads, bridges, erecting buildings, etc. We anticipated too bright a future. This future failed to materialize. Consequently, because our judgment went wrong, things got in a jam. We find ourselves in debt and less money coming in. There must be curtailments. State and county expenses must be reduced, welfare work makes an added burden. Result: Somebody has got to take the consequences. We may pass the buck for a while, but in the end the music has to be faced. The point we're driving at is: In regard to our state and county affairs, who will it be?

It appears to us now that the school children are the ones who must bear the brunt of the mistakes of their elders. We consider this unfair. It is not the purpose here to lay the blame for our present situation. Probably we all have been in error. Officeholders, administrative officials of every kind, voters and all, but not our children, are the cause of much of our plight. The school children didn't vote for our officials, they have not misadministered our affairs, and why should they be discriminated against?

Of course we who have automobiles like good roads and fine bridges, imposing public buildings give us a thrill of pride, and the problem of looking after the unemployed must be considered. But what of our children? Schools have closed or are expecting to have to close soon.

We point with pride to our forefathers. Why? Because they gave us good roads or magnificent buildings No, because they gave us an opportunity for education, to the utmost of their ability, considering no sacrifice too great to make if it would prepare their boys and girls for a better position in life. That's why we honor and revere our parents and remember with admiration those statesmen of bygone days. That's the kind of people our children will honor when they come into manhood and the responsibilities of life. They're not saying much now, but their time is coming, and be sure they will give credit where credit is due.

Maybe, Mr. Voter or Officeholder, the administrative officials of the schools are mismanaging things and even wasting the taxpayer's money. If you think so, do all in your power to correct the evil. But if the schools are closed now, it's not these you hit, but the boys and girls of Chilton county and Alabama. We have an income from taxes, even though it may be less than usual, and quite a bit of money is being spent for salaries, materials, etc. for various activities of government. Shall we go ahead with these other activities and not run our schools at least for a term long enough to be about in proportion to our general reduction in receipts? It would seem so, from the way schools are closing, but nevertheless, we go on record now as saying it is unfair to our school children.

SOMEONE IS TO BE COMMENDED

There are some people in Clanton who are to be commended for their determination and for their spirit to go forward despite obstacles. The number of persons deserving this praise may be small and then again it may reach far. But nevertheless, those citizens of Clanton who have placed their heads together so that our grammar school will be able to open its doors next Monday morning have the spirit that has carried this country through many tight places.

There is no way of telling just how far this fine piece of work is going to reach, but judging from indications, there are many children who will be given the opportunity to finish this school term by someone's help. To the latter goes highest commendation.

If this project of conducting a private school in Clanton is properly done, there is no reason why it should not be a success. It is hoped that each community in the county can formulate some plan of reopening its school to complete this term.

Negro Trucker Counts Pennies, Figures Taxes

A Montgomery negro who said he operated an old truck for hire yesterday appeared at the Capitol to inquire about how the new truck law was going to affect him.

He was told that if he operated his truck for hire three miles beyond the city limits of Montgomery that he would have to pay a permit fee of $10, a mileage tax of one-half cent a mile for all loads where the truck and load weighed over 9,000 pounds, and carry insurance which would cost around $100 a year.

"Well, ain't that sum'pin'?" replied the negro.

"Each year I pays $23 for a tag and property tax on my truck.

"Then I pays a city license of $35.

"I burns around 10 gallons of gas a day and I pays nine cents a gallon tax on that.

"Now I has to take out a permit for $10, pay a half-cent a mile if I runs out of the police jurisdiction and pay another $100 for insurance.

"I ain't much on figures but offhand it just looks like the taxes is got me down."

Excluding the half cent a mile tax the negro's tax and insurance bill amount to $496.50 a year.

FOOD FOR WORK PLAN WORKING OUT FINE HERE

People Of Clanton Are Urged To Find Something To Offer Workers

The Community Relief, or "Food for Work" plan that was started in this county several days ago is taking on momentum, according to those who are pushing the idea over the county with letters and by other means.

Last week, letters were mailed to many citizens over the county telling them of this plan, whereby they can help. The plan is to offer farm produce for work. At the conclusion of this article will be found names of those who have already made their offer.

Anyone able to work and in need of food for their families now has an opportunity to get it without asking for charity and giving value in work for the help. The people of Clanton have not responded very well to this project and are being urged to see if they cannot find something in the way of work they can offer and pay for it in clothes or food. If you can offer something send in your name and address and what you have to offer, to the office of County Agent Stapp, or to the Welfare Worker.

Following is a list of citizens who have joined in this movement and offering thei rassistance:

Chas. Cooper, Beat 5, will hire people to pick out walnut and hickory nut kernels, will pay in potatoes, flour, corn, lard or sugar.

C. C. Klinner, Beat 15, Vermont school district, will give 1 day's work, will pay with one bushel of corn or one bushel of potatoes.

STATE HUNTERS REMINDED OF NEW SQUIRREL SEASON

Commissioner of Game and Fisheries I. T. Quinn has directed the attention of hunters in Alabama to a change in the dates governing the open season on squirrels, which was authorized at the recent extra session of the Legislature. The new law specifies that the season for hunting squirrels shall open on Oct. 1, and close Dec. 1; whereas the former statute provided that the season open Nov. 1 and close Jan. 31.

This precautionary notice has been issued to prevent hunters from violating the new law, or being misguided by the dates printed on hunting licenses for the current year. These licenses bearing the dates specified under the old law were issued to probate judges of the State last September, it is recalled, prior to the action of the Legislature, which became effective immediately. For reasons of economy, it is stated, the licenses were not reprinted, and hunters of the State are cautioned to observe the new dates.

Good Medicine

Mayor-elect Carson of Portland, Oregon, has prescribed some good medicine for public consumption. He said: "We must quit asking the government to be a wet nurse to everything.

"We must realize that the people support the government, not that the government supports the people.

"We cannot get out of debt by going farther into debt.

"We must cut the cost of government, for in that way lies the only avenue of relief at present.

"I am not an alarmist, but we must admit that none of us knows whether or not we have hit the bottom in this deflation of credits that is now going on.

"We must maintain the stability of the economic order, must preserve our institutions; if we do not, it will mean that we are breaking the last timber that holds the roof of protection over our heads.

"The protection of life, property and health are the fundamental duties of our government. All else is superfluous. We must hold to these fundamentals and turn our back upon these other intriguing things, if we are to hold what we have and build solidly for the future."

Portland is fortunate to have elected a mayor who has the courage to advocate such practical and fundamental American ideas.

New Year's Resolutions For The Pedestrian

While this is a good season for the motorist to determine that he will drive more carefully during 1933, it is also a proper time for the pedestrian to resolve that he will avoid those errors which in 1931 killed 14,500 walkers and injured nearly 300,000.

Maxwell Halsey, Traffic Engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, has drawn up a set of resolutions for the man-a-foot. They are:

CITY

I will not cross a street when traffic lights are against me, nor will I cross diagonally or between intersections.

I will not cross at intersections where there are no signals without looking to traffic.

I will not come from behind parked cars without observing what is before me.

I will not get on or off a street car without satisfying myself that my way is clear and I will not take it for granted that all motorists always obey all rules.

I will not take a chance any place against a dangerous driver.

COUNTRY

I will not forget to walk on left side of road so that I can face on-coming cars.

I will not cross at a sharp curve or just at the brow of a steep hill where I cannot see what is coming.

I will not forget to allow for a swerve of a car on rough roads, giving all vehicles plenty of room.

I will not forget when I drive how I feel when I am walking.

Follow these instructions and be a "safe walker."

Looking Southward

As, three-quarters of a century ago, our nation looked to the west for an outlet for its products, so it is today looking southward, toward Latin America.

Here is one of the vastest lands in the world—larger in area than the United States, with almost as much population. Here is a potential outlet for millions of dollars worth of American goods and, as a result, the source of employment for hundreds of thousands of American workmen.

Anything we can do to encourage better understanding between the two hemispheres is thus of economic, as well as social, importance. Latin America has suffered tremendously from the fall of raw material values, as is evidenced by revolutions, wars and frequent changes in government. Today she is passing through a period of chaos—but that she will come out of it is beyond doubt. The stuff of which great and permanent nations are made is within her borders, and that is the important thing.

Raw material prices will not always be depressed. Foreign money will once more flow into Latin America, in exchange for her coffee, tin, sugar, tobacco, petroleum, etc. Much of that money will find its way into this country, buying automobile, typewriters, farm implements and other manufactured articles she needs. When that time comes, our Latin American trade will be a vital cog in the economic wheel.

o-o-o-o

Take The Long View

In any discussion of the cooperative movement, the long-time view must be paramount.

Any farmer who expects his cooperative to immediately raise prices, open up his market and bring prosperity back with a bang, is doomed to disappointment. No human agency can do those things overnight. The strength of cooperatives is in that they are carefully and soundly laying the foundation for future prosperity—not boom prosperity, which goes as fast as it comes, but prosperity of a real and permanent nature.

In doing this, the cooperatives must ask members to make temporary sacrifices. It is occasionally possible for the non-cooperative farmer to get a slightly better price for what he sells than the cooperative farmer—but profit of that kind is dangerous indeed. It stems from a well-defined effort to wreck the cooperatives—and again put the farmer where he has only his own puny resources to lean upon.

Better prices, surer markets, improved living and working conditions for agriculture—these are what cooperation stands for. If they are worth achieving, every good cooperative is worthy of all support and loyalty from the farmers of its territory.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Folks did you know that there have been a lot of things, yes siree, quite a lot of things that have happened and occurred during the past several months that would make a bull frog sit up and take notice? How I wish I was good enough to get to the bottom of some of these things and tell you the truth. Yep, it is about our county government affairs. For a long time when I read a swell write-up in a newspaper about some public official, I thought he was the berries. But now since I'm beginning to learn a thing or two, I've come to the conclusion that some of these officials I have in mind are just razzberries, or something.

I haven't heard so much about that Economy League if Chilton County lately. I wonder what has happened or occurred to it. Seems that now is the time for them to get on their toes and see if some economy can be done around about town, or something. I read in the papers a whole lot about other counties figuring on consolidation (putting together) the offices of the county tax assessor and the tax collector. Well, that sounds reasonable enough to me, while I ain't very well versed in the matter. But it just occurs to me that most any man would like to, and in fact be willing to, work that combined office at a salary of twenty-four hundred dollars a year, which is just a big round two hundred dollars a month. That alone would save this county quite a little fortune even in a year's time. Now that's something for this great Economy League to think about. Then there is something else. They might delve a little into the money spent on the road system in this county. Yep, I'm still contending that there's something wrong there somewhere. Especially when there is a repair bill on a tractor for almost the same amount that a new tractor was bough within about thirty days of each other.

Now you Economists, I ain't trying to ride you or something. I'm just trying to show you that if you want some material to work on that there is plenty of it right here at home. A lot of fellows get all dandered up about the way the State is running things down in Montgomery, wasting money and so forth. Well, it just occurs to me that you ought to look around our own back yard for a spell and then go about a bigger job.

The Commissioners Court turned the schools down here didn't they? Well, where is all the money Judge Reynolds was boasting about having several months ago? And another thing, how many of you people know where you are getting that flour, cloth and other clothing from the relief department of the county? Do you think that the county is paying for all that stuff? Do you think that the county is paying anything for the relief work except the salary of the superintendent? Certainly the county is not paying for all that. It is being sent here through the National Red Cross, and through the efforts of some of your citizens. I heard the other day that the impression is being let out somehow that the county is furnishing all that relief for the needy people. Well, it ain't and the people ought not to be fooled about a thing like that.

Phew! I guess I just got all steamed up a bit before starting writing this column this week, but I unearthed enough Monday of this week to get most anybody all steamed up about the public money. In fact I uncovered some things that make me surprised about some way some fellows have been fooling the people. Now that I've popped off a bit, I 'spect I better quiet down for a spell.

How are all you fellows out in the county getting on these days anyhow. Well, I know there ain't much use asking. I know it is a hard matter and that most of you are finding it mighty hard to make ends meet. I'm doing the same, thank you. Looks like every time I get the ends almost to meet, somebody comes along and moves one of 'em.

Now here comes one of my fellow sufferers speaking about this word "Breeches." Breeches may be spelled b-r-i-t-c-h-e-s and in fact britches may be spelled b-r-e-e-c-h-e-s. Either way it means pants, according to Mr. Webster. But at the same time pants means something about the going and coming of one's breath. Britches (or breeches) maybe pants and vice versa, or something. Then there you have the meaning of the word "trousers" and "jeans." Now my fellow sufferer, if you can get any sense out of all that I'd like to be enlightened or something. Right now, I'm in the mood to call 'em britches or breeches. Frankly it make very little differ bittence to me. But if it was back in the good old days of 1927 and 1928, I'd much prefer to call them "trousers." You see times and circumstances alter conditions or vice versa and at the same time alter trousers to a certain extent. Therefore now under present existing and prevailing conditions, "trousers" have descended to "britches" and tarried very little at "pants".

I've been having a lot of entertaining hours from that new feature that the Ed has in the News each week headed "Recreational Exercises." You should get in with that thing and learn a thing or two or three about history and geography. I think there are some arithmetic problems coming in it soon.

Don't know whether you have noticed it or not, but this editorial page has changed positions. It changed last week and is also changed this week. It was over on page four. How do you like it or something, or does it make any differ bittence to you or no.

* * *

Dr. Gragg pulled stakes the other day for a little vacation, and I'm telling you that man needed a vacation. He was just about worked down. "Doc" is a good old scout and I don't like to see him get all whipped down. Why, the last few weeks, he went and went and went until he almost couldn't go any more. I hope he enjoys his little rest while he is away, because when Dr. Gragg is feeling good, he is a great fellow. And he ain't so bad when he is not feeling so good.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Far ahead on a long stretch of paved road I saw a truck traveling in the same direction of my car. Between my car and the truck ahead the road was filled with running, squealing pigs. After much horn blowing and slow running I finally passed the truck. Then I saw why it was being pursued by the squealing pigs. The truck was loaded with peanuts and the vibration from the engine and the road was sifting the peanuts over the edge of the body, and the pigs were after the food that fell into the road. They were being tolled right into the city. That reminded me of so many young people as they are pursuing the truck of pleasure. A small amount of real joy is sifting over into the path of our young life, and they follow with great noise the little bait that comes before them. As the pigs followed the truck to the butcher's pen, so our young people often follow the ways of pleasure to their eternal ruin.

I was carefully looking through the card index of the membership of my church. I came to one card which carried this notation by a former pastor, "To find this party go beyond the cemetery and then take the first left-hand road. The house is the first on the left-hand side." Then I thought, "Wonder if that member is dead and that is the direction to where he lives forever." I have not yet located the member, but I am certain that the way to find many of those who have been enlisted on church registers is to travel just as I was directed by that card, "Go beyond the cemetery and take the first left-hand road, and then find them on the left-hand side." When you cross the river and your friends start out to find you, what directions are you leaving behind? May it be said of you, "Go beyond the cemetery and take the first right-hand road, and you will find the party located in the first house on the right hand side."

A widely advertised book came to my desk, and with anxious thoughts I started to read. The first chapter of the book was great. Anxiously I pressed into the second, but it was not so good. The third chapter was very ordinary, and long before I had half completed the volume, the thought, as well as the inspiration of the book had declined until I threw it aside as rubbish. I was in a certain town as pastor, along came a man who had a wide reputation and took a responsible place in the city. The first month he was in glory, the second month he was not so prominent. In less than a year he had played out and was doing odd jobs as he could find them. It is not how you start off the new year that counts. It is not my purpose to discredit a good start, but it is my purpose to emphasize the idea of of ever increasing momentum and power over the last chapter. Make the last chapter of the book the best. Make the last month of the year the best. Make the last year of your life the great climax. Just anybody can play out, but it takes a real man to build over the past until the end is reached.

Uncle Wash was talking over the secrets of his family with his pastor. He said, "Parson, I am shamed of my boy. I do believe that he is going to be a gambler. I sho do dislike a gambler." He was asked why he hated a gambler so much. Then he replied with negro philosophy, "Parson, I do not specially dislike a gambler. I dislike him just like I dislike a bed bug. It is de way he makes his living dat hurts me." Any man who gambles is lowered into the comradeship of the bed bug. He makes his living by prowling around and sucking the blood of other men. Gamblers are the "Bed Bugs" of human society. May I not venture to say that just now we need a thorough house cleaning in order to get rid of these blood suckers.

I stood on the shore of Saint Andrews Bay and watched a crew of fishermen as they pulled in their net. They were a downcast bunch of men. They had paddled up and down the bay all night and no fish had been caught. Just as they had everything loaded and ready to go home, one of the men noticed a ripple in the water and with excitement he called to the other men to look. Sure enough, there was a great school of mullet going by. They hurried to throw out their net, but before it could be cast, the fish had gone. Then they drug it in again, lamenting that they had quit fishing too soon. Just as they had quit, their opportunity for a great haul had come. The crew of men who quits too soon will have no fish to sell. Jesus was standing on the shore and the discouraged apostles were hauling in their nets after a fruitless night of fishing. He commanded that they try again and they did. It was the last effort that caught the fish. "If you do not first succeed, try again." It is not the quitter who comes home with the fish. The man who tumbles down before he reaches the top of the hill will never know what it is to coast down the grade on the other side. If fish are not biting, keep fishing. If the hill is still steep, keep climbing. If you have no game in your bag, keep hunting. If you quit it is then that the opportunity of life will go by.

Letters To The Editor

S. Y. DORMINEY DISCUSSES VARIOUS MATTERS

Jemison, Ala., Route 1.
Editor, Chilton County News:

Since you put on your prize contest I am beginning to learn that your paper is now going into practically every nook and corner in this county, and as several have asked me to keep writing, thought I would let you hear from me again this week.

Now, Mr. Editor, I don't believe you care so much who is saying a thing as you do what he is saying, and that you don't care don't care so much how a fellow tells anything as you do what he is trying to tell.

I don't know what I'll write about this week. How many of you read Mr. A. P. Vinson's letter? I did. Will say it was a good letter all right, but. I just couldn't keep from trying to read between the lines. How many of you read Mr. J. E. Cobb's letter? Will say I read his letter over very carefully. I tried to ponder well everything he had to say, and after summing everything up, and boiling everything down, believe he is about 100 per cent right. I really like to see anyone come out and express themselves on a subject when they think they are right. I also read Mr. J. E. Easterling's letter. He brought out several good points, and was opposed to this loan.

And then there was W. A. Reynold's letter. He spoke of a lot of things that are no doubt damaging us, but he left out one of the most vital things of all in my opinion and that is "our convict department." I would to God and man I had the facts about this thing. I assure you I would use all the words in my vocabulary and all I could borrow to explain everything to you.

Sidney W. Smyer of the Economy League tells us the convicts are being treated too well. I have talked with some that have been down there and not one of them wants to go back, and I'm pretty sure if Mr. Smyer will go and stay awhile he too will not want to go back.

Now, school teachers, patrons, home owners and everybody else, listen to me, don't blame Mr. Miller with everything. He simply can't do anything without money. Sometimes I wish he would step out and let some of these smart know alls get in and try being Governor without plenty of money.

You know when all our factories, mines and plants were running full blast everybody working, with good markets for lumber, cotton and other farm products, most everybody had money, so, hence, plenty of money flowing into our State treasury. Now, it is drained and not much flowing in. I don't have any idea how many prisoners are captured in all these counties each year and put in our prisons, but, I'm sure it will run way up into the thousands. You see, they can't pay off now like they used to, hence, a big expense to our state. I understand 76 per cent of all these prisoners are prohibition violators only. In other words, 3 out of 4, if you please, are otherwise good citizens. I further understand that it costs our state from 25 to as high as 50 dollars per month to take care of these prisoners. Are you advocating or supporting this system? If you are don't blame anybody if your school closes, or if you see people losing their homes. Again I repeat this is a very costly warfare going on in this country of ours, and that it is dragging down the individual, with our schools, our homes, our churches, and also our state, and our government. So many of our people looking one way and going another, voting dry and drinking wet, acting the hypocrite, and "Woe be unto the hypocrites." I would like to comment some on Dr. V. J. Gragg's letter, but space will not permit. However, I will say this, I find his letters both educational and instructive, also, full of good information.

Mr. Editor, are you thinking that just two months from now that Mr. Roosevelt and 80 some odd new members will move into the White House? Well we will just wait and see what happens.

Yours very truiy,
S. Y. DORMINEY.

The business man who is not interested in advertising is usually doing a poor business.

Now is the time that your city needs advertising more than ever before.

Progressive merchants get the business of progressive people by reaching them through newspaper advertising.

You should have faith in your home city and show your faith by both words and actions.

Nearly one hundred thousand lamps were sold recently in the territory served by the Louisville Gas & Electric Company in the First Annual Dealers Cooperative Lamp Campaign. In this campaign 157 retail dealers of lamps participated, each doing their own selling and collecting. Much newspaper advertising was used in this campaign, but a lot of credit must go to the Louisville Gas & Electric Company for planning the campaign and bringing it to such a successful conclusion. This company realizes that quality goods, well worked out sales plans, coupled with newspaper advertising will always bring good results. The same methods can be used by any line of business to increase sales. Such plans are bound to meet with success, even in times of depression.

There is no easier way to save money than by reading the advertisements in this newspaper and then buying where the best buys are.

Citizens of the home city are just like one big family and they should always think of the home town first.

You always know what you get when you buy advertised products.

REAL ACCIDENTS FEW

What are generally classed as accidents are in most cases not accidents at all, but merely the results of pure carelessness or recklessness, according to a noted surgeon, who declares that really unpreventable accidents are very few.

The greater number of accidents are caused by failure to keep in mind the consequences of a slight mistake in judgment, or in "taking a chance" even when the danger is realized.

Of 33,000 deaths in the United States through automobile accidents each year it is safe to say that 90 per cent of them are due to someone's disregard of ordinary safety precautions. The worst feature of this is that a reckless driver not only endangers himself but also trifles with the lives of others.

In accidents due to fire the same principle holds good. Everyone knows how easily the careless throwing of a lighted match may start a disastrous fire, yet millions of lighted matches, cigar and cigarette stubs are cast aside with little or no caution. Practically every fire that occurs is caused by stupid carelessness.

Accidents do happen, of course, under circumstances wherein no one appears to be at fault, but these are in the minority. Generally accidents are caused by ignorance, carelessness or wanton disregard of consequences.

THE SUCKER LIST

Methodical dealers and salesmen keep a list of prospective customers upon whom they bring to bear from time to time their most persuasive selling arguments. The plan has been proved of value, as better results are obtained through intensive soliciting of a selected list of prospects than through random efforts.

But it is not only those engaged in legitimate business who thus seek to simplify their salesmanship by concentrating upon those most likely to buy. Promoters and vendors of wildcat stocks also select their prospective victims with extreme care, although many of their lists run to large figures.

President Auchincloss of the National Better Business Bureau recently declared that one New York promoter has a list of some 600,000 names of persons who are known to be easy victims for swindling schemers. Such a compilation of names is known as a "sucker list." Advertising literature holding out the most glowing opportunities for profitable investments is sent regularly to those who have been found gullible enough to bite at such bait. A good sucker list is a veritable gold mine for the unscrupulous promoter.

If one receives frequent letters or circulars offering amazing inducements to purchase oil, mining or other stocks he may be sure that he is listed among the "easy marks," whose credulity yields millions of dollars to swindlers every year.

How Cardui
Helps Women

"Mal-nutrition" means that your body is not getting enough to keep it up, so that what it has to do is not done well. You may not be eating enough to keep up the work of the body, or there may be something wrong that keeps you from getting full value from the food you eat.

Because of mal-nutrition, some women have aches and pains every month. Such pains should not be neglected.

Take Cardui to give you a better appetite, to give you more strength from the food you eat — to build up and increase your feeling of well-being. Aches and pains go away as you build up with the help of Cardui.

Sanders Urges Citizens To Lend Their Help Toward Giving Work for Food and Clothing

Mr. W. L. Sanders, member of the county board of education, and who has been instrumental in inaugurating a community relief plan in the county, urges the people to give their help toward this project.

So far this plan is working out, and many citizens over the county have sent in their statements. A letter from Mr. Sanders follows:

"Since I have been connected with relief work I have met several difficult problems which caused me to seriously consider this question.

"I find that the person who has a great deal of pride and self respect will allow himself and family to suffer before they will eat bread that is made from the Red Cross flour.

"They feel that it's right to work for themselves and family. Therefore, they will suffer and endure cold and hunger before they will beg. This class of people has no desire to be dependent upon others, but rather be self-sustaining if possible. On the other hand, there is another class of people that would sit down without the sting of pride or self respect and continuously eat from the table of charity.

"Among this type of people there are big, robust, able bodied men that will never work as long as they are fed by charitable institutions.

"Charity is all right and should exist everywhere, but not to the extent that it is dangerous. The old-aged and the afflicted who are not able to care for themselves should be cared for by the charitable institutions, but the person that is able to work should be given a job that he might care for himself and family.

"Many will say, I have no job to offer. So hath the rich man said, he has no work to be done, but still wants all the money he can get to hoard up and make times harder. Now, if the people of Chilton county want better times among themselves, they should begin to practice what they preach and not hoard up the necessities of life from the suffering women and children as the millionaires have done.

"There are more people in a destitute condition than some would think. There are also more bums than you would imagine. This being true it's hard for anyone to intelligently administer direct relief without having some work to offer.

"I trust that you will not be negligent in filling out the blanks sent to the many citizens by the County Agent. Asking that you give him your best cooperation, I remain,

Yours very truly,
W. L. SANDERS."

LEGISLATIVE RUBBISH

One of the crying needs of the present day is the "searching out and repealing of the useless, unenforceable and unnecessary legislative rubbish," according to M. J. Hickey, secretary of the National Industrial Council.

At a conference held in New York, the Council pledged itself to labor for the simplification and codification of really useful and necessary laws, which are now buried or obscured throughout our law books by a mass of obsolete or unnecessary enactments.

Mr. Hickey declared that there are now about 2,500,000 separately enacted laws and ordinances on the books of the various states. More than 10,000 more will be enacted during 1933.

It is his belief, and most citizens will concur in his view, that too many of our lawmakers conceive it to be their duty to make misdemeanors out of trivial actions, putting absurd restrictions on freedom, burdening innocent people with undeserved punishments and otherwise loading the state books with unnecessary laws

When we reflect that most of these useless laws not only harass the public but cost them handsomely in one way and another, it must be the inevitable conclusion that Mr. Hickey's point is well taken.

'500' INSTITUTE BEGINS A STUDY STATE FINANCES

Public Accountant Begins Audit Under Direction Of Birmingham Committee

By Joseph R. McCoy
In Montgomery Advertiser

J. D. P. Arnold, Birmingham certified public accountant, accompanied by three assistants arrived here yesterday morning and proceeding at once to the Capitol, began a study on behalf of the "Committee of 500," of the financial affairs and situation of the State. Mr. Arnold is an associate of H. Hopkinson Smith, of Birmingham, also widely known certified public accountant, who was commissioned by the executive committee of the "Committee of 500" to direct the study.

Following a conference with Comptroller J. H. Hard, Jr., it was stated by Mr. Arnold that most of the work of assembling the data desired by the committee would be conducted in Montgomery, provided certain information to be obtained is available here. It developed, however, that it will be necessary for those conducting the study to visit Auburn, the University, and Alabama College, also the Insane Hospitals, the Alabama Boys' Industrial School, and several other institutions.

During the conference between Mr. Arnold and Mr. Hard, the latter assured the representative of the committee that all records of his office were open to him at any time for the obtaining of any information desired. He also assured Mr. Arnold that if he wished it, he would write a letter to the head of any institution he or his assistants wished to visit, requesting that every courtesy and cooperation be extended them and that they be permitted to see any and all records they may wish. One such letter was written to Dr. O. C. Carmichael, president of Alabama College, yesterday afternoon, it is understood.

The first work assigned by Mr. Arnold to his assistants was the checking of State payrolls of the present administration against those of the last two preceding administrations, for the purposes of comparison. Other assistants will be here today, Mr. Arnold said, and as many more will be put to work as are needed. He was indefinite as to how long the task will take, but indicated it probably will be completed within several weeks.

According to Mr. Arnold, the study now underway is more in the nature of a survey than an audit, and will be extensive enough to show the trend of affairs as to all angles of the State's finances.

When the survey is completed, a report with comment and recommendations will be made to the whole committee, and on this report will be based a program which it is announced, will be submitted to the public, the Governor and the Legislature.

The report is to contain information as to the State's exact financial condition; comparison of State payrolls now with former years; findings of investigation of the costs of the convict department; consideration of the desirability of attempting to recapture for the State the tax of one-cent a gallon on gasoline, which reverted to the counties on last Oct. 1; consideration of whether or not capital expenditures should be suspended during the existing emergency.

There was considerable comment Tuesday at the Statehouse, upon the fact that the Committee of 500 chose to direct its financial survey, the same certified public accountants, who made the official audit of the State's financial affairs under appointment by Gov. Miller, namely, F. Hopkinson Smith, whose report to the Governor showed a State deficit of only slightly less than the $20,000,000 which was the estimate made by former Chief Examiner of Accounts Walter K. Smith, of Mobile, and later by Comptroller Hard.

Millions View The New 1933 Model Chevrolets

Upwards of 4,000,000 people visited Chevrolet dealer showrooms during the first day's display of new 1933 models, and many retail orders were added during the day to the thousands on hand prior to the showing, H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager, states. He said it was the most successful announcement, both as to attendance and orders taken, that his company had experienced since 1929.

Hundreds of telegrams from dealers reporting attendance and sales were on Mr. Klingler's desk the morning after the showing. Attendance reports ranged from several score at small associate dealer points to more than 12,000 in the retail store, in the General Motors building, Detroit, where the largest individual showroom crowd was counted. Mr. Klingler said his estimate of 4,000,000 represented an average of 400 per dealer, which he considered a minimum.

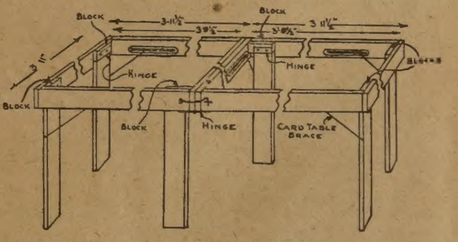
This exceeds any previous estimate of first-day crowds at Chevrolet dealerships, and many reported more public interest, larger crowds and more present retail orders on hand than at any time in their years in business. Mr. Klingler said the outlook is for a 25 per cent increase in his company's sales next year over 1932, when Chevrolet is again leading the industry, with prospects for the full year of about 350,000 new car registrations.

The high first day attendance was achieved despite generally adverse weather conditions throughout most of the country, ranging from extreme cold and blizzards in Eastern and Central Western sections to unseasonal sleet and snow in the central Siuth. Utica, N. Y., reported five degrees below zero, yet more than 4,000 showroom visitors and twenty orders taken.

A New York City dealer reported fourteen first-day orders, doubling last year's experience. From Yonkers, N. Y.: "On the first day with our 1932 models we got one retail order. This year on the corresponding day we got nine."

Many smaller cities reported surprising attendance and orders. The Mason City, Ia., dealer said "On December 1 we did not have one new order. Up to closing Saturday we had 42." Aurora, Mo., reported 1,500 people and twenty orders. Shawnee, Okla., had over 1000 people, Tallahassee, Fla., had 2,000, and Waycross Ga., reported six orders.

How to Make It



THE tennis table shown here can be easily made by anyone handy with tools. Because it is somewhat smaller than the regulation table it does not require as much room and when not in use it can be folded compactly and stored in a closet.

The materials required are 4 pieces of soft wood 1 in. x 4 in. x 3 ft. 9½ in. for sides of frames; 4 pieces 1 in. x 4 in. x 3 ft. 11 in. for ends of frames; 8 blocks 1 in. x 3 in. x 5 in. for corner braces; 6 pieces 1 in. x 4 in. x 2 ft. 2¾ in. for legs; 1 piece quarter-inch pressed wood 4 x 8 ft.; 2 hinges ⅞ in. x 3 in. on each flange; six hinges 1 in. x 4 in.; six card table braces or Bessemer rods, which may be had at a hardware store; two three-inch screen door hooks and screw eyes; and a few screws.

Make two frames 3 ft. 11 in. by 3 ft. 11½ in. each by letting the longer pieces overlap the ends of the shorter pieces at the corners. Strengthen two corners in each frame with blocks as shown, making the edges flush with the top edge of the frame. Hinge each corner leg to the bottom of the block or corner brace, allowing half an inch between the inside of the frame and the edge of the leg for the free passage of the Bessemer rods. Hinge the two middle legs in the same way so that one folds towards one side of the table and the other toward the other side. Attach the Bessemer rods as on a card table.

Join the two frames together on their shorter sides by placing the larger hinges at the bottom so that one frame can fold against the other. There remains now only the top. Pressed wood is used because it will not buckle or warp. Have your lumber dealer saw it in two pieces 4 ft. x 4 ft., cautioning him to keep the edges true. Screw one piece to each frame, letting it extend one-half inch beyond the frame on all sides except where the two frames are joined. The screws may be counter-sunk and covered with plastic wood. When the table is set up it is held rigid by a hook on either side.

If desired, the legs can be tapered to 1 x 3 inches at the bottom.

"Igloo" Is A Drama Of Stone Age Peoples

The world's last surviving representatives of the stone age are the Eskimos.

These strange people of the frozen North have preserved their language almost unchanged since the dawn of civilization, because their life is in the main still that of the stone-age inhabitants of Europe. It is thought by scientists that the Eskimos, most of whom are found in Alaska, originally came across the narrow Bering Sea from Asia, as they are Mongolian in type, and members of their race still exist in small groups on the Asiatic coast.

The name of Eskimos was originally applied to the Northern Indians by the Algonquin tribe, and means "eaters of raw flesh." This well describes this half-savage race, since much of their exclusive meat diet, including whale, walrus, polar bear and seal, is eaten without cooking. They live in small family or tribal groups, without chiefs, and devote their lives entirely to hunting and fishing, constantly battling with the elements in the icebound wastes of the Arctic in order to live. In stature the Eskimos are almost invariably short, with long heads, high cheek bones and straight eyes.

"Igloo," a Universal motion picture drama recently filmed in and about a storm-swept village of ice igloos on Point Barrow, Alaska, and said to be the most remarkable picture ever produced in the Arctic, comes to the Wadesonian Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, January 10 and 11, telling a thrilling and intimate story of the lives of these strange people. "Igloo" was made by Ewing Scott, who spent seven months in the village, and who obtained for the leading role in the picture a stalwart young Eskimo named Chee-Ak, standing more than six feet in height, and regarded by his fellow as a veritable giant.

Collier Plays Sweetheart Role To Miss Hopkins

William Collier. Jr., one of the screen's most popular young dramatic actors, plays a leading role opposite Miriam Hopkins and Jack Oakie in Paramount's "Dancers in the Dark" which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre Saturday and Monday, January 7 and 9.

Collier's role is that of a musician playing in an orchestra headed by Oakie. Miss Hopkins is a taxi dancer in the dance hall where they play.

"Dancers in the Dark" marks Collier's first Paramount appearance since "A Night of Mystery," a silent film with Adolphe Menjou and Evelyn Brent. He has been unusually busy the past year, having given outstanding performances in "Street Scene," "Little Caesar," "Cimarron," "Politics," "The Penthouse Murder," and "Flop House."

RUMANIAN WAR LOSS

When we think of the World War, we instinctively think of the losses of men and property sustained by France and Belgium. Perhaps no one thinks of the part played by little Rumania.

But consider this: While French deaths were 16 per cent of troops engaged and Belgian deaths were only a trifle over 5 per cent, Rumanian losses showed the tragic and pitiful total of 45 per of fatalities.

Rumania had under arms 750,000 men, of whom 335,706 were killed or died of disease, while 120,000 more were wounded, making her total casualties of dead and wounded a fraction over 60 per cent.

In striking contrast is the record of the United States, with only one and one-half per cent of dead and less than four and one-half per cent of wounded, the lowest of any nation engaged in the war.

The total number of United States troops mobilized was less than 12 per cent of the total engaged on the side of the allies and of these less than one-half ever reached the battlefields.

Yet, it can not be denied that the timely arrival of the American troops turned the tide against the Central Powers and our relatively small force, combined with the tremendous moral effect of our entry into the war was the deciding factor in the greatest struggle the world has ever seen.

Commissioners Refuse To Aid Schools Here

of the unusual and urgent demands on the court of county commissioners are not able to advance any substantial amount of funds for the relief of the school situation. The total sum in the county treasurer today is $14,316.46 which includes special fiduciary funds which cannot be used except for the purposes collected and the funds out of which schools may be financed amounts to considerably less than $12,000.00 and this is needed at this time for road and other county purposes.

"The court of county commissioners feels that the schools are not their direct responsibility but that the health, convenience, and public necessities of the citizens of the county should have preference in the allotment of the funds disbursed by the court of the county commissioners.

"It be and is hereby ordered and agreed by the court that the court will not appropriate any money for the aid of the public schools in the county at present."

The Special Session And Alabama Schools

The call by Governor Miller of an extraordinary session of the Legislature on January 31 gives a prominent place to the plight of our public schools, and focuses anew the attention of the State on the practical breakdown of our public school system.

In considering the school situation it should be understood definitely that it involves two distinct and separate problems, each of vital importance to public education.

The first problem is to get enough money to pay the new appropriations for education — very much reduced though they are—which were authorized by the recent special session of the Legislature. The second is to fund the state debt of $20,000,000, three-fourths of which is for education.

A solution of the first problem must be found if our schools are to operate during the next few years on the reduced appropriations recently set up. A solution of the second problem is necessary if the State is to pay its just debt for services rendered and for capital outlay spent for property now owned by the State.

Up to October 1, last, the Legislature appropriated annually approximately $6,716,000 for education. This does not include the constitutional funds which total $3,729,000. At the recent special session of the Legislature these statutory appropriations were reduced to approximately $5,643,000. Without additional revenue for schools these reductions will be further increased by the operation of the Budget and Finance Control Act which authorizes the Governor to lower them to the level of revenue available for their payment.

According to the estimated revenue for the current year recently announced by Comptroller Hard, and as a possible result of the operation of the Budget and Finance Control Act, the money available for education will lack about $1,600,000 of being enough to pay the reduced appropriations for education. This means that though the state should receive every cent anticipated for education during the current year, the treasury will lack approximately $1,600,000 of having enough money to meet its obligations to schools.

As has been frequently stated, the state's debt for education at the present time approximates $15,500,000. Other debts added to this amount yield a total indebtedness of about $20,000,000. Warrants for this amount, some of which have been outstanding for nearly two years, are now in the hands of teachers, bankers, and business men throughout the state.

Since it is generally agreed that the state cannot afford to repudiate this debt, the finding of the indebtedness will be a problem of major importance for the legislators when they convene on January 31. However, it is to be understood that the payment of the debt will not in itself enable Alabama to operate its schools.

ROOSEVELT PLANS VISIT TO ALABAMA

Dinner With Gov. Miller Is Also On Schedule Of Next President

Hyde Park, N. Y., Jan. 1—Free from the duties of New York governor, Franklin D. Roosevelt found himself Sunday already deep in the engrossing problems of national government which he must direct after March 4.

He announced a plan to visit the gigantic Muscle Shoals, Ala., power and nitrate plant over which a contest has been waged in Congress between the advocates of government ownership and private operation since this war time property of the nation became inactive at the conclusion of hostilities in 1918.

Indicative of his attitude, Mr. Roosevelt dispatched an invitation to the veteran Senator Norris, Nebraska Republican Independent, who has led the fight for government control, to accompany him on the visit to be made late this month.

To a more immediate and pressing problem—the balancing of the national budget by this session of Congress—the president-elect will give his attention at a conference with Democratic congressional leaders in finance at his New York City home on Thursday night.

New Tax Plan

There is every indication that the congressional chieftains will bring to Mr. Roosevelt a new plan for raising additional taxes which now appear necessary. The fact that the ranking members of the Senate and House interstate commerce committees are attending the parley has led to the speculation that some levy dealing with interstate shipments is under consideration.

No sooner was he free from the office of governor late Saturday night the president - elect was giving his thoughts to organization of a new national government by March 4.

But this day of the new year that means so much to him was spent in the absolute seclusion of the Roosevelt home here. He arrived at Hyde Park with Mrs. Roosevelt from Albany at 1 a.m. Sunday by automobile. Asleep in the rear seat, he passed through Hudson as the old year died at midnight.

Cruise Is Planned

Plans that will carry him through the middle of February were announced Sunday by him through Marvin McIntyre, his secretary. They call for continued conferences with congressional leaders, a trip to Warm Springs, Ga., beginning Jan. 19 and finally a yachting cruise in Southern waters on which he will retire completely from public men and the public.

Newspaper men have been asked to refrain from following the yacht, which will probably be one owned by Vincent Astor, distant relative. Mr. Roosevelt is considering sending his own press reports from the yacht.

The president-elect will go to Muscle Shoals on his way to Warm Springs, spending part of Saturday, Jan. 21, at the property. He will go thence to Montgomery, Ala., to have dinner with Gov. B. M. Miller that night, arriving at his Georgia home the following day for a two-week visit.

On Friday, Jan. 20, he will confer in Washington with party members of Congress. These conferences will be continued throughout his stay in New York City, also before he starts southward.

While giving immediate attention to Muscle Shoals and the power issue, it is unlikely that this will be brought forward until the new congress meets. President Hoover has once vetoed the Norris bill for government control.

Alabama Senators Invited

Rooseevlt also has invited Senators Black and Bankheaed, of Alabama; Senators Hull and McKellar, of Tennessee; Representative Hill, of Alabama, and Frank McNinch, member of the Federal Power Commission, to accompany him on the inspection of the Muscle Shoals property.

In between times in the next two months the president-elect will be selecting his cabinet. If he has made any choices other than James A. Farley, his campaign manager, as postmaster general, it is unknown to his intimates.

TO MEET WITH COMMISSIONERS HERE SATURDAY

Want Immediate Work Provided On County Roads For Tax Payments

Considerable stress is being placed on a meeting that is to be called at the courthouse next Saturday, according to Mr. W. L. Sanders, who is doing some extensive and worthwhile work for those families in the county who need help. Following is a form of petition that is being circulated for signatures this week, which explains the meeting Saturday:

"We the undersigned citizens of Chilton County call upon the taxpayers of the county to meet with us in a meeting before the Commissioners Court next Saturday, January 14th. The purpose of this meeting being two-fold. First, we wish to discuss the possibility of the Commissioners providing immediate work on the public roads for those unable to pay the taxes on their homes. We ask all that would like to work out their taxees on the public roads, and cannot pay them otherwise, to be at this meeting.

"We also expect to try to work out some plan by which our schools can be kept open. We hope that the children of the unfortunate parents will not have to sit down and grow up in ignorance, because they have not the price pay their way into the private schools. Every parent interested in his or her children have a special invitation to this meeting. We hope that everybody will come with open mind ready to fall in line and do everything reasonable to help keep the homes from being sold and the schools from being closed."

Large Still Was Found Last Tuesday

A raid last Tuesday afternoon by the sheriff and deputies brought in a 120-gallon still outfit and caused 360 gallons of beer to be destroyed in this county. The still was in operation, with four men making the run.

Two of the men escaped and the other two were arrested. The still was located in Stumps Hills, about two miles north of Smith schoolhouse. This is one of the largest raids made by the sheriff and forces in sometime. Those taking part were Sheriff Gillespie, Deputies Louis and James Gillespie and Loss Robinson.

Listed among other arrests during the past week included one for grand larceny, two for manufacturing liquor, one for obtaining money through false pretense, three for violating the prohibition law one of which was also charged with driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Services At Samaria Church Next Sunday

There will be services at the Samaria Baptist church next Sunday, according to an announcement from the Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor.

Rev. Jones announces as his subject for the morning services, "Let's Start Over Again." The evening topic will be "Some Things I Would Like To Be and Do in the Year 1933."

The morning services open with Sunday School at ten o'clock and preaching at eleven o'clock. Evening services at seven o'clock. This is the first service in the new year at Samaria and Rev. Jones stated he hoped that a good attendance will be seen.

PRIVATE SCH'LS WILL CONTINUE COMMITTEESAYS

Local High School Will Continue As Private School Is Reported

The Clanton elementary school was re-opened Monday morning as a private school, and about one-third of the former enrollment has matriculated, according to a statement by Prof. I. J. Quinn, principal. Mr. Quinn also stated that plans are being formulated whereby pupils who are unable to pay the three-dollar per month fee may be enrolled. Although only about eighty pupils attended Monday, Mr. Quinn declared that many others have expressed their intention of patronizing the school and giving it their support.

It was definitely decided at a recent meeting of the county commissioners that no funds from the county treasury will be available to the schools in the county. However, Dr. S. J. Ezell, chairman of the schools committee, said that both the Chilton county high and elementary schools will be continued the full term as private schools if no funds are available from any other source.

A private school for the elementary grades is being conducted at Verbena by the Rev. A. C. Duggar, pastor of the Verbena Baptist church, and his wife. An enrollment of near forty has been reported.

Annual Ladies Night Held Last Thursday With Fine Program

Last Thursday night one of the most brilliant affairs held in Clanton in some time, took place in the dining room of the Exchange Hotel, when the Kiwanis Club of Clanton held its annual "Ladies Night" and installation of new officers.

There were approximately one hundred present at this affair. Guests included wives and friends of members of the club, speakers from out of town and several entertainers from Selma. All together, it made a most enjoyable occasion. Among the out-of-town guests were District Governor Lewis of Selma, Ed Norton and Dean Gilbert of the Birmingham club and Mr. Salter of Selma. The latter held a most attentive audience as he told of a vagabonding trip through many foreign countries. Several young ladies from Selma rendered numbers on the program.

In a most impressive manner Kiwanian John Hollis, who served as president of the local club during 1932, presented the president's button and gavel to Mack Wyatt, who was elected to serve as president during 1933. In turn Mack Wyatt presented John with the past-president's button of Kiwanis. Mr. Wyatt in making his acceptance speech paid tribute to Kiwanians John Hollis, Earl Thomas and Sam Powers for their faithfulness to the club. These three live several miles from Clanton.

The program which lasted for two hours was kept moving in the best of style by Mack Wyatt who acted as toastmaster.

Outlook Meeting For Farmers To Be Held

County Agent Calls For County-Wide Meeting At Court House Saturday, January 17th, To Discuss Plans For Better 1933 Work

County Agent Stapp announces that an outlook meeting will be held at the Court House in Clanton Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, January 17th. Mr. Stapp further states that this meeting will be similar to the two meetings held in January of the past two years in that representatives from Washington and Auburn will be here to present the facts pertaining to agricultural conditions for the next twelve months.

Last year the court house was filled to capacity and a second meeting was held for those who did not get in the court room for the first meeting. Mr. Stapp states that under present conditions there should be a thousand to fifteen hundred farmers and other business men interested in the current facts and attend this meeting on the 17th.

Mr. Stapp states that the meeting on the 17th will be little different from the meetings he is holding at present and that those who are attending his meetings should make an effort to attend the meeting at the Court House on the 17th.

MANY PEOPLE TRAVEL MANY MILES TO HONOR REV. NELSON, 100TH BIRTHDAY

Aged And Esteemed Minister Thrills Guests With Stories of Incidents in His Life

Editor's Note: The News is indebted to Mrs. W. G. Griffin, a granddaughter of the Rev. Nelson, for the following splendid account of this century celebration.

It was a bright sunny morning on January 4, 1933, that many happy people with lunch baskets filled and numbers of cars were loaded with gay voices, winding their way through the plains and hills of Alabama and Florida to the country cottage of an aged Baptist minister. Before many hours the oak grove was filled with cars of friends and relatives from many directions which kept coming all day.

The members of the household were stirring about the place, even busier than they had been the days before, to receive the birthday guests that were to fill the porch and lawn. It was indeed to be a day of many days, for not many live to be a hundred. In the center of the big outdoor table, on the southern side of the cottage, the birthday cake with a hundred candles, glistened in the warm sun. Soon the big table seemed to moan under the load of delicious pies, cakes and meats from many baskets. The outdoor spread was bountiful with the southern sun warm and pleasant. Friends and relatives were delighted to have Rev. Martin offer birthday thanks. After lunch pictures were made of the elderly man, his friends and relatives. The big cake was cut and shared by all.

As lunch was spread many talks of congratulations were made on the nearby porch, bringing to mind numerous events in the rich career of the aged man, Rev. James Thomas Nelson, who has resided the past twenty-three years near Clanton. Some who spoke were Rev. Martin, age 82; Rev. Cox; Rev. J. T. Daniels, and others.

This active jolly man of a hundred years was the center of attraction, standing head and shoulders above the others. He entertained his guests by calling from his brilliant memory many, many outstanding events, beginning with his childhood days. He was born in Butts county, Georgia, January 4th, 1833, living there until the age of nine, then moved to Tallapoosa county, Alabama, near Hackneyville, in 1842, where he lived for fifteen years. During the time he was married to Mary L. Burk, February 14, 1855. In the year of 1860 he moved to Coosa county and settled on Weogufka creek, living in that neighborhood for fifty years. He at that time had two children. During his stay in Coosa his daughter, Margaret, disappeared. She was near five years old and was probably lost or drowned in the nearby creek. While living in the Weogufka community his first wife died, leaving five children.

On the night of December 17, 1890, he married Mrs. Frances Ann Jones.

The interest grew intense as he began telling of his career as a soldier in the War Between the States. In the year of 1862 he went to Montgomery to enter training. For one year he was Captain of his militia. Then the march began northward to Chattanooga and then to Knoxville: still northward to the Ohio river where the battle of Perryville was being fought, marching on foot through the State of Kentucky. His troop of soldiers under General Bushrod Johnson had reached sight of the Perryville battle as it ended. His great grandfather, James McKelroy, fought for seven years in the Revolutionary War near Richmond, Virginia. Years later Rev. James Thomas Nelson, himself, fought on the same spot in the War Between the States. He remained near Richmond in the ditches nine months. He also fought in Penn

Coach Horton Walker of the local high school announces a night game of basketball for Friday night of this week. The game will be played at the high school.

The high school team is to meet the strong team from Holtville, Coach Walker stated, and they are expecting a hard fought game, as both teams are in excellent condition now. The game starts at seven-thirty o'clock Friday night. Admission will be ten and fifteen cents.

FERRY TO ROCKFORD IS OPERATING AFTER RAINS

The ferry on the road to Rockford, just below Mitchell Dam, is back in operation, following a shut-down of several days, according to J. P. Spain, operator of the ferry.

The ferry was forced to suspend operation due to high water following the steady rains through this section of the state. Reports from the other side of the river state that the road on the Coosa side is in good condition and is handling traffic.

Local Boy Highly Praised By College

Following is a clipping from The Birmingham News of a recent date regarding Lamar Calloway, of Clanton. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Calloway.

"Jasper L. Calloway, a native Alabama boy who transferred from the school to Duke University in the spring of 1931 has won election to the highly prized honorary society of Alpha Omega Alpha and has just been awarded a three-year felowship in dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania under Prof. Stokes. In connection with his fellowship he will also assist in syphiloligy.

"Dean Davison of Duke wrote Dean Gravees that Calloway was 'one of the best students' at Duke and that the Pennsylvania scholarship had been given him as a result of his work during an elective quarter at Pennsylvania. Dean Davison added: 'All the students we have had from Alabama have done very good work.' "

Poultry Dealer Says Stag Is "Nice" As Hen

Another one of the little dramas that add spice to what otherwise might be a drab life, was enacted in one of the well known vending establishments of Clanton, a few days ago.

Customer (Plaintively): "But the hen you sold me last week, turned out to be a rooster.",

Merchant: (With the "Yes, we have no bananas today," attitude: "Yes, but a stag is quite as nice as a hen, and we charge just as much for one as the other."

Convinced that nothing was to be accomplished by argument, the customer meekly accepted the philosophy expounded by the wise man, and went her weary way.

COOLIDGE LAID TO REST LAST SUNDAY IN VT.

Death Came Suddenly To Former President Of The United States

Plymouth, Vt., Jan. 7.—Calvin Coolidge rested tonight among his native hills.

In the quiet country graveyard beside the road that winds past the old homestead of his boyhood, his body was lowered to its last sleep as the shadows of a wintry day crept down the mountain sides.

A nation had paid its tribute in a simple funeral from the modest church of Northampton, the city where he began his career as mayor years ago and to which he retired when he stepped down from the highest office in the land less than four years ago.

President Hoover, to whom he turned over the reins of government, and Mrs. Hoover, men high in world affairs, the friends and neighbors with whom he walked and talked in his daily affairs joined in sorrowful tribute at the church.

Then, along highways lined by men and women, standing silently and reverently, their heads bowed, he was carried back to the tiny village among the mountains where neighbors of other days had gathered to pay their final respects.

Sixty years ago last July 4, he was born in Plymouth. There were some among the crowd, that stood with bared heads in a pelting rain storm as his body was lowered into the grave, who had known him most of those years.

Rain was falling as the funeral cor-

We cannot say much in way of introduction to these boys, because nearly everybody in this vicinity knows them more or less. You have either heard them in person or have been listening to them over the radio every Sunday afternoon for the past year. But we can say that they are real artists in their line. They put on a program at Jemison a few nights ago, and if you doubt their ability, just ask some of the people who heard them up there. They have got as fine harmony as can be had anywhere, and pep is no name for the way they go into their numbers. Their program will consist of mostly sacred selections—some of which you have heard—and plenty of

The Time For Summing Up

Three years of depression have ended and we can begin to sum up.

Hard times have brought ill winds—but they have also brought some healthful breezes.

Businesses and individuals have been forced to "write down" fictitious valuations and standards. This has naturally caused a great deal of hardship and a long black list of bankruptcies. But real readjustments had to occur to put a sound foundation under family and business life.

Those who expanded and operated on the principle that that which goes up need never come down, and that boom prosperity would continue unabated forever, had to be deflated.

The individual has found that it is possible to live happily and comfortably on a pre-war basis. He has found that the arbiter of wages is what the dollar will buy. He's come down to earth.

These are the "healthful breezes" of depression. The decks have been cleared for action, and the way to recovery is open.

As for the problems of depression, they are still vital and intense. Writing in the Yale Review, Sir Arthur Salter observed that 1933 will be one of the most crucial years in modern history.

The pressing and increasing weight of taxation stifles the capital (industry) of the world, creating unemployment and preventing industrial expansion and the further investment of money.

The burden of armaments, with their drain on national incomes and their constant threat to world peace, grows greater. In every important country the cost of wars, past, present and future, is the major item in the national budget.

The question of foreign trade looms large on the economic horizon. In normal times, foreign sales amount to ten per cent of the gross in this country—and ten per cent is the margin between profit and loss in the average business. Today foreign trade is almost non-existent, due largely to a new and intense spirit of economic nationalism which finds its expression in tariff wars and embargoes. Almost every economist of distinction, here and abroad, stresses the need for revitalizing foreign trade as a factor in the work of recovery. Tied up with this is the problem of silver, which affects the purchasing power of half the world's people. When silver is depressed, as at present, the silver standard countries are unable to buy in the gold standard markets.

The picture at home is undoubtedly more encouraging than the world picture. We have the finest industrial organism in existence—we have the factories and the machines and the farms that are adequate to our needs. Our utilities, our railroads, our oil companies, our insurance institutions, are the harbingers of American progress. They represent honest national assets, as against the fictitious assets we counted on in the boom days. Because the machinery of distribution has slowed, it does not mean that the machinery of production is lacking or faulty.

Our greatest single problem is unemployment. Ten million of our working population is at present out of a job, and its buying has come to a stop. Much of this unemployment is temporary—part of it is the result of machine displacement of labor. Today the foremost industrialists are working toward plans to shorten the working day and the working week, and to provide some means of unemployment insurance that will assure the able and willing worker a livelihood in bad times as well as good. It is difficult to believe that their efforts will end in failure. The weight of taxation, which forces retrenchment, is preventing the employment of many of those now seeking jobs.

This is America at the opening of 1933—a vast and incalculably rich land, which is gradually emerging from depression and entering a new era. It is still a land of promise, as it was in the days of the Argonauts. It has lost nothing that it really possessed. Its earth is still fruitful, its mines are still filled with metals, its factories are ready to make the necessities and luxuries its people want. Its people are courageous, and they still have faith. Its leaders retain those vital qualities—intelligence and vision. America will pull out of the depression—and, from the lessons that depression has taught, it may find a means of preventing both extreme rises and extreme drops in the economic and social cycle, and of creating genuine, permanent and sound prosperity.

Let the people curb the tax bill and the first great step will be taken toward industrial recovery and employment.

Dangerous Driving Months

The fall and winter months are the most dangerous of the year for automobile driving.

Rain, snow, sleet, hail and ice; early darkness, haste to reach home and escape the cold, tightly closed cars and low visibility, all contribute to the hazards.

Skidding is a chief danger of cold weather driving. The motorist must confront not only a visible wet or icy surface, but one hidden under a bed of fallen leaves.

Last year 1,740 persons were killed and 51,720 injured in 44,510 accidents due to skidding cars.

"The automobilist cannot carry the driving practices of the late spring and summer over to the fall and winter without running a great risk of accident," says Maxwell Halsey, Traffic Engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. "Conditions become vastly different in the last three months of the year, and the driver must take them into consideration." Mr. Halsey lays down certain rules for the dangerous driving months.

"Have your car thoroughly inspected for any mechanical defects that may have developed during the summer.

"Be especially sure your brakes are effective; be sure your tires are in first-class condition, also your lights and your windshield wiper.

"Cut down on your summer speed.

"Allow for early darkness and for decreased visibility.

"If you find your car going into a skid, do not jam on your brakes."

Available statistics indicate that automobile fatalities in the United States decreased about 12 per cent the first 7 months of this year. If that record were to be maintained up to, and including December 31st, (statistics refer to 1932) it would mean that the number of human lives taken by motor cars during the year would fall below 30,000 for the first time since 1928. However, the supreme test is now being applied. Every agency nowadays is endeavoring to bring about a reduction in automobile insurance rates. A winter driver should realize that he can contribute most to the success of this movement by driving which will decrease the number of accidents.

Under the most perfect conditions, the driver of an automobile should exercise extreme care. And when the bad days come, that care should be stretched to the utmost.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Another of our Presidents has gone to his reward. The untimely death of former President Calvin Coolidge was no doubt a shock to the entire world.

Sunday was another one of those wet days for Chilton county, and Monday morning dawned with a clear bright sky. I was just thinking Sunday about all this rain we've been having for the past month. People thought it was terrible, but they seemed to have forgotten back in 1929 when there was so much rain and sections in South Alabama were flooded, towns ruined, crops destroyed and in fact people badly endangered. That was known as the Elba Flood.

I see by the paper Monday morning that a move is on to let automobile owners help pay a great part of the State's debt. I'm kind of agin that idea. Seems to me that automobile owners are paying about all they can now in taxes of various kinds. But, if it will help matters any, I say let's do it.

The "Committee of 500" which is getting down to brass tacks or something, seems to really mean business. Now, if that committee goes ahead and does what it says is its purpose, cooperating with Governor Miller and other state officials, then I'm for it. But if it has some selfish motive behind its aims, then I'm agin it. I notice in the News this week that the purposes and aims of the committee are set out by the chairman, Mr. Russell, of Alexander City.

I understand some messages have been left for me at the News office in regard to my comments about county affairs and so forth, in this column last week. Naturally there were some folks agin it and some for it. I'm big enough and broad enough to listen to both sides and weigh and consider all comments. One lady, I understand, said it was put rather coarse or something and left the impression it did not meet with her approval. Of course, she has not been in this county as long as I have and is not familiar with the working of politics as handled here, and I can understand her view. I'm for her and her official duties one hundred per-cent, and would suggest to her (if I may) that she refrain from comments that might touch on the political situation here. Three other comments by three other people were endorsements of my point of view, while two of them stated that I failed to go into detail enough and was not strong enough with my statements.

In case you might not have read this column last week my comments were about the Red Cross flour and clothing that was being distributed here. It is true that I have heard time and time again that many of those persons being helped by this relief work were of the opinion that the county was furnishing all this food and clothing. Of course you can understand why this report was eased out to the people. For pure political reasons only and I do not think the people should be fooled in that respect. As I said, I am broad enough to commend the Commissioners Court on their action of securing a Welfare Worker for this county. It was the thing to do, and should have been done sooner. I think it was a wise move on the part of the Court. So many people have the idea in their heads that this column is against anything the present county officials do. That is wrong, because this column is not quite that narrow minded. All this column advocates so far as that matter is concerned, is fairness to the people of Chilton county.

Now that I've been down to brass tacks and a little seriousness this week, we'll jump off on something we know little or nothing about or something, sometimes.

I fooled around last week and didn't get up to look over Mack's Place. Now folks there's a neat little place for you. There has been some money invested in that new business and it deserves the support of the people of Clanton. It is one of the niftiest little places ever opened in Clanton, and in fact Clanton has never had one just like it. Give the boys a hand, a great big hand, up there.

Heard the other day that the famous two-legged cat that belonged to Harrison Taylor had met its death at the hands (pardon me, I mean at the mouth) of a big dog. That cat was beginning to attract some wide attention. It had only two front legs and managed to get around like that by jumping and bumping, or something.

Have you been up to the new place on the highway called "Fairview." It is a real attractive place now, but Mr. Parrish who operates it says he has a lot to do up there yet in the way of fixing the place up a bit. Mr. Parrish is a newcomer to our county and you should go up there and get acquainted with him. He was the operator of the famous Pratt-Mont Service Station down near Montgomery.

Victor Norris, nicknamed by his Verbena friends as "Victor Hanson" due to his interest in newspaper work, is really getting all lined up now for some real newspaper writing. He is making the News office his headquarters now and is an official representative of the News. He lives down at Verbena. Beginning this week Victor is going into being a star reporter not only for this paper but for others also. Give him a hand when he comes around to you looking for something to write about. He has a "nose for news" too, believe you me.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was reading a prominent daily when my eyes fell upon this advertisement: "Have your face lifted." The man seeking customers may have been a quack doctor or not, I was not certain, but I knew that he was in a good business if he could meet the promise of his advertisement. However, that kind of face lifting has come into disrepute, and much legislation has been passed to suppress it. In spite of quack doctors there is a way to lift the face, and this is done not by a surgeon. The method of "Face Lifting" has been in practice for many centuries. The Psalmist knew about this method when he said, "I will lift up mine eyes." Another author knew about it when he said, "For the joy of the Lord is your strength." Lifting the eyes in the right direction will bring into the soul the right values of life, and this will take the wrinkles from the face. If you have a nose that can smell trouble a mile away, if you have a mouth that sags, it will benefit you much to lift the eyes and thus remove the sadness of the soul. Eyes lifted and a smile playing over the countenance is the best facial treatment known to man in all the ages of life.

I was riding along the highway and saw a man approaching in a flivver. He had a flat tire and I signaled for him to stop. Speaking to him out of my car window I said, "Friend, you have a flat tire." The man stopped his engine and got out and looked his wheel over. Then he turned to me and thanked me for stopping him and telling him of his car trouble. I offered to help him repair his trouble and he kindly accepted my service, and in a few minutes he was on the road again. I had quite a different experience with another traveler along the road of life. I met him as he traveled and seeing that he had a moral flat tire, I ventured to stop him and tell him about it. When I told the man that his drinking was making the road rough for all who were near and dear to him, the fellow cursed me and told me that it was none of my business. I ventured to offer my services to him in helping him to master his faults, but he cursed me the more. I left him with his flat tire. He ventured to travel on without trying to repair his life troubles, but not many miles down the road there was a wreck. The man wrecked his life, the life of his wife and children and left an awful stain of blood and disgrace by the side of the road of life. Your hat should be off to any one who will stop you and tell you of your moral flat tires.

I was in the market for a car and not being able to pay the price of a new model I was being shown a second hand. The salesman who was demonstrating the car was driving it along a level paved highway, and he was extolling the values of the car, telling of its pulling power and its smoothness of machinery. Just at that moment the pavement gave out and a steep hill was just ahead. The salesman wanted to turn around and get back on the pavement, but I objected. I said, "I want to see how this car will pull that hill." The man at the wheel stepped on the gas and the car went rattling up the incline. When it was about half up the hill the engine backfired and started coughing and spitting. Soon it was dead still on the incline. After much trouble we finally got the thing turned around and drove it back to the garage. The test of life, as well as the test of a car, is found on pulling the hill, and not on the smooth pavements. If you are going to marry a man, if you are thinking of taking a girl as your companion, you had better see the one under test before the union is accomplished. It is not how you run when the road of life is paved and level, but how you run when the road is rough and steep, that counts.

A dangerous stream flowed down between its banks and men and women trying to cross over this stream would be caught in its rugged waters and die in the rapids. After centuries of testing a bridge was thrown across the stream and old and young could pass over without harm. And then it came to pass that men gathered to look the bridge over. They criticised it they condemned it and finally determined that the bridge should come down. The men thought nothing of the innocent who crossed over in safety, they never even discussed the building of a safer or a better bridge to span the dangerous chasm. They were mad with the bridge and the bridge builders, and said that it must come down. Before the first blow was struck against that bridge there was a mighty howl from the righteous of the land. The open saloons flowed down between the banks of the centuries and numberless thousands fell into its turbulent waters. Finally the bridge of "Prohibition" the 18th Amendment, was thrown over this stream. For many years our precious boys and girls have passed over in safety. A company of wet politicians have been scrutinizing the bridge, and they have determined that it shall come down. They offer nothing better. They do not even propose to span the stream of the saloon. They are mad with the bridge and the bridge builders, and they say the 18th Amendment must go. Shall not the righteous lift a howl that can be heard to heaven? Shall we stand quietly by and see the bridge go? May God in heaven forbid.

INFLUENZA MAY ATTACK THE HEART

By Dr. Christmas Seal

Influenza, commonly called "the flu", has given America some severe lessons in the last twenty years. But people continue to classify it as "a cold" and try to ignore it. This is a mistake; influenza is a poisonous infection that may fluctuate in severity but is deadly in its possibilities. It may attack any organ of the body and people who "won't give up" during an attack may suffer lifelong damage.

The Alabama Tuberculosis Association warns influenza patients that it pays to stay in bed a few days when the body is attacked by influenza; furthermore there should be no haste in resuming work. The heart that beats 70 to the minute while you are resting will shoot up to 120 under the strain of work. Give your heart a chance.

-o-o-o-

Alabama people did not forget the Christmas Seal Sale but purchased seals in smaller amounts. If those receiving Christmas Seals in December will now send returns the work against tuberculosis will not suffer.

It is doubtful whether eating excessively of sugar will produce diabetes in a healthy person, but certainly it will do so in one who is already inclined to that ailment.

Christmas Seal money prevents tuberculosis. The Christmas Seal, little but mighty, proves that prevention is better than cure.

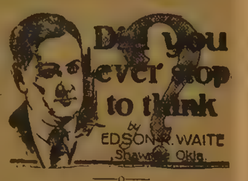
A new tooth, cut at the age of 60, is the proud possession of Joe Claypool of Litchfield, Ill.



Every business man owes it to himself, to his business and to his community to take an active part in the building of the home city and the surrounding country.

Some people should think before they act. If they did they wouldn't lose much time in joining the home city builders.

The man who tries to get something for nothing usually gets nothing.

To think that a city can get something without cooperation is just a dream, and so long as that dream stays with them they will get no real development.

Nothing worth having can be secured without being worked for, traded for or bought and paid for.

A whole lot of people should think for themselves instead of having someone think for them.

Every community should in every way possible patronize, protect and encourage the business and industries they already have.

FRIENDLY ADVERTISING

Illustrating the present trend of good will advertising, a plan adopted by a railroad in the South is interesting.

Recognizing the important function of the local station agent through whom most patrons of the road have their only contact with the management and its policies, the new advertising seeks to bring the agent in closer touch with his community.

This is done in a quarter-page space in the local paper, with a picture of the agent and a little sketch of his services with the road, accompanied with reading matter explaining how he may be of greater service in advising the public concerning their traveling and shipping problems.

This is in line with the policy of many retail stores, which include pictures of their leading salespeople in their advertising from time to time. There is something about this kind of advertising which compels attention, for nothing in the world is more interesting than people, particularly local people.

Intimate, friendly advertising is to a great extent taking the place of the bombastic, exaggerated style so prevalent a few years ago. The new method is more pleasing and interesting—hence more profitable to the advertiser.

LAST OF THE 600

Although the famous charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava, immortalized by Tennyson, occurred 78 years ago, on October 25, 1854, the last survivor of that "gallant six hundred" died only recently.

He was Edwin Hughes, a sergeant major, who until his death received assistance from a special fund raised for veterans of that heroic charge, which was an incident of the Crimean War, in which Turkey, with aid from England, France and Sardinia, defeated Russia.

The Light Brigade, composed of 673 British cavalrymen, charged the Russian field artillery over a distance of a mile and a half, losing 247 men and 497 horses in 20 minutes. They cut down many of the Russian gunners, but were forced to retreat in disorder. Their dashing exploit raised the morale of the allies, however, and diminished that of the Russians.

A few days later, at the battle of Inkerman on November 5, 8,000 British held 50,000 Russians at bay in a hand to hand conflict until the French arrived and routed the enemy. Then, after a year's siege, during which the allies suffered untold hardships, the great fort of Sevastopol was evacuated by the Russians and the war was ended. It was during this siege that Florence Nightingale organized the first nursing system in military hospitals.

Thus, while the charge of the Light Brigade was unsuccessful, it was a moral victory which probably turned the tide of the war against the forces of the Czar. It was a stirring memory that Edwin Hughes carried with him during his long life.

FROM J. C. EDWARDS

Editor, Chilton County News:

Jehovah preserveth all them that love him (Ps. 145:20). God is just, therefore He is always right and righteous. There is no exception to this rule. This fact once firmly fixed in the mind of the creature he is better equipped to steadfastly maintain his integrity. Jehovah is wise and never makes a mistake. Knowing this fact enables the creature to learn wisdom. Jehovah is unselfish: therefore he is love. Knowing this fact enables the creature to love Jehovah as the source of all life. Because of his unselfishness He made provision for them to have life through His beloved son, Christ Jesus. There is no other way of getting life everlasting. Those who do not get life in that way must perish. Knowing this fact enables the creature to look to God thru Christ and live. Jehovah is all powerful and His power is always exercised for good. He is the great preserver who has made provision for the preservation of His creatures who comply with his unchangeable rules. Therefore love is the fulfilling of the law (Rom. 13:10). Knowledge of this fact discloses the vital necessity of ascertaining what is love. Those who love God He will protect and save.

I will now ask two questions: For whose benefit was the Bible written; and for what purpose? Those who receive benefits from the Bible are chiefly the creatures on earth who have been called to the Kingdom and who have responded joyfully to that call. There are the ones who first learn the reason why God has made and announced the rule that He will preserve all who love him. That reason is summed up in these words, to-wit: For the vindication of Jehovah's word and name God created the earth for man and then made man to inhabit the earth. There was at least an implied agreement or covenant that man must ever be obedient to God. Such was the condition by which man would continue to live everlastingly. God always faithfully performs His covenant. If man should keep inviolate his side of the covenant then the worship by the creature would always be given to the creator. It seems that Lucifer coveted this worship for himself, hence he set about to induce man to break the covenant. Doing this Lucifer (who is now called Satan) challenged God to put a creature on earth who would steadfastly hold his integrity when put to the test. Satan therefore put in issue the word and power of God and which of course involved the name of Jehovah. In addition thereto, Satan plainly told Eve that God is a liar. From then till now the question at issue was and is, who tells the truth? The issue is decided against Satan and Satan is proved a liar and God's word is proven true, because of the love of Jesus for His Father and the proof of that unselfishness by faithful devotion under the most severe test. God preserved his existence and raised him up to the highest position in His organidation and gave him a name above all creation.

Chinese Say Americans Do Things Backward And To Be Different

By Victor Norris

"East is East—and West is West, and never the twain shall meet."

Not so many months ago this poetic adage was irrevocably proven to me. For centuries (how many I do not know) we have thought, written, and spoken of the Chinese as those queer Orientals. Numerous volumes of fiction have laid their claim to popularity on the portrayal of quaint Chinese characters woven throughout their plots.

That the Chinese are quaint people has become an accepted theory; so you can well imagine my astonishment a short time ago when I was informed by my friend, Hugo Chow, a Chinese student who had been in the United States for some time, that the Chinese have much the same opinion of us.

There are four Chinese to every one of us, so if we are the advocates of majority rule that we claim to be, it seems to me that 'the worm' has made a rather successful turn.

Chow informed me that we do everything just backward to the way it should be done, and to the established Chinese customs that prevailed when this country was still a wilderness, and was peopled by naked savages. In other words, he intimated that we are just a bunch of up-starts who think we have a right to go about branding a civilization that is as old as we are young, some kind of freaky affair.

Our process of reasoning is a never-ending mystery, I was told. For instance, we measure distance the same whether it is up hill, down hill, or on a level. This seems indeed foolish to the mind of the Oriental, for anyone knows that it is much harder to travel up hill, therefore should of course be farther: Say three miles up and two down.

They marvel that our postal authorities are able to render efficient service when there is such a lack of system used in addressing mails. Why we place the name of a person on an address in the fashion of: Mr. John Doe, 1687 McDonald Avenue, New York City, is quite puzzling. Of course the right form, according to Chinese custom, is to write the name of the state first, the city next, street address following that, and lastly the persons name. New York, New York, McDonald Avenue 1687, Doe, John, Mr.; then there is no possible chance for mails to be missent.

Further illustrating that we do things backward, he continued, by pointing out that the Chinese invented the compass and it was made to point to the south, but just to be different we had ours point to the north. We pare vegetables with the blade of the knife toward us—the Chinese [illegible] the safer method of paring away from them.

Our educational system too came in for criticism. We make our books to begin at the left and read to the right, while Chinese books for centuries have begun at the right and read up and down the page. We place foot notes at the bottom of the page. The Chinese place theirs at the top. They stand up to row a boat, facing the direction in which they are traveling, but we sit with our backs toward the way we are traveling.

The American people are very indifferent about the welfare of their offspring, allowing them to choose their mates, when the Chinese, who really have their children's welfare at heart, always select a mate for them. When a relative dies we stand beside the grave tragically self-controlled; but it is the opinion of my Chinese friend that if we can't wail we should hire some one to wail for us. When a Chinese dies all kinds of imitation food, clothing, money, and other luxuries of life are burned at the grave to minimize the discomforts of Hades, but the Western soul has only the smell of flowers to comfort him on his long journey to the other world.

We place a headstone at the head of the grave. They place one at the foot. We shake hands with our friends, but the Oriental shakes his own head at his friends. Another example of our queerness is that we only hire a doctor when we are ill, while the sensible thing to do is to pay the doctor to keep you well.

Many other examples were offered to prove that it is we who are queer, and not the Chinese. I'll leave the decision with you, but for my own consolation I agree with the philosophy of the poet:

"East is East—and West is West, and never the twain shall meet."

"WHEN I was a girl, I began taking Cardui," writes Mrs. Maggie Stanfield, of Crandall, Ga. "I was very irregular for twelve months. Nothing did me very much good until my mother began to give me this medicine. Then I got all right, stout and well.

"After I was married, I was in bad health. I began taking Cardui again. I was troubled with my back a lot. Was awfully restless. I could not sleep well. Meetings At Shoults And Stanton Soon County Agent Stapp has announced a change in two of the strawberry outlook meetings to be held. There were meetings scheduled at Stanton and Shoults, but Mr. Stapp was unable to hold these meetings as he planned.

Sanders Urges People To Attend Meeting, 14

I wish to say to the people that you will notice elsewhere in this paper the announcement of a meeting of the citizens and taxpayers of the county next Saturday before the Commissioners Court. The question to be discussed is of great importance and should be seriously considered by all who are interested in the saving of our homes and the educating of our children.

From the information I have secured I have all reasons to believe that the commissioners will do everything possible to help the taxpayers save their homes. Theer are many taxpayers who are not only unable to pay their taxes but are unable to get the real necessities of life. These unfortunate people we know our commissioners are not going to forget.

Now for the closing down of our schools seems almost unreasonable, but it will be actual after the 27th if something doesn't happen. I have reason to believe the commissioners are going to help the schools to the extent that they will not have to close in the face of our children.

I hope to see a large delegation of citizens at this meeting to express their views upon these questions. We hope everybody will leave their prejudices and politics at home and come for the purpose of helping all concerned.

For the interest of all, I remain,

Yours very truly,

W. L. SANDERS.

TO SEE NEW STARS

Millions of new stars will be brought within the range of man's vision thru a new telescope, four times as powerful as any now in existence, to be built for the California Institute of Technology with funds furnished by the International Education Board. It will be located on a high California mountain to be selected later.

million light years, the depths to which the new monster reflector may penetrate may be figured, but can not be grasped by the human mind.

The most startling objects to be revealed will doubtless be connected with nearby heavenly bodies such as our moon and the planets of our own solar system. The question of whether life exists on Mars or Venus may possibly be answered.

No statement as to the time required to build the new telescope has been made, but actual work will begin soon. The scientific world, and laymen as well, will eagerly await the new knowledge which is bound to be obtained through its revelations.

The present world's largest telescope is the 100-inch reflector on Mount Wilson, Calif. The new telescope will have a 200-inch reflector of fused quartz, which will present a more nearly perfect surface than glass. The General Electric Company has undertaken to build it, with the cooperation of Dr. Robert A. Millikan and other leading physicists.

GROUP FROM ALABAMA TO WASHINGTON

In cooperation with the Southern Railway System, which is the official route for the special, the lowest rate ever offered for an inauguration has been secured. The train will consist of Pullman drawing room and compartment cars of the very latest design, an observation car and two diners.

Those on the special train will pay a fixed price, which will include all expenses on the train. The Pullman will be parked within four blocks of the Capitol and will be used for sleeping quarters. In this way, the Alabamians will not require expensive hotel rooms even if possible to secure, which is doubtful at this late hour. S. H. Johnson, of the Southern Railway System Passenger Department staff, will accompany the train to Washington and return to see that every needed service is rendered members of the official party.

Reservations on the special are limited and those who wish to become members of this group should secure space at once. This has been done by over 125 Alabamians, including: Chairman Edmund Pettus, W. W. Hill, Jerome T. Fuller, former Governor Brandon, Captain Frank Glass, Dr. George H. Denny, Hugh White, President of the Public Service Commission, Jessie B. Hearin, James M. Jones, Jr., B. H. Mooney, Atticus Mullin and many others of distinction in Alabama affairs.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Chairman of the Inaugural Committee, has advised the Democratic Victory Special Committee that the Alabamians would be extended many courtesies by the group to receive distinguished guests when the special reaches Washington March 3rd.

The schedule of the special will permit the members of this party to remain in Washington two full days and nights, including time for the Inaugural Ball.

The very remarkable victory of Governor Roosevelt in Alabama and his personal popularity has created in Alabama a desire on the part of hundreds of Alabamians to be witnesses to his induction as President of the United States.

Headquarters of the Committee in charge of the special are located in the Tutwiler Hotel.

The rates include: Railroad fare round trip; all meals on train; Pullman fare, both ways; all train tips and occupancy of Pullmans in Washington parked within four blocks of the Capitol, rendering hotel accommodations unnecessary.

Baby Cries Ring Out With Pistol Shots

As nervous as a judge at a baby contest! That may become a popular simile after RKO-Radio Pictures' "Renegades of the West" which opens at the Wadesonian Theatre Saturday and Monday, January 14 and 16.

An outstanding highlight of the picture is a frontier baby contest. Behind the scores of fond mammas and their entrants lurk the proud and determined papas armed in the prevailing manner of Arizona in the "eighties" with menacing six-shooters. This potent situation prompts the stuttering Dr. Fawcett (Rosco Ates) to resign precipitately from the contest judgeship.

Tom Keene, the hero, at the point of a six-shooter, is impressed into judging the cross and howling offsprings. His decision starts the fireworks—a hilarious sequence typical of many in the fascinating outdoor drama directed by Casey Robinson.

Pretty sixteen-year-old Betty Furness plays opposite the handsome Keene in her debut film. In supporting roles are Rockcliffe Fellows, Carl Miller, Rosco Ates, Jack Pennick, Max Wagner, Roland Southern, Bill Franey and Josephine Ramos.

Crack Dancers In "Half-Naked Truth"

Twenty-four dancers who equally combine expert dancing ability and beauty of face and body, appear in "The Half-Naked Truth," RKO-Radio Picture at the Wadesonian Theatre, Thursday and Friday, January 12 and 13.

The girls were selected from a score of applicants by Director Gregory La Cava. They are of uniform height, and have displayed splendid grace in their dance routines, it is said.

"The Halg-Naked Truth" features them in a Boardway musical comedy in which Lee Tracy, as a King of Ballyhoo, has placed his client after skyrocketing her to the front page headlines. Lupe Velez is co-featured, and Eugene Pallette, Frank Morgan and Shirley Chambers are also cast in this original story by Ben Markson and H. N. Swanson, for which Bartlett Cormack and Corey Ford wrote the adaptation. The film was suggested by "Phantom Fame," a biography of the late Harry Reichenbach, Broadway's ballyhoo impressario.

No Nobel peace prize was awarded for 1932, which shows the judges' lack of appreciation for Japan's efforts in Manchuria and Shanghai.

PURPOSE OF 'COMMITTEE OF 500' IS EXPLAINED IN LETTER

Newly Organized Committee Plans To Cooperate With The State In Bringing About A Solution To Financial Problems

Alexander City—Plans and purposes of the newly organized Committee of 500 Alabama citizens which is seeking a solution to the state's financial problems, were defined here today in a statement issued by Benjamin Russell, chairman.

Mr. Russell pointed out that the Committee of 500, through sub-committees is seeking to secure detailed facts pertaining to the state's present financial obligations, to whom and in what amounts such obligations are due, and also detailed facts as to the cost of carrying on the activities of Alabama and state-owned institutions. He expressed the hope that the thought of many minds, all seeking the same objective and working in a friendly and co-operative way, would reach safe conclusions and produce speedier results than could otherwise be obtained.

Mr. Russell's statement follows:

"To the Citizens of Alabama:

"That there may be no excuse for any misunderstanding by any citizen of Alabama of the purpose of the recently organized 'Committee of 500' in Alabama we take this method of setting forth its plans and purposes.

"(1) The organization is non-political. It is not after anyone's scalp. It does not seek to put anyone in office. The members of the Committee have too much else to do to be 'scrapping' with anyone. It seeks and wishes to be helpful to and to cooperate with our present officials to the end that Alabama's present financial problem may be solved in a way that is for the best for Alabama and its citizenship, best not alone for the present time, but for the years to come.

"It may be that the conclusion and recommendation of the Committee may differ from that of other plans proposed, but if it does, surely it could not be said that the Committee is primarily fighting anyone else.

"(2) The membership of the Committee is made up of citizens from all over the state. Citizens who are deeply interested in all activities of the state of Alabama. Citizens who are interested not alone about the present condition of state finances, but equally as concerned about the future, the prospects and position of Alabama as a progressive and going-forward agricultural and industrial state. A state so set up in its affairs that can efficiently serve, to the extent of its capacity the best interests of its schools, its citizens and property-owners generally. A state whose affairs are planned and conducted in a strictly good-business-like manner in all of its activities. A state as well balanced between agriculture and industry as is possible to develop that the grower and producer may be helpful to each other, and all helpful as citizens and tax-payers to Alabama.

"(3) Some one asks:

"Are there in the membership any so-called 'men of big business'? The answer is 'Yes'. Is there any good or sensible reason why men of this type and capacity should not be deeply interested in the affairs of the state of which they are citizens and where their properties and business on which they pay taxes are located? Would we like to have more men of such capacity living in and interested in Alabama?

"(4) Are there in the membership any who would be termed as conducting medium and small-size concerns? Are there any merchants, farmers, doctors, bankers, lawyers, and men of other profesisons? The answer is 'Yes'. This group is largely represented and as good citizens and tax-payers these men are seriously interested in the outcome of the state's present distressed situation, and of its future progress.

"(5) Has the Committee any legal status or authority? The answer is: 'None whatever'. The members are only citizens and tax-payers of Alabama.

"(6) Is membership in the Committee limited to 500? No, any interested citizen of Alabama, man or woman, is welcome, and invited to send in their name to be enrolled as a member. There are no dues. The meetings of the Committee of 500 are not secret.

"(7) Just what is it the Committee of 500 seeks to do? The Committee, thru its committees, seeks to secure detailed facts pertaining to the state's present financial obligations, to whom and in what amounts such obligations are due. Seeks to find out detailed facts of the cost of carrying on the activities of Alabama, and all state-owned institutions. With such information in hand the Committee proposes to make a careful study of the same with the view and the hope that they will be able to find and suggest some method to clear up the state's present distressed financial condition. Develop from the detailed facts some concrete plan which would meet with the approval of our Governor and the members of our Legislature, with whom the Committee earnestly seeks to work and to cooperate in every manner possible. Such a plan to be one that would relieve the present financial distress of our schools and all state activities, and to do this in a manner that shall not unduly load up debts for our children and generations following to pay. And, likewise, to so arrange the plan that such will not be a drawback to the future development and progress of Alabama.

"(8) Can the Committee of 500 develop such a plan or method? The answer to this depends upon the securing of complete and detailed facts pertaining to all state activities and what is found after making a careful study of such facts. A study of such facts just as good business men have to study and solve their own financial problems. The only difference between the privately owned business and the state's business is that one depends upon taxes for revenue while the other must depend upon earnings from its own operations. Both must make the necessary adjustments under which revenues are produced or take the consequences. Industry and business are making them through economies. The state needs to reduce its costs, live within its income and pay its debts.

"We do know that the thought of many minds, all seeking the same objective and all working in a friendly and cooperative way, very often reaches safe conclusions and produces speedier results than may be done otherwise. Members of the Committee believe that it is possible to find and develop a satisfactory solution, which will be submitted to our Governor and Legislature for their consideration and we hope approval. The Committee is working.

(Signed) BENJAMIN RUSSELL,
Chairman, Committee of 500."

Bull Associations Are In 17 Counties

Auburn, Ala.—By being members of bull associations farmers in 17 counties of Alabama have reduced their expenses and improved the quality of their dairy cows. These counties are Barbour, Chambers, Crenshaw, Cherokee, Chilton, Coffee, Dale, Hale, Henry, Lauderdale, Lee, Limestone, Madison, Pike, Shelby, Talladega, and Tuscaloosa.

And F. W. Burns, extension livestock specialist at Auburn, estimates that 4,360 calves came from these bulls in 1932. Assuming that 50 per cent of these were heifer calves and that the butterfat production for each will exceed by 100 pounds annually that of their dams, Mr. Burns found that the increase will be worth $15 per cow per year on a basis of 15 cents per pound for butterfat.

"This means a yearly increase in value of $32,777," said Mr. Burns. "It is an increase which will continue in these cows and also their offspring. It means a permanent improvement in the quality of Alabama dairy cows."

This method of owning and keeping a bull enables a farmer having only a few cows to breed to bulls of excellent quality. Bulls are shifted from one club to another every two years. This is made feasible by each county having more than one association.

The associations were organized by the county agents. Jersey breeders of the state cooperated.

Livestock Reminders

By F. W. Burns, Auburn

The outlook for the dairy industry in the United States is for a continuation during 1933 of keen competition and low prices.

Watch your calves and yearlings for signs of lice or stomach worms. Treat them at once if found necessary.

The consumption of dairy products in the rural sections of Alabama should be increased for the sake of economy and for health protection.

Your future herd depends on your present bull. Use only production bred dairy bulls if you wish to increase the production of your future herd.

Do not permit your dairy herd to stay out during cold, rainy weather. Such practice will cost you extra feed and at the same time will reduce production.

Present prices of hogs should encourage home killing and curing of sufficient meat to supply all home demands. Your county agent will furnish you any information you need on this subject.

Mt. Pleasant Jr. High Defeats Wilsonville

The Shelby County Jr. High champions from Wilsonville were subdued last Saturday night at Calera when the Mt. Pleasant Jr. High team won over them by the count of 21 to 15.

This was the first defeat for the Wilsonville team in two years. Both teams were in good physical condition and the game was unusually swift and exciting. Each school had a large group of supporters to accompany them and plenty of excited cheering took place.

The Shelby county boys were off to a 7-point lead during the first three minutes of play, but after this the Chilton county champions tightened their defense, holding their opponents at bay and then proceeded themselves to uncork some brisk passwork and ran up a 12 to 7 lead at the half. The second half found the Wilsonville running guard ready to unloose some long range shooting. He shot two field goals, pulling the count up to 11, one point of a tie. At this point of the game the Mt. Pleasant offense broke through their opponents' defense and looped a 3-point lead by the end of the third quarter. The Shelby Countains again netted a field goal which ended their scoring while the Chilton team rung up two shots from the field and one foul shot for 21 points of the game.

Curtis Traywick and Leonard Burnett led their mates from Mt. Pleasant in scoring. The former made 10 points and the latter 7. Burnett fouled out of the game during the 3rd quarter after turning in one of the best games he has ever played. Julius Traywick, younger brother of Curtis, took his place and gave a very good account of himself. Collins, the rangy center for Mt. Pleasant, performed creditably while Cecil Traywick and Childress worked the guard positions in nice style.

The Wilsonville team was larger and taller and are clever players. They are worthy of special commendation for the clean way they play their games. The writer was unable to get their names, but regardless of this, those Wilsonville players are sure enough fast with a basket ball.

Another game of special importance which Mt. Pleasant will play, will be on next Friday evening at three o'clock when the husky players from Enterprise Jr. High will visit our court. These two teams are arch rivals of each other and you can wager your best that this will be one of those wind-splitting, "nip and tuck" affairs. Enterprise presents a clever little team, and it takes good ball playing to set them down. We hope to be the first this season to accomplish this task. Everybody who is interested in seeing these staunch, yet friendly, rivals display their athletic skill, don't miss this game. It will be one of our feature games of the season. Remember it will be played next Friday evening at 3:00 o'clock at Mt. Pleasant. Arnold Littleton from Thorsby will call the game.

QUICKER, BETTER RELIEF from use of Black-Draught

"I have taken Black-Draught, off and on when needed, for twenty-five years, for it is easy to take," writes Mr. George T. Wharton, of Petersburg, Va. "I take it for constipation and when I have that dull, tired feeling. I take it for colds and other complaints where a good laxative is needed, and I believe it gives me quicker and better relief than any other medicine I know. It certainly has been a help to me."

Many friends of Mrs. W. G. Curry will regret to note that she lies critically ill in the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. P. McLean, Livingston. Payday Celebrated At The State Capitol

Payday arrived at last at the Capitol. Warrants totalling $124,526.83, drawn on the general fund of the State Treasury, were issued from the office of Comptroller J. H. Hard, Jr., in payment of December salaries of State employes, and all day long Treasurer S. H. Blan's department was far and away the most popular "dropping-in" place at the statehouse.

Every effort is being made, Comptroller Hard said, to pay the pensions of Confederate Veterans and their widows for the quarterly period ending Jan. 1. These pensions total $298,335. All but about $13,000 of this amount is now available, the Comptroller stated, and tax collectors are being asked to send in additional funds in advance so that this sum can be realized as early as possible.,

A STATEMENT FROM

Ford

Since 1927 when the Model T Car was discontinued, Ford passenger car sales led those of all other makes, according to a tabulation by the Ford Motor Company reported today by T. J. Littlejohn, manager of Clanton Motors, local Ford dealers.

In this period from January, 1927 to and including October, 1932, the latest month for which reports have been compiled, Ford sales total 4,001,384, as compared with 3,705,827 for its nearest competitor and total sales of all makes of 15,183,842.

Ford's Share of All Business in These Six Years Was 26.4 Percent.

This record, it was pointed out, was made despite the fact that Ford production was halted twice during this six-year period in preparation for the Model A and the V-8 Ford cars. Manufacture of the Model T was discontinued in May, 1927, Ford being out of the market until December of that year when the Model A was announced. Ford again was out of the market for the first five months of 1932 until volume deliveries of the new Fords began last June.

The year-to-year record follows:

	Ford	Next Make	Tot. all M.
1927	393,424	647,810	2,623,538
1928	482,010	769,927	3,139,579
1929	1,310,147	780,014	3,880,247
1930	1,055,097	618,884	2,625,979
1931	528,581	583,429	1,908,141
1932*	232,125	305,763	1,006,358
* 10 Months	4,001,384	3,705,827	15,183,842

Ford passenger car sales in October were 20,410 units, which was 32.3 per cent of total sales of all makes. The next make registered 15,772, or 25.0 per cent of all makes. Ford has led in passenger and commercial car sales in the United States in each month since June, when volume deliveries of new Fords began.

IN MEMORY OF MR. JIM DOSTER

On January 4th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. W. T. Henley and wafted away the sweet spirit of their dear loving father. All was done that loving hands could do, but all in vain. We understand he is not dead, but just begun life in that mansion prepared above to await that great day. We shall miss him in loving reference to the place he held in our hearts. God called him to be with Him on high.

His place can never be filled. We loved him but God loved him more and has called him to younder shining shore where the golden gate was open and he calmly entered in. Our Father who is too wise to make mistakes, too great to be unkind, grant us the spirit and reconciliation and submission and enable us to say, "Thy will be done."

Let us honor our blessed Saviour to the best of our ability, knowing our time is short and we must go when he calleth. It was a shock to us when he passed away, but he had so often said he was ready to go and those were such comforting words.

Mr. Doster, age 70 years, leaves to mourn his loss three daughters, Mrs. Tommie Hand, Mrs. W. T. Henley and Miss Ida Mae Doster; and grandson, James Gilvie Henley; one sister, Mrs. Joe Wesson.

Pallbearers were Mr. Sam Wilson, O. C. Hanson, Bob Varden, Wordner Crowe, William Johnson, Elzie Kelley.

Funeral was conducted by Rev. Daniels and Martin & Sons in charge, at New Salem, Thursday, January 5th. Mr. Doster was laid to rest by the side of his wife and three babies.

TWO FRIENDS.

and the Big Hatchet Run fight March 31, 1865, fought again April 2nd, 1865, fell back to Court House Appomatox in Virginia. "We were standing just a few feet away and saw the surrender of General Robert Lee to General Grant. In Petersburg, Penn., he met a lady whose name was Nelson as he went to the door of some cottage for milk. During the conversation he learned that they were related and that she was from North Carolina. He was also in camp at the Cumberland Gap and his first battle was in Chickamauga, Ga. He is the last of Company B of 60th Alabama Regiment, of the War Between the States, now living.

Not only was he a faithful soldier to his country, but this Baptist minister of Irish nationality, spent forty-five years of active preaching service. He was licensed to preach in 1874 and ordained in 1875. The first Sunday after he was ordained to preach he was called to three churches and baptized eight people the first being Mr. Bennet Morris of Weogufka. On Thursday of March, 1876, he married his first couple, Mr. M. P. Robinson and wife. The last couple he married was Mr. Osmond Price and Ellen Price in November of 1932.

He is Past Worshipful Master of the Masonic Order and Royal Arch Mason. For forty years he attended every meeting of the Weogufka Lodge No. 378, with the exception of two, those being because of illness and serving on jury in court. He is the only surviving charter member of the Weogufka Lodge No. 378.

He manifested pride in the fact that during his hundred years stay here he was never intoxicated, never used tobacco in any form, and never had a charge brought against him in court. He served as justice of the peace for forty years. Standing for justice and right, not many cases brought before him were taken to higher courts. For of years he was County Registrar and County Commissioner for four years. All who knew him always found him to be a loyal citizen, law abiding and active in the welfare and upbuilding of his community. He has followed farming as his occupation with many avocations, which always portrayed his citizenship.

A bit of genuine Irish humor now and then gave spice and flavor to his interesting conversation and all chuckled with pride at his pleasant jovial manner. He and his youngest sister are the survivors of ten children. At this ripe old age he has one child by his first wife and four by his last wife, living, all of whom were present. Forty-eight grandchildren, eighty-eight great grandchildren were gathered around the aged minister most all day. Late in the afternoon as the guests began to wane he was seen doing outdoor chores in his shirt sleeves. He is not bald, does not use a walking cane or dental plates and eats as hearty as anyone. He sleeps well at night and is active during the day.

The Nelsons were natives of North Carolina and settled on Cataba river in Buncan County. His grandfather, Thomas Nelson, came from North Carolina in 1722, and later Maredy Nelson, the father of the Rev. James Thomas Nelson, now living, was born. His father, Maredy Nelson, settled on Peach Tree creek, where Atlanta now stands. The Nelsons probably came to America just before the Revoluntionary War.

As the winter sun began to sink behind the western hills and shadows of bare winter trees crept over the grove the cars began to wind away in many directions to various cities and counties of Alabama and Florida, leaving the elderly man to rejoice over the day of hospitality and fellowship before the hickory logs crackling in the open hearth fire. Many birthday wishes were expressed, gifts given, and telegrams sent. The natal day fete will long be remembered by many.

popular pieces, too. It is worth driving ten miles to hear them sing "My Little Gypsy Sweetheart," and they have several others just as good. The program will begin at 7:30 and will continue for an hour or a little over.

The main purpose of this engagement is to raise some money to pay on the community piano at the courthouse; but that is not all: There are hundreds of people around Clanton who enjoy hearing good classical quartet singing, and it is for their benefit as well as the piano fund that the McDonalds have been engaged to come here. And the admission price has been made so low that no one need stay away on account of the hard times. It will be 15 cents for grown folks and 10 cents for children under 12 years of age. It is hoped and expected that the court room will be filled to capacity by the time the singing is to begin. And remember that when this bunch agrees to sing they will be there regardless of the weather. It will likely be bad weather, but come on any way, because they will put on their program unless it is storming or something worse.

We were about to overlook mentioning that there will be a black-face comedian in the crowd, and he is as good as you ever saw on any stage. So make arrangements to be there and enjoy the fund and good singing as well as help out on your piano fund.

Coolidge Laid To Rest Sunday In Vermont

tege moved into Plymouth along the narrow, muddy country road to the terraced graveyard where six generations of the Coolidge family lie. The sun had made vain efforts to burst out through the day but clouds swept down upon the mountains and blotted it out.

There was a momentary lull in the storm as the procession drew up the road and to a halt beside the graveyard. Mrs. Coolidge stepped from her car as the bronze casket bearing the body of the 30th President of the United States, was lifted from the hearse and borne along the narrow pathway to the grave dug between that of Mr. Coolidge's stepmother, Carrie, and his son, Calvin, Jr., who died while his father was President.

Mrs. Coolidge, her son, John, and his wife, Florence Trumbull Coolidge, walked in single file up the path to the grave. Behind followed Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stearns, of Boston, and a few close friends. Only these close friends were admitted to the cemetery.

Rain and hail fell upon their bared heads as the little family group assembled beneath a canvas marquee above the grave and the Rev. Albert J. Penner, pastor of the Edwards Congregational Church of Northampton, who conducted the funeral service, stepped forward for the burial. He intoned the simple commital service for the dead. There was a brief prayer, a poem. The service ended.

Mrs. Coolidge stepped back and walked firmly from the graveyard, her son and his wife with her. A moment later and she had entered her car. She drove to the old homestead from which she and Mr. Coolidge returned to Northampton barely two months ago after their Summer visit and there received the sympathy of Miss Aurora Pierce, long housekeeper at the home. Then she turned homeward, to Northampton.

It was in his home there, "The Beeches," that he died, stricken without warning by a heart attack. Today his body was carried from the home to the church where for an hour it lay in state as men and women and children filed past in their last farewell.

There was far too little time for all to enter who would have done so. There were far too few seats within the walls for those who would have attended the funeral service.

There were among them Vice-President Curtis, Charles E. Hughes, chief justice of the United States, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose husband is soon to take the place in the White House which once he held, and with her, her son, James.

There was Justice Stone of the Supreme Court, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams and Secretary of Commerce Roy D. Chapin.

There were members of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives, governors of his neighboring New England States and representatives of foreign governments, headed by Ambassador Paul Claudel, of France.

made. The Crop production loan will enable the farmer to produce their crops, but this loan will be made for the exclusive purpose of crop production, the money being released as needed for production purposes, and not being used to pay any debts or obligations other than those incident to crop production.

"The barnyard loan is a general loan, implying just what the name indicates —that is, a loan for the small farmers who have work stock, a few cattle, hogs, poultry and other barnyard livestock, and who need a small loan for the purpose of carrying on.

"All loans will be made at the rate of seven percent interest for the time the money is actually used and no loans can extend beyond a period of twelve months.

"Applications for barnyard and crop production loans will be handled by a local committee in your county, the application forms to be secured from this committee, and forwarded by this committee to the Montgomery office. Under no circumstances should the application be forwarded directly to the Montgomery office.

"In your county the following public spirited citizens have agreed to serve as an advisory committee for crop production and barnyard loans. As already stated, they will be prepared to furnish applications and assist the borrower in preparing these applications and after the application has been properly prepared it will be forwarded to Montgomery office. Inspector will then be assigned to make proper investigations. The agricultural county agent will assist the applicant, working with the county committee. Your county agent is C. E. Stapp of Clanton, and your county committee consists of the following:

W. A. Gulledge of Verbena, C. F. Jones of Clanton, Judge Louis H. Reynolds of Clanton, W. H. Conway of Jemison, H. M. Nix of Maplesville, H. S. Shaw of Clanton, Grady Reynolds of Clanton.

Tomorrow is Friday, January 13th, the time when many people want to just stay in bed all day for fear of some jinx. But of course it's all a hoax, however, there is that little feeling of uneasiness.

OUTLOOK MEET WELL ATTENDED LAST TUESDAY

—o—

Auburn Instructors Address Gathering Of Farmers At Courthouse

—o—

Several hundred persons attended the third annual Chilton county farmers Outlook meeting, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the courthouse in Clanton. Major problems that must be faced by farmers and business men in the county during the year 1933, and methods for their allevation, were discussed.

The meeting was called by County Agent Stapp. Emmett Sizemoore and F. W. Burns, instructors from Auburn, were the principal speakers on the program. Illustrations of comparative prices for produce bought and sold by the farmers were traced over a period of years by Mr. Sizemoore. Figures submitted showed that although prices for produce sold by the farmer have been slashed into approximately half, the manufactured articles which he has to buy have only been reduced about onthird.

Both Mr. Sizemoore and Mr. Burns declared that diversified farming will be the farmer's salvation. Cotton must be the principal money crop in this section of the coutry, they voiced, but there is no reason why it should not be supplemented by livestock and other crops.

Charts illustrating the advantages derived from cover crops as fertilizers were also presented. Mr. Burns declared that he believes there is profitable field for farmers in this section to produce mules, declaring that since the depression many formr mule producers in Missouri and Tennessee have gone out of the business. He also stated that there is some money to be made out of dairy cattle. Only one-eight of the butter consumed in Alabama is produced in the state.

In spite of the fatalistic omens commonly associated with Friday, the 13th, everything had gone along smoothly last Friday, until late in the afternoon, when a negro, the fond possessor of a 'possum, strolled in the Culver & Jones Store.

He set his prize down on the floor and gazed longingly at a basket of sweet potatoes. "Sweet potaoes and 'possum—yas sah! dey sho' is good."

A big yellow cat, aroused from dreams of the "good old days" when rats were rats, espied the intruder, and thinking perhaps the depression might be letting up, pounced on the 'possum and gave it a nasty slap in the mouth. But his "catty" ways were not appreciated, and he found his leg fast in a vise of 'possum teeth.

It took all his back-alley tricks to break the hold and his sudden departure fully indicated that he had remembered it was Friday, the 13th.

Farmers May Sell Produce In City If It Is Grown On Own Farm

County Agent Stapp has the following to say in regard to the city laws of Birmingham touching on farmers selling their farm products in the city:

"I have had a number of inquiries relative to the new tax to be imposed on farmers who may want to truck produce to the Birmingham markets this year. The following leter is in reply to my letter to the county agent of Jefferson County asking for information on this proposed tax:

Dear Mr. Stapp:

"Replying to your inquiry regarding charges made by the city of Birmingham for farmers, will say that the new ordinance does not tax any farmer from any county offering produce for sale which he himself has grown or has caused to be grown on his own farm.

"There is a tax of $150.00 for all those who offer for sale produce of any kind which they have bought for re-sale. Any farmer can get a permit at the City Hall without cost for marketing his own produce. I do not think this will affect any of your farmers.

STUDENTS AT JEMISON IN FARM STUDY

—o—

Saving Money On The Farm Is Predominate In Boys' Classes

By J. P. Montgomery

The two upper classes in vocational agriculture at the Jemison High School have had intensive training this year in laying off terraces. They can lay them off on the level or give them the variable grade. The variable grade terrace is a terrace with enough fall to carry the water but not wash the land. The students in laying off a terrace with the variable grade use a printed card which is furnished by the experiment station at Auburn. It takes some effort to understand this system of laying off terraces, but on steep land and long terraces this terrace is preferred to the level terrace.

The reason a farmer objects to giving a terrace a fall is that his experience has been that terraces with a fall generally erode or wash. If they are laid off with a variable grade according to the method recommended by Auburn and taught at the Jemison High School the terrace will not wash.

What Democrats Do, And Not Victory, Is Most Important Now

Cincinnati, Jan. 14.—James A. Farley told Ohio Democrats tonight that there must be an end "to anything which does not contribute to national welfare" if "complete order" is to arise "out of the chaos which we have inherited."

"The fact that we have won is not as important as what we may do with our victory," the Democratic National Committee chairman declared at a "victory dinner" of Democratic organizations.

"The Democratic party will not lack for leadership, but unless those who put it into power are willing to do their part the orders of the high command may be nullified. The Federal Government alone has neither the resources nor the power to bring complete order out of the chaos which we have inherited. Existing emergencies call for a degree of cooperation such as we have never exerted before. There must be an

Arguments Touch On Several Different Subjects In Seeking Solution

—o—

Following is an account of the meeting held at the courthouse last Saturday, in which it was hoped to reach some decision, or some solution whereby taxpayers could be assisted in paying their taxes in the county. The report as follows is from W. L. Sanders, Secretary of the meeting:

The meeting of the citizens, taxpayers and school patrons at the courthouse was as follows: Mr. J. D. Collins was elected chairman; W. L. Sanders, secretary. Mr. Arthur Heustess from Montgomery was called upon to explain the conditions under which Chilton county "if it saw fit" could borrow the $50,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

A great deal of light was given on this subject. W. L. Sanders called the people's attention to the fact that the meeting was not called altogether to discuss the question of borrowing the fifty thousand dollars, but was a call upon the commissioners to come to the rescue of the taxpayers and those in distress by giving them work on the roads. He also stated that the schools needed attention, that they might not close down. He offered the following

Make Taxation Hurt

One need not be an advocate of the general sales tax to appreciate that it would have one desirable effect: It would make taxation hurt. It would give every citizen, regardless of income, a new understanding of the gigantic cost of the government.

All of us pay taxes. But comparatively few of us pay them directly—and a great many persons who pay indirect taxes think they are escaping taxation altogether.

We pay a tax when we cook and eat a meal, turn on the light, attend a movie, buy clothes, go for a ride, or do almost anything else. These taxes may be concealed in the cost of necessities and pleasures, but they are there nevertheless.

No business can pick money from bushes—every cost of operation, whether it be labor, supplies or taxes, must be passed on to the customer.

If more of us felt taxes directly, the chance for really obtaining economical and efficient government would be tremendously improved.

If the sales tax comes, government extravagance and expansion will have again added to the cost of the things we buy—and when it hurts all the people, they may then demand a lower cost of government.

Before considering a sales tax, however, or any other new and increased taxation, public officials would do well to remember that in seeking office at recent state and national elections, they, one and all, stressed the need for economy in public affairs, reduced taxation and, in a number of instances, promised a 25 per cent cut in the cost of government.

o-o-o

Employers And Taxpayers

The gas and electric industries of the United States give direct employment to about 500,000 men and women.

Their payrolls exceed $600,000,000 a year, all of which flows into the channels of trade where it creates more payrolls, more jobs, more industrial activity.

In 1931 the gas companies of the country paid over $76,000,000 in taxes, and the electric companies paid $210,000,000. This means that they paid 10.5 cents out of every dollar grossed by selling electricity, 9.6 cents of every dollar coming from manufactured gas, and 7.2 cents in the case of natural gas.

For every consumer receiving electric service, the industry pays, in taxes, $8.60 a year. For every manufactured gas consumer it pays the government $4.23, and for every natural gas consumer, $4.66.

Rates have dropped steadily since the earliest days of these industries. Electric rates, in particular, are far below the 1913 level, even though costs of all kinds, including labor and taxes, are far higher. Even during the recent boom, when prices skyrocketed, electric and gas rates continued their downward curve.

By the same token, service has seen a thousand improvements. Where we once obtained unsatisfactory electric service, at a high price, from a small local plant, we now obtain cheap, abundant power, at all times, from an inter-connected system serving many communities. Interruptions of service are practically unknown.

The figures show, better than argument, how much these industries mean to American industry, to the American home, and to the development of our civilization.

o-o-o-o

Preventable Fires

In extremely cold weather it is a temptation to force fires in heating systems in order to keep warm. Records of the National Board of Fire Underwriters indicate that over-heated stoves cause numerous fires during winter—thoughtlessness in tending the fires, radiated heat which chars beams placed too close to hot metal, defective or soot-clogged equipment or chimneys.

All these dangers can be eliminated. When attempting to obtain maximum heat from a stove or furnace, it is important to keep close watch over the unit—do not stay away from it too long. If this is done there is little likelihood of overheating.

The second item is urgent. Make an inspection of all smoke pipes and exposed metal parts of heating units that become hot, to ascertain if wood or other burnable material is located too near. Continued proximity to the hot metal may cause fire particularly if an extra amount of heat is generated—it happens daily. If combustible material cannot be moved to a safe distance, protect it with layers of sheet asbestos.

One more precaution: Do not place hot ashes in wooden boxes or cartons; this is like a slow fuse to gun powder. Put ashes in metal containers.

Fires take a heavy toll of life every year. Surely each of us should be willing to practice such simple precautions as these to aid the cause of safety.

o-o-o-o

The Shipwrecked Farmers

If a half dozen men were marooned on a desert island they would join forces to secure food, shelter and protection. It would be folly for each to work separately. By cooperation they would achieve results obtainable in no other manner.

This illustration explains the farm cooperative movement. Farmers today are in much the same position as sailors wrecked on a desert island. Their financial existence depends on profitable and permanent markets for their produce. Each farmer working alone is powerless for he is opposed by forces far stronger than he.

But when ten thousand farmers join forces to study production figures, marketing, transportation and like problems of agriculture, their situation has changed. Cooperation is just another name for economic salvation.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

How would you like to trade something you have for something someone else has? If you wanted to do this, how would you go about letting people know you wanted to trade?

Well, with the permission of the Ed, I have worked out a scheme or something so this can be done. Here 'tis — if you have something you would like to trade for something else, write this column a letter telling what you have to trade and what you would like to trade for. Sign your name and address and I'll publish it. Be sure that you address your letter to this column in care of the Chilton County News. Let's get this thing going next week, so write in your letter of what you want to trade. It don't cost anything.

Speaking of letters, here's one I got last Friday afternoon. I ain't saying I endorse it, and I ain't saying I don't. Anyway you read it:

"Dear Doug: I have been reading your column for sometime and like most of the things you say, while some I don't like. However, I realize that you can't please all the people all the time, and I believe in giving the Devil his dues.

"Right away, we are going to have two new members of the Commissioners Court of Chilton County to take office. Now, these men are both good fellows and haven't been mixed up in any political scandal or rumors. They are starting off with a clean slate and I hope they keep it clean. I am a Republican, or that is, I vote the Republican ticket, but I am not the kind of a Republican who will stand for a lot of partiality in the party nor will I stand for any bull-dozing, like we have had in the past. I hope that these two new commissioners will stand up for the things that will be of benefit to the people of the county, instead of the things for their own personal benefit. But if they get into office and then let one man tell them what to do, I will just have to part with my friendship for them. You can publish this letter if you want to. I enjoy reading your column and reading the News."

Well, at least there is one Republican in the county who reads this column. From what I overheard the other day, there are a lot of Republicans who read this column. But I just wonder if all these folks who vote the Republican ticket are really Republicans. I doubt it very much.

See that the Chilton County Post of the American Legion gave the disabled soldiers a real treat last Friday afternoon over at the Veterans Hospital in Tuscaloosa. They tell me that this Tug Willis is a dancing thing when he has some good music. Well, he must have had some good music, or something Friday, because he did his stuff in a big way. Now that is the kind of activities I like to see an organization have. They really did some good by giving those soldiers that entertainment.

I hear that Clanton has a real sculptor (or sculptress) in the person of the charming Mrs. Broadus Connatser. They tell me that she is truly an artist and I feel that Clanton should feel and is honored by her presence here. I would like to go over to her home and see her at work if I could, or at least see some of her work.

Due to some recent expostulations, exaggerations, deviations and things, it just occured to me that it might be advisable, profitable or something to organize a "Liars Club" association, organization or such, in Clanton. Not that I mean somebody has been deviating or something from the truth round here, but that I've been hearing some awful tall stories going the rounds. One especially was about a man who worked for a farmer. The farmer owned a big bull with a terrible temper. One day while the farmer wasn't looking, the big bull charged him, scattering the farmer over the pasture. The hired man immediately saw that this called for an emergency operation and looking around couldn't find anything except some sheep. So he performed the operation on the farmer, injecting some sheep innards into the man. Today the farmer is a hale and hearty man, doing well. The only trouble he has is that he doesn't eat anything now except corn shucks and grass, and they say that over thirty pounds of wool was sheared from him last year.

Now with such stories as that being circulated, don't you agree with me that some kind of organization should be organized to protect the tellers of such stories? If you have any "Tall Stories" send them in to this column and let's let a lot of people laugh at them.

Those people who have to write columns for newspapers are hitting it kind of hard these days (I'm speaking from my own experience). There are a lot of columnists thinking up new ideas, schemes, subjects, names and what have you these days. In fact there are so many columnists that if you should place them end to end, starting at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean—it would be a pretty good idea.

Back to the "Tall Stories" subject, I just thought of someone who should be made president of such an organization in this town, or this county. He is a fellow well versed in the art, or something, of telling tales with the best of color and most sincerity. His stock of such tales seems to be unlimited and when not otherwise engaged in his official duties, fears no man who might try to overshadow him with a bigger deviation, or exaggeration. This fellow I have in mind is none other than our well known deputy sheriff, W. A. Norris. Sometime when he is not busy, get him cornered, give him a good cigar, tell him a good joke, and then you are set for several minutes of entertainment.

Now there is another fellow named Norris, whose business is telling stories, deviating slightly from the truth, exaggerating if necessary. However, he has a perfect right to do this. As I said, it is his business. But, he is the kind of a fellow who doesn't deviate from the truth, when the truth would fit better, like some folks I know. When left with his imagination on a story, there is no telling where that story is going to end. This fellow is the one and only crack newspaper reporter, Victor Norris, who saunters about town finding out what he can, separating news from gossip and vice versa.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

A distinguished looking man was given a place in a barber's chair. Immediately the razor flashed and the barber was busy at his task. The reclining man started a conversation about everything in general and nothing in particular. He let it be known that he was in the city for four weeks. The barber was siscere when he asked him the line of his business. The talkative man replied, "Why, sir, I am here filling the pulpit of Dr. Loudhorn at First Church while he is away on his vacation." Then the barber ceased his raking and looking the stranger in the eye he asked, "And may I sir, ask what you are filling that pulpit with?" That was not an impertinent question. We know some pulpits that are filled with "Gas Bags." Others are filled with "Grocery Sacks." Others are filled with "Perfume Bottles." When our pulpits are filled with the truth of God, then the pew will sit up and listen.

A guide was showing me the sights of the city. In our travels we came to an unusual building. The foundation was a thing of beauty, and seemed to be as firm as Stone mountain. In his description of the building he said, "That structure was intended to be ten stories high, and the contractor built the foundation with that in mind, but something went wrong and you see that it is only two stories high." With that in mind the wheels in my brain started to revolving. I thought of many of my comrades along the way. They had been raised in good homes and the foundation of youth was made safe and strong. They were blue printed for a ten story building, but something went wrong and they are now completed and roofed over with only two stories high. One of the saddest things in human life is to see the flash and the failure of those who have the capacity to pierce the sky. Why stop the structure of your life with it clustering close to the earth, when the sky is the limit?

On the first day of January, 1933, a pastor addressed the sexton in this language, "Uncle Wash, I want to tell you that you are an important man in the work of this church. You can run more people away from the services of the church than the preacher can attract. If you fail to keep the church neat and comfortable the people will not worship with us, but if you keep everything in this church as it should be, you will mean as much in the worship as the pastor." When people learn that there are three influences that stand side by side in making a service what it should be, more effort will be put forth and more fidelity required by others than the preacher. A good sermon with a cold church and poor music, is like a man without arms. If we are to hold the attention of the world today we must have comfortable churches, inspiring music and a sermon from a burning heart. It is hard to say which one, the sexton, the choir or the preacher, is the more essential in presenting an hour of devotion.

I was in conversation with a World War veteran and with keen interest I listened to him as he related his experience in the battles. He told of the flying bullets as they sung over his head. I ventured to ask him this question, "How many of the bullets coming from the enemies' guns do you suppose did any real damage in your ranks?" He thought for a moment and then replied by quoting a great general, "Nine bullets out of every ten fired in a battle sung their way through the air and fell harmless to the earth." Only one bullet out of every ten made a contribution toward victory. That may not be the percentage in the waste of human life, but this we know, many lives go shooting through this world and fall back to dust, after having struck nothing, and after having made but little, or no contribution for liberty and life. Are you a bullet in the air, speeding through the years, hitting nothing and making no contribution toward liberty?

The other day my heart bled as I saw a lad of a few summers as he went from one can to another on the street in search of what he could find. His garments were in rags, his feet were bare and his face was almost as pale as death. I addressed him, "My boy, why do you go through the rubbish in those garbage cans?" The little fellow's voice trembled as though he thought that I was accusing him of stealing, but he managed to say, "Sir, I am hungry and I was hoping to find a bite of bread to eat." Of course he was fed, but I could not help thinking of that great host of men and women who devote the most of their time going around pilfering the social garbage cans of society. They are not poorly clad, their feet are well shod and their stomachs are well filled, but still they stroll about with their nose rammed down into all the filth that is to be found in human relations. I was sorry for the lad who went through the cans in search of food, but I abominate the man or woman who is forever pilfering the garbage cans of human life. It pays to keep your speech and your thinking clean.

An Interesting Letter From S. Y. Dorminey

Jemison, Ala., Rt. 1

Editor, Chilton County News:

Several years ago there was a salesman through here, I don't remember his name, but he was one of the jolliest and funniest fellows I ever saw. He could tell a joke or anything else and tell it right. He told many good things that I cannot recall much about just now. However, I remember him quoting part of a political speech he heard made in Mississippi by a man running for Governor. If I recall right it was Governor Vardaman. And as you have a goodly number of farmers on your list I am passing all I can remember of this speech on to you, if you please, for their benefit.

Now, farmers, and everybody switch on, if you like, and listen. He said, "You farmers get up in the morning at four o'clock by the alarm of a Connecticutt clock, put on a pair of overalls made in Ohio, go out and feed a Tennessee mule on Kentucky grown corn, and then you go back and sit down to breakfast on bacon and biscuit produced in the Northwest, and then you go back and put an Illinois bridle on a Tennessee mule and leave the house under the sound of the old hound dog, the only 'home raised' product on the place." Now, read on, he said, "I long to see the dear old farmers of Mississippi, when they will have corn in the corn crib, chickens in the yard, meat in the smoke house, and a tub full of lard, cider in the demijohn, and whiskey in the jug."

This salesman said when this man finished delivering his speech so forcibly to these 3,000 farmers, their hat went into the air, cheers and whoops went up, and this man took the Governors chair.

Now, Mr. Editor, you know we farmers are deprived of this latter which he mentions, but, most of us think we should have a legal right to same, if we happen to want it.

Yours very truly,
SHADE Y. DORMINEY.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By
Edson R. Waite

The Pinang Gazette tells a story about the shark, saying that it is the most useful fish in the sea—when it is dead—and that it is a great commercial asset to Australia and other sections where the festive shark roams. In explanation the editor says:

"The first portion of a shark to be dealt with is the fins. These are cut off and sold to the Chinese, who, in turn, treat them and retail them to their compatriots for use as soup—a Chinese delicacy.

"Then the oil is extracted from the carcass. This is identical with cod-liver oil, and is used medicinally. One ton of shark yields forty gallons of oil. In its crude state the oil is used for tarring and tempering steel.

"Another part of the shark is called 'stearine' and is used for soap-making. Iodine is also given in large quantities. Parts of the shark are granulated and used for cattle feed, poultry feed and fertilizer.

"The bones are boiled down into the world's stickiest and smelliest glue. The teeth are sold to curio shops and to fancy goods dealers.

"There is then a great commercial value in the shark's skin. Durable, soft, capable of taking a high polish, the leather is now used for traveling trunks, while in its undressed state it is used by lapidaries for polishing diamonds. A beautiful, soft leather, nearly like suede, is made from the intestines. The Austrailians say that in a few years boots and shoes will be made from shark-skin, this being capable of much longer and harder wear than the usual animal hides.

"The Chicago pork-packers' boast is that everything about a pig is of commercial use except the squeal. The shark has no squeal."

Welfare Worker Tells of Touching Scenes In County

The re-establishment of the child welfare program in Chilton county has come at a time when the need for service to the people of the county is most apparent. At the present time a situation exists which amounts to an emergency. We have all felt the effects of the depression—but we have not felt it so keenly as the man who has struggled hard to earn a living for his family and now faces the fact that his children are absolutely shoeless, coatless, clothesless and that he has exhausted his resources. We have not felt the real teeth of deprivation as has the man who is willing and eager to work for fifty cents a day, or a bushel of corn, or a gallon of syrup, but who searches in vain for employment.

Today, men who have heretofore been able to stand on their own feet as citizens contributing to the civic and economic progress of the county are entirely without resources. It is the endeavor of the Child Welfare Unit to help these families in such a way as to meet their immediate needs. It is imperative that they be kept from suffering, hunger and cold. At the same time, it is just as important that this help be given them in such a way as to assist them to regain their independence. It must be done in a manner which will encourage them to retain their self-reespect, and to reestablish them as solid substantial citizens.

Chilton County is utilizing its resources in caring for its people. A supply of flour and cloth appropriated by the Federal government was made available. In addition, county officials have exerted themselves to supply additional clothing which is needed.

The child welfare program, however, embraces more than relief. Relief should not be considered the thing of paramount importance in a program for the welfare of the county. Of far greater and more lasting significance are the attitudes built up in the minds of the people served, and the subtle, intangible work done in improving the general outlook and raising the standards of living. A true story told by the child welfare superintendent in a neighboring county illustrates this.

The welfare worker had discovered a one-room shanty in the most isolated section of her county. There were no windows, no floor except dirt, no stove, no chimney. The mother was recognized as dangerous due to her dullness and ignorance. For seventeen years the dirt floor had not been swept nor the house cleaned. Beds were of straw and everything in the one room was filthy. The five children had never been bathed nor had clean clothes put on. They wore the same rags until they fell off. Several months after she entered this deplorable situation the child welfare worker saw the first permanent result of teaching given this family. One of the small girls invited her in to see some peaches the child canned and remarked with intense pride, "I washed my peaches—I wish mother would wash hers." That little girl will grow up to be a far more desirable member of her community than her mother was. Her home will be clean and well kept due to the understanding, teaching and encouragement given her.

The work done in that case is a good demonstration of what a child welfare program means. Relief was given the family and good training was given the children. In trying to help people, let us try first to help them help themselves. Let us not be over-influenced by the present urgent need of our people for food and clothing. In giving temporary aid we must build toward a time when relief will not be necessary and when the child welfare program will be recognized as a program of prevention.

Department Reduces Expenses 50 Percent

Operating expenses of the Alabama Department of Agriculture have been reduced 50 per cent within the past 3 years.

Upon recommendations of Commissioner Seth P. Storrs, the Board of Agriculture, Tuesday, approved a budget for the present year of 14 per cent less than the operating expenses last year when they were 20 per cent lower than the previous year.

"This 14 per cent reduction makes a 50 per cent reduction in the operating expenses of the department since 1929" he said. "We are still operating within our income and expect to continue to do so."

The Commissioner declared that as a result of salary reductions in the department over a year ago that the present pay-roll is considerably lower than prescribed by law.

Soybeans Become An Important Crop

Talladega, Ala.—Soybeans have become a major hay crop in this section of Alabama. Under the leadership of county agents farmers are learning rapidly to save their own seed, thereby eliminating an expense which will run from $2,000 to $4,000 per county.

County Agent W. T. Coker of Talladega reports that 200 farmers are saving seed for planting, and that livestock production is becoming more successful as a result of more hay. County Agent L. M. Hollingsworth of Randolph reports results of 540 soybean hay demonstrations covering 2060 acres with an average hay yield of 1¼ tons. Farmers of Randolph are saving seed.

More than 50 per cent of the farms of Chambers County grew soybean hay in 1932, according to County Agent H. C. Heath, who says that several hundred bushels of seed were saved in the county. Twelve farmers who checked their yields in this county reported 121 bushels from 18 acres or an average yield of 7 bushels per acre.

Clay is perhaps the leader of the section in seed production, the farmers of the county having saved more than enough seed for their own use now have a considerable surplus for sale, reports F. M. White, county agent. Two thousand bushels of seed were planted in the county for 1932 and only 101 bushels of these were purchased. Systematic saving of seed under the direction of Mr. White has now resulted in a surplus for sale.

Considerable seed have been saved also in Coosa, Tallapoosa, and other counties of this section, and in Lee County, County Agent C. H. Bedingfield is expecting soybeans to become more and more important as temporary grazing for hogs.

News from Thorsby

Miss EDITH JOHNSON, Correspondent

Our little village is usually a very pleasant and friendly place in which to live. We take on honest pride in having few neighborhood quarrels or bickering of any kind. But of late there has apeared a cloud in the sky of our neighborly place. This cloud has the familiarable shape of a chicken—or perhaps a whole flock of chickens.

I have been hearing from various sources threats of what is going to happen to those chickens if they continue to devastate gardens and flower beds. The peace of the community is obviously threatened.

We once saw a picture post-card which contained these lines:

"Don't drive your neighbor's hens away;
Just make them nests and let them lay."

Very good advice to the sufferers we think but we know some that is even better for the owners,

"Don't let your hens and chickens roam.
Repair the fence and keep them home."

—A Neighbor.

Mt. Pleasant School News

Unless some plan is devised whereby we can carry on, our school will close next week, January 27. We are all working hard in an effort to complete at least one half years work. Our school work and activities have been highly gratifying this half year and we deplore the idea of having to stop in mid-year. Our earnest desire is that our authorities can find some way to lift the school situation back to its normal level.

It is with much regret that we announce that Miss Baldwin, our third and fourth grade teacher, is ill with a light attack of the flu. We hope she is back with us again soon. Miss Jessie Martin from Thorsby is supplying for her.

Mr. Johnson and Coach Glasscock motored to Birmingham last Saturday to witness the basket ball game between the University of Alabama and the world's champion Celtic team from Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Lorene Price was the week end visitor of Miss Marie Melton.

Our boys basket ball team rung up its eighth straight victory last Friday when they won over the Enterprise team 25 to 18. They have not lost a game thus far.

Mrs. Wright and Miss Bean visited the home of Miss Kathleen Smith, popular member of the Jr. 3 Class, last Tuesday evening. A nice supper was served and a real pleasant time was had by them.

An interesting debate was staged last Tuesday morning at chapel exercise. The subject was: Resolved that Country Life is More Healthful Than City Life. Leonard Burnett and Curtis Traywick upheld the affirmative side while Cecil Traywick and I. V. Jones displayed their persuasive powers in support of the negative side. The negative supporters shaded the affirmative in the presentation of their arguments, but the affirmative carried the honor of having the more logical arrangements of facts. The judges rendered their decision 3 to 2 in favor of the affirmative.

Miss Zella Mae Bell spent Wednesday night with Miss Kathleen Smith.

Culp Urges Payment Of Poll Taxes Now

To the People of Chilton County:

Your attention is directed to the payment of poll taxes, and the fact that same must be paid not later than the first day of February.

While there are no regular elections this year, it is very likely there may be some special elections as a result of action of the special session of the Legislature soon to convene.

You will, therefore, want to be qualified to vote on any proposition that may come before the people of Alabama, and in order to do so, you must pay your poll tax before the time is out on the first day of February.

The payment of property taxes is a matter that is of some concern to many people. I want to say that I shall extend every favor in my power to all persons in the collection of taxes. But I would remind you that at a certain time limit, there will be additional costs which I will have to add to all delinquent taxes, and I hope all who can possibly do so will arrange to pay their taxes before extra costs have to be added.—Respectfully, W. G. Culp, Tax Collector of Chilton County.

Evan Parrish Writes About Farm Bureau

"Rumor has reached us that we have discontinued the operation of the Cream Station formerly operated by the Farm Bureau, also, that we have advanced the price on feeds that have been sold by the Bureau for several months past.

"I beg to advise that we have done neither of the above. We are operating the Cream station on Saturday's as has been the custom of the Farm Bureau, and are operating this station and are handling feeds on the same margin of profits as the Farm Bureau have been. Of course there are fluctuations in prices on both these commodities, and we have no control over these.

"It is our aim to handle the very highest grade of Seeds to be found anywhere, and to operate on as close a margin of profit as it is possible for us to do. We are in constant touch with your County Agent, and are to cooperate with him in every way that is possible and are working toward interest of all farmers thruout the county.

"Until further notice, we will operate Cream Station on Saturday's and will allow market prices for small quantities of cream."

WILLIAM POWELL NO GREAT SHUCKS AS A DETECTIVE IN SOLVING JEWEL THEFT

While William Powell plays the role of a shrewd lawyer in his latest Warner Bros. picture "Lawyer Man," which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 24-25 his powers of deduction did not prove so keen in a theft case which happened during the making of the picture.

Ruth Bronson, script girl, reported to Powell that some valuable jewels had been stolen from her house and wanted to know if he could help her get them back without calling in the police. After working on the problem for some time he told Miss Bronson he could not figure who took them, nor why.

"Oh," was the surprising reply. "We know who took them. He left a note. It was a boy friend trying to get back at me for jilting him."

Powell decided to stick to his role of lawyer in the picture and turned the matter over to the police.

Mt. Pleasant Wins Over Enterprise 25 - 18

The Enterprise Jr. High School basket ball team suffered their first defeat of the season last Friday evening when Mt. Pleasant swept them down to a 25 to 18 defeat. The game was rather dull and listless as neither team played the ball they are capable of playing. The intense rivalry between the teams seemed to throw every player off his best form; for each wanted to get the jump on the other; this led to many mistakes, much fumbling and many uncompleted plays by both.

The Mt. Pleasant boys were in the lead during the entire game. At the 3rd quarter they were 12 points ahead. Their pass work was brilliant at times. while at other times the players seemed unable to complete thier passes which resulted in many mis-plays.

They cracked the Enterprise defense on numerous occasions, but even then, they missed many crip shots. Burnett and Curtis Traywick led the scoring for the home team. The former looped 6 points and the latter 15.

For Enterprise, James Griffin, with 5 and Guy Silas with 8, stood out as high scorers.

The two teams will meet again next Friday evening at Enterprise. Littleton from Thorsby and Glasscock from Jemison will call the game.

Highway Director Gives Information About Finances of State Department

"It is the opinion of the Highway Department that its financial condition and its obligations and duties are not generally understood by the people of Alabama. Therefore we are attempting to get before the public a few facts which are not being presented in a controversial spirit.

"In the first place a comparison of the Department income for the fiscal year ending Septembter 30. 1933 will run $800,000.00 less than for the year ending September 30, 1932 by present indication. Practically the only source of revenue the Department has is derived from 80% of the proceeds of the sale of Auto License tags and a three cent gas tax. Receipts up to now allow $1,735,000.00 from the Auto Tax and three cent gas tax is now producing $311,000.00 per month. On basis of the above figures we estimate that revenue from all sources for present fiscal year will amount to $6,162,000.00.

"Fixed charges, over which the Department has no control, and which consist of interest and sinking fund on $41,881,000.00 outstanding Highway Bonds issued in former Administrations, together with losses caused by operation of fifteen Toll Bridges built in the preceding Administration, will amount to $2,976,000 this year and $3,579,000 next yeaer. Funds then left for Highway operating purposes this year will amount to $2,800,000.00, after deducting approximately $375,000.00 Accounts payable.

"The Department is obliged to maintain 5550 miles of road, of which 4150 miles are secondary, or low type surfaces, viz., gravel, sand-clay, top soil, etc. We have never had sufficient money since this Administration went into office to place necessary materials on these roads to bring the surfaces back to normal thickness. Moreover, a large part of the machinery used in maintenance is practically worn out. Very few replacements of equipment have been made in the last four or five years and in this Administration only $280,802.44 has been spent for this purpose up to date. When one considers the original cost of this equipment was $2,015,727.00, it is readily seen that at the rate we are making replacements, twenty years would elapse before new machinery would be substituted for the old. The life of any piece of road machinery can hardly average over five years, so replacements are about one-fourth of what they should be.

"Many people have the idea that new construction work on highways they see going on over the State is financed thru State funds, or at least partially so. However, such is not the case.

"At present only four projects have allocated to them any State funds, and one of these projects was inherited from a former Administration and was under construction on Jan. 19, 1931. This project is financed with approximately one-half Federal Aid and one-half State funds and is now practically complete. The other three projects are being financed with State funds and convicts are employed on same. We have no plans for additional construction when projects underway are finished. Our finances will not permit.

"All of the other construction underway in the State, and which represented approximately $5,000,000.00 in 1931 and $5,000,000.00 in 1932-33, is entirely Government funds placed at our disposal for highway construction only. We are not permitted to use any of this Federal money for maintenance.

"Some statements of the daily press are to the effect that bills will be introduced in the next Legislature to divert some of the trust funds now used exclusively on roads by the State Highway Department. We sincerely hope this will not happen. Such procedure would spell ruin to an important branch of State Government. As we have attempted to show above, not enough funds are now in sight for anything like proper maintenance, and, as construction work is drawing to a close, we are facing a very precarious future. It does not seem possible that the people would permit more than $65,000,000.00 worth of public roads on the State and Federal system already built to go to rack and ruin. Furthermore, it would jeopardize all highway Federal Aid in Alabama.

"When the State agrees to accept Federal Aid for its highways, it signs an agreement with the Federal Government that all roads constructed in whole. or in part, with Federal funds are to be maintained all time with State money only. The penalty for non-maintenance is the discontinuance of Federal Aid by the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States.

"We also do not believe that it is generally known that a number of counties in Alabama have placed an additional gas tax for purposes other than highway construction or maintenance. According to our information at least four counties and one hundred ten cities and municipalities come in the above classification. We know of at least one town in Alabama that has applied a one cent gas tax for the purpose of taking care of unemployed.

"We have available for our use with the Federal Government in Washington at the present date $3,508,804.39 regular Federal Aid and in addition $1,137,416.19 special appropriation to Alabama for Flood Relief, making a total of $4,646,220.58, which Alabama can secure for highway construction if we match it with State funds.

"It must be evident to anyone from what is said above in this statement that the State has no money to match any part of this Federal money and present indications are that no money will be available which can be used for this purpose.

"In conclusion the Department has attempted to avoid as much as possible reference to figures and to confine ourselves to a simple statement of facts as they exist. Any statement that we make can be verified by the records on file in the Highway Department, or available for its use."

Miller Prapares For Roosevelt

Picks Committee Of Four To Arrange Reception In Montgomery Jan. 21

Montgomery, Ala.—Mayor William A. Gunter, Judge Leon McCord, W. W. Hill and Mrs. Charles A. Thigpen, were appointed by Gov. Miller to compose the official committee to look after the reception and entertainment of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt when he visits Montgomery on Saturday, Jan. 21. Details of the progarm for the visit of the distinguished guest of the city and State will be announced later.

Though the hour of the President-elect's arrival here from Muscle Shoals, where he will make his first stop in Alabama, is not definitely known, it is understood he will reach the city in the afternoon, and leave some time that night. Exact information as to the time of his arrival and departure is expected to be received by Gov. Miller within a few days.

Mr. Roosevelt will be the ninth President, prospective President or former President to visit Alabama in this State's history. The first was James Monroe, who was here in 1819, when the temporary capitol was located at Huntsville. His visit was just prior to Alabama's admission to the Union as a state.

Next was Martin Van Buren, who came to Montgomery in 1842. He arrived on Sunday and attended services at the Court Street Methodist Church, which formerly stood on the site now occupied by the new postoffice building. The following day he delivered an address before a large asemblage of citizens.

James K. Polk was here in 1849. Millard Filmore visited Alabama after he was President.

Andrew Jackson prior to becoming the Nation's chief executive was here in command of the forces that destroyed the power of the Creek Indian Nation at the battle of Horshoe Bend. Thereafter, before he became President, he revisited Alabama at various times.

Abraham Lincoln, so it is said, once visited Huntsville in connection with trial of a case in which he was interested—long before he became a national political figure.

In 1893, Grover Cleveland paid a formal visit to Montgomery, bringing with him his bride of a few weeks. Together, they attended the State fair here.

Theodore Roosevelt was here in 1912, and Warren G. Harding visited Birmingham in 1920.

Pates Chapel News

A wedding of much interest to this community occurred at Loxley Saturday was a week ago, January 7th. The couple was Miss Gertie Mae Hayes and Mr. Fred Buettner of Loxley. Miss Hayes lived in this community until a few years ago and moved to South Alabama, where she met this young man. They were married at the bride's home. Rev. Lawrence performed the ceremony. The bride has many friends and relatives of Pates Chapel, and they all wish them a long and happy life together.

—Always a Friend.

We are very glad to have our new neighbors in this community from South Alabama, Loxley. They are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Champion.

Miss Gail Gletty entertained Miss Maude Wallis and Messrs. Lee Hayes and Laurence Pitchford Sunday night.

We are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Tom Foshee back into this community.

This community wants to announce to those that know the creek about 2½ miles north from Thorsby as Pates Creek, it is no longer Pates Creek, but goes by the name of Hayes Creek. The land belongs to E. C. Hayes. Everybody take notice that it has been changed.

There is a certain man in this community that is very interested in helping Mr. E. C. Hayes get some stumps off his land. We especially invite someone to come to Hayes Creek and help get those large stumps off. We think it would be awful fun.

Thanks very much to correspondent of Pleasant Grove. The ole Chilton County News seemed at home last week with the dear ole Pleasant Grove News in its place and too I'm sorry I imposed on you while you were sick.

"POPULAR FALLACY"

"The Power Issue"

"NATION'S BUSINESS MAGAZINE has recently embarked upon a vigorous crusade against destructive fallacies which are impeding the recovery of business. In a series of advertisements, it is exploding many current misconceptions, half truths and demagogic catchwords about the problems of the day.

"One of these advertisements, captioned: 'Power Interests Are Out to Milk the Public,' has this to say:

> "'In Pullman smokers, and corner grocery stores, across luncheon tables and over back fences—in the halls of Congress and on soap box platforms, the 'power issue' is the target for glib, uniformed opinion. 'Power trust,' 'absentee ownership,' 'gigantic monopoly' thunder from the throats of speakers seeking political preferment. 'Water power, God's gift to all the people, runs forever and thus producers electricity at practically no cost.' A mistaken picture of public assets diverted to private pockets . . . familiar statements these reflecting a haze of misconception.'

"These paragraphs have a familiar ring. For here in Alabama few 'issues' have been harder ridden by aspiring office holders than the 'power question.' This horse is newly saddled every time a politician seeks to win a race.

"The present power situation here in Alabama may not be entirely perfect. Yet these significant facts are a matter of public record:

> "(1) That Alabama's power costs are among the lowest in the United States for like service.
> "(2) That Alabama's state-wide domestic rates are over 15% below the national average.
> "(3) That Alabama's state-wide domestic rates have declined over 37% in the past five years.
> "(4) That Alabamians in towns and cities served by Alabama Power Company now pay about 54% less than when power plants were municipally owned.
> "(5) That Alabama Power Company has spent over one hundred million dollars in the state in the past ten years on additions and improvements to its plants and properties besides being largely instrumental in bringing to the state plant payrolls aggregating over 20 million dollars annually.

"These are facts. Much else that has been said and written on the so-called 'power issue' is pure fallacy which will not bear the light of unprejudiced inquiry. Now is the time to build up, rather than tear down."

Beef Cattle Gain In The Black Belt

Auburn, Ala.—If the use of purebred bulls continue to increase in Alabama in future years as in 1932 it will not be long until citizens of the state will not have to go West for Western steaks, according to Dr. R. S. Sugg, extension animal husbandman at Auburn, who reports a decided improvement in Alabamo beef animals as a result of the introduction of better bulls.

During 1932 more than 350 bulls were placed with Black Belt herds as a result of county agent leadership, Dr. Sugg reported. Sixty-four of these bulls were purchased cooperatively from Missouri and Tennessee and the others were bought from Alabama breeders.

Interest in better quality beef was stimulated by county and community meetings held in all counties of the Black Belt by county agents and Dr. Sugg. As a result there was a greater demand for purebred beef bulls this year than ever before.

Low income from cotton has given a decided impetus to the production of beef, which the extension worker expects to increase, because farmers are in need of a cash enterprise to utilize lands that formerly were planted to cotton.

During the year beef producers of the Black Belt organized the Alabama Lime Belt Feeder Calf Producer's Association. The aim of the association is to assist members in an educational way in the production of feeder calves of sufficient quality to meet requirements of Corn Belt feeders.

Roosevelt To Speak In Montgomery Sat.

crowds will have no difficulty in seeing and hearing him. Flood-lights will be trained upon the Capitol portico where he will stand during his talk, and every word of his address will be heard throughout the Capitol area, through means of amplifiers that are to be especially installed.

From the Capitol he will proceed to the Executive Mansion on South Perry Street, where he and his party will be the dinner guests of Gov. and Mrs. Miller. Later in the evening he will leave for Warm Springs, Ga., for a short rest at his home there.

Hill Phones Plans

The Governor, who had not been previously notified of the extra hour of the distinguished guest's arrival here, announced yesterday he had received this information by long distance telephone from Congressman Hill, who was then at the President-elect's home in Hyde Park, N. Y.

He first talked, he said, with W. H. McIntyre, private secretary to Mr. Roosevelt, who stated he had got his plans in final, definite shape for his visit to Alabama. He then said Congressman Hill was at the Rosevelt residence and would speak to him about these plans.

Mr. Hill then came to the 'phone and advised Gov. Miller the President-elect would arrive here at 7 p.m., proceed to the Capitol from the railroad station, deliver an address there, and then go to the gubernatorial mansion to have dinner with the Governor. He said he would advise him further of the complete plans for the visit, in detail, by letter.

Congressman Hill was requested to come to Hyde Park, by Mr. Roosevelt, to talk over plans for the trip to Alabama, and was there in response to that request. The Montgomery Congressman, last Summer, extended the invitation to the President-elect to come to Alabama, during a conference with him at Warm Springs. He obtained then, a tentative acceptance, which was later made positive, and he has since been in correspondence with Mr. Roosevelt from time to time, in order to keep posted as to the time of the promised visit.

As soon as he was informed of the date of the President-elect's arrival, Gov. Miller appointed a special committee to look after his entertainment while he is here, this committee being composed of Mayor W. A. Gunter, Judge Leon McCord, W. W. Hill, and Mrs. Charles A. Thigpen. The committee will meet Monday to formulate a program, which will be made public following their conference. This program, it was stated, will be, throughout, in accordance with the wishes of the President-elect, concerning which members of the committee expect to be advised prior to the session tomorrow.

Schedule Announced for Alabama Visit

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—President-elect Roosevelt will spend an active day in Alabama Saturday beginning with an inspection of Muscle Shoals in the morning and concluding with a dinner to be tendered him and his party by Gov. B. M. Miller at Montgomery that night. The party will reach Montgomery at 7 p.m. and will leave not later than 11 p.m.

The itinerary and detailed plans for the trip were given Congressman Lister Hill Friday night, in New York, where the Alabama member was summoned for the purpose, by W. H. McIntyre, secretary to the President-elect. Congressman Hill returned to Washington Saturday.

Mr. Roosevelt will reach Washington next Thursday for a series of conferencees with congressional leaders of the Democratic party.

The special train carrying the President-elect and his party is scheduled to leave Washington at 2 p.m. Friday, on the Southern Railroad. No stops will be made until the train reaches Sheffield at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. Mr. Roosevelt will informally address the people of Sheffield from the rear of the train upon its arrival and immediately thereafter he and his official party will enter automobiles for an inspection trip covering nitrate plants Nos. One and Two and Wilson Dam. The party will drive across Wilson Dam to Florence, where from his automobile the President-elect will informally greet the people there. They then will return by automobile to Sheffield and again board the special train which is scheduled to leave at 12 o'clock noon.

To Stop in Decatur

The special train will proceed over the Southern Railway to Decatur, where it will arrive about 1:30 p.m. and there the President-elect again will appear on the observation platform to greet Alabamians informally.

Transferring to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, the special will proceed directly to Birmingham, where it is scheduled to arrive at 4:30 and to leave a few minutes thereafter, Mr. Roosevelt again extending informally greetings to those who may gather at the station.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party are scheduled to arrive at Montgomery at 7 p.m.

The special train bearing the party is scheduled to leave Montgomery not later than 11 o'clock Saturday night for Warm Springs, Ga., where Mr. Roosevelt will rest two weeks before going on a cruise for another two weeks preparatory to assuming his duties on March 4 as President of the United States.

weeks of shop work this year. As a rule shop work does not begin until about mid winter. The boys are down to business this year. They are more interested in making practical things than ever before. Especially is interest high this year in such things as plow beams, axe handles, hammer handles, and single trees. Such articles as these save them money. The boys put the irons on the single trees. The irons come off of some broken single tree at home.

The farm sled and corn shelling boxes are popular jobs with them. More interest is manifested in iron work than heretofore. The boys are doing some scrape and scooter sharpening. There is only one forge and two anvils in the shop. For that reason they cannot do the quantity of blacksmith work as they can wood work.

The wheel barrow is a popular job with the boys. They generally have an old wheel at home. The ironing board which fastens on a table with clamps is a job the boys like to make.

The purpose of the shop work is to prepare the boy to do such construction and repair work that comes up on the farm. It is the purpose of the vocational department of the Jemison High School to continue to place considerable emphasis on this type of instruction.

end to sectional jealousy; to purely selfish demands for national aid; and to anything which does not contribute to the national welfare any effort which does not help us all is misspent."

Earlier in the day, shortly after his arrival from New York, he expressed "doubt that the present Congress will enact sufficient economic legislation."

"Gov. Roosevelt," he said, "will have to take the lead, and, with a Democratic Congress, straighten out the affairs of the nation."

Tonight, he praised Roosevelt "a man who, having determined what he wants done and what he believes should be done, knows how to get it done," adding that "his will be a constructive rather than a passive administration."

His pleas for cooperation for the President-elect, he said, applied particularly to those seeking governmental office.

"As far as it lies within my power," he said, "I intend to see that those desires are carried out. There is, at the same time, a standard by which every man should expect his party and his leaders to be guided, and that is the good of the party and the nation as a whole. I know that I am justified in saying that this is the viewpoint of the President-elect. He has placed no limits, geographical or political, upon his choice of the most competent men whom he can induce to undertake the public service. He should not be embarrassed in his choice by intervening claims of friendship or to soothe purely personal ambitions. Popular government cannot take such factors into account. Successful government must not."

Meeting Saturday Ends With Little Done

resolution, which was adopted:

Whereas, we the citizens, tax payers, and school patrons of Chilton County, Alabama have met with the low prices of farm commodities, and

Whereas, such low prices have made it impossible for us to pay our taxes, and whereas our homes will sell for their taxes unless the money with which to pay them can be secured in some way, and whereas, we are unable to raise sufficient money with which to pay our children's way into the private or subscription schools, and whereas, we feel that all children are born equal and should have an equal opportunity, and

Whereas, we are the tax payers of both the educational and road funds, and whereas, the roads need to be worked and the schools need to be kept open so that our children may make their grades, now in order that our roads be worked, and that our homes may not be sold for their taxes, and that the school doors may not be closed,

Be it resolved, first, that this body of citizens, tax payers, and school patrons call upon the commissioners court of Chilton County for a referendum on the question of the court's spending thirty thousand dollars on the public roads, in Chilton County within the next sixty days for the purpose of helping those who can not pay their taxes on their homes otherwise.

Be it resolved, second, that we ask the commissioners court to make an additional appropriation of ten thousand dollars to be spent on the roads in the behalf of those who are in destitute conditions and whose families will otherwise suffer.

Be it resolved, third, that we call upon the commissioners court to pay the school teachers the sum of $1.50 per day for a term of three and one half months, which amount will be approximately $15,750.00.

Be it resolved, fourth, that if the commissioners court does not have sufficient funds with which to relieve the conditions as mentioned above, we further ask that the commissioners court give a referendum to ascertain whether the people are willing for the commissioners court to borrow fifty thousand dollars from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with which to pay the amounts as mentioned above.

Be it resolved, fifth, that we request that if said referendum be granted by the said court that it be held within the next ten days.

After the above resolution was adopted Judge Reynolds stated that he didn't believe the commissioners court could comply with the part of the resolution that called for thirty thousand dollars to be spent on the roads for the purpose of the people paying their taxes.

He stated that the court had no way of making the people use the money they had worked out on the road to pay their taxes. After these statements were made by the Judge, the first resolution was rescinded and a second was offered by Mr. W. H. Conway which reads as follows:

Resolved that this body instruct the commissioners to borrow the $50,000.00 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and that $15,750.00 be spent on the schools.

After this resolution was adopted the commissioners were called upon to express themselves in which they stated that they were willing to comply with the wishes of the people.

W. L. SANDERS, Secretary.

Merchants Of Clanton Lend Hand To Help Pilots With This Picture

The showing of "The Crash" here, January 31 and February 1, will be especially interesting from three standpoints. First, it presents Miss Chatterton in a fine dramatic role, well-suited to her talents. Second, it is a timely story, bearing upon the effects of the stock market crash. Third, it brings again to the screen here the most sensational young leading man in pictures, George Brent, who has already announced his marriage to Ruth Chatterton.

"The Crash" is said to be Miss Chatterton's finest picture. It brings a popular actress in a story that is brimming with entertainment and exciting action.

The people of this section, whether theatre-goers or not, should not miss this picture, which is being brought here by the Pilot Club of Clanton, with the cooperation of the Wadesonian Theatre.

When A Squirrel Shoots A Man, That Is News

The accidental retaliation of a wounded squirrel nearly forty years ago may yet cost Charles Williamson, who resides on the Lay Dam road near Clanton, his life.

While hunting in the hills on the Coosa river, thirty-eight years ago, a squirrel, which Mr. Williamson had wounded, accidentally fired a ball from the hunter's muzzle-loading rifle into his left hip. Mr. Williamson had leaned his gun against a log while attempting to chase the squirrel from a hollow into which it had taken refuge after being shot. The animal ran over the gun and caused it to fire.

The bullet, remaining in his leg since that time, has constantly pressed on an artery, thus impeding the circulation of the blood. Recently his leg became inflamed, and according to physicians, his chances of recovery are limited.

First National Bank Officers Elected 17th

At the annual meeting of stockholders of the First National Bank of Clanton held on January 17th, officers and directors of the Bank were re-elected as follows:

Officers: A. M. Grimsley, chairman of the Board of Directors; E. E. Upchurch, president; G. C. Walker, vice president; J. C. Page, cashier; C. O. Jones, assistant cashier.

Directors: A. M. Grimsley, E. E. Upchurch, G. C. Walker, J. C. Page, C. O. Jones.

Reports of bank officials at the annual meeting revealed that the business of the bank for the past year has been highly favorable, and prospects for the future look promising.

A dividend of twelve per cent on stock at the close of business as of December 31, 1932, was declared and paid to stockholders.

ALL SCHOOLS IN COUNTY TO CLOSE FRIDAY

To Remain Closed Unless A Favorable Action Is Taken By The Legislature

All the schools in Chilton County that have been running this term are to close their doors Friday of this week and will not reopen again this term unless there is favorable action taken by the coming session of the Legislature which opens next Tuesday.

This announcement came from the office of the superintendent this week. There are approximately forty county schools this will effect in Chilton county.

Clerical help in the office of the superintendent of education is also being reduced the first of the month, due to the shortage in funds.

Rumors are that the high school in Clanton will reopen as a private school, but nothing definite was announced about that.

This is a special meeting with Mr. L. A. Lokey, of Columbiana, who is being sent from the state department here as the visiting speaker. Special emphasis will be placed on matters concerning the disability allowance and compensation that is being received by local veterans.

Commander Woodson stated that this meeting next Thursday will take the place of the regular monthly meeting of February, which is usually held on the first Monday.

Chilton Teachers Get $14,000.00 In Salaries

A small ripple of pleasure no doubt moved over the faces of Chilton county school teachers Saturday when checks totalling approximately $14,000 were mailed to them.

However this payment constitutes only a small part of the amount due the teachers here. This amount pays them for their work in 1933 up to January 13th. It was stated that teachers in this county still have coming to them as salaries in 1932 since February of that year.

The Legislatures' Helpers Payroll

The question as to whether members of the State Legislature have been endeavoring to accomplish anything for the good of the State of Alabama during their recent sessions, is not for this newspaper to answer. We do believe that there has been considerable effort put forth to secure the passage of Bills in the Legislature, written and sponsored by men who were really trying to accomplish something that would aid the State of Alabama to emerge from its predicament.

Another session of the Legislature will convene at the state capitol on next Tuesday, January 31st, by order of the Governor who believes he is right in his opinion that he has a purpose of calling this special session that will be of help to this State. The people of Alabama, the taxpayers especially, hope that when this session of the lawmakers adjourns, there will have been something done worthwhile.

The last two Legislative sessions have cost the State of Alabama a nice sum of the taxpayers' money. Why? The first session was regular. The second was extra and called by the Governor, hoping that our representatives would cease their cross-firing and get down to business. In the past two sessions, payrolls of clerical help and other employees in the Legislature apparently had no limit.

In order that readers of this newspaper may get an idea of what goes on in the way of spending money when the Legislature is in session, this newspaper is publishing this week, a list of employees, their jobs and amounts paid to them in the regular and extra sessions.

This gross extravagance is no fault of the Governor's, as this newspaper sees it, but to stop it, the people will have to bring pressure on their Senators and Representatives. We do not place this blame on all members of this body, as we believe there are some who are aware of where this squandering of money is taking our State. Governor Miller has pleaded with these men.

To redeem themselves, this newspaper suggests that members of the Senate and Representatives conduct the coming session without pay and furnish their own clerical assistance where possible.

Alvin B. (Buster) Foshee Completes Course In Law, Receives Degree; May Locate in Clanton

One of Chilton County's own young men has returned to his native county to get the experience of real law practicing. This is Alvin B. Foshee, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Foshee, who reside south of Clanton, and a family well known throughout the county.

Alvin returned to Clanton this week after four and a half years of hard work and study at the University of Alabama, during which time he completed his L. L. D. degree last Saturday.

There were only six law students at the University who received their degree in law Saturday, and Alvin was one of these six hard working young men. He is a graduate of the Chilton County High School, where he received his diploma in 1928, to which was attached many honors of school work, bestowed upon him through his interest in his work and his school. His desire to use every hour as profitably as possible in studying, did not stop when he was handed his high school diploma in 1928, but followed him through the University, where he was to be found among those making the highest of grades.

Alvin is better known to his hosts of friends over Chilton county as "Buster." Perhaps if someone mentioned the name of Alvin Foshee, he would not be readily known. But just say "Buster Foshee" and most anyone here would picture this quiet, unassuming young man who is now ready to dig into the laws of our country as his chosen profession. He was born and reared in this county and is a cousin of our Dr. Clyde H. Foshee, who has risen high in the medical world.

Just where "Buster" will locate his office is not known by this writer at this time, but we hope that it will not be long until we shall see the sign hanging in some prominent place, reading "Alvin B. Foshee, Attorney-at-Law."

They state they will employ only white workers and guarantee their work. Both these men are well known throughout the county. Mr. Powell has had several years experience in operating a pressing and cleaning shop.

Operetta Will Be Presented By Club

The popular and entertaining operetta "The Gypsy Rover" is to be presented again in Clanton at the high school auditorium by the Chilton County High School Glee Club, on Friday night, January 27th, at seven-thirty o'clock.

This operetta was presented here sometime ago, and received much applause by those who saw it. Due to inclement weather on the night of its first presentation, it was decided to stage it again.

Characters are composed of students of the high school and members of the school Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Mary Ellis. It is a three-act musical comedy, full of laughter, and songs, with a most attractive chorus. Remember the date is Friday night of this week. Admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents.

FINAL PLANS ARE MADE FOR FARMERS LOANS

County Agt. Says His Office To Be Ready To Take Applications Soon

At a committee meeting at County Agent Stapp's office Monday evening, instructions relative to making loans were discussed with members of the County Loan Committee and representatives of The First National Bank, Peoples Savings Bank, and the Bank of Maplesville. The representatives of these banks stated that they expect to take care of their regular customers as in the past.

Mr. Stapp states that his office will be ready to receive applications for loans next week. He further states that the loans through the Agricultural Credit Bank in Montgomery have to be secured.

The Seed Loan through which farmers secured loans last year is not available as yet. Possibly Congress will provide loans through the Seed Loan Act as was done last year. Mr. Stapp points out the fact that the seed loan through which we operated last year considered only applicants who were unable to get loans elsewhere, but that the Agricultural Credit Corporation, through which we are ready to operate now, will not loan to people who will not be able to get help elsewhere as the Agricultural Credit Corporation requires full security on all loans.

Watts Hat Shoppe Occupies New Home

Meeting the need of a larger building and more floor space, the popular Watts Hat Shoppe is now occupying a new home. This change took place the latter part of last week, and the new location is being made most attractive.

Miss Callie Watts, proprietor of this exclusive ladies ready-to-wear store stated to a representative of the News that she is expecting a shipment of goods right away to enlarge her already fine stock. She also stated she is showing new Spring hats now.

The new location of this shop is on main street now, next door to the Spigener Funeral Home, across the street from the A & P Grocery Store. Miss Callie extends a cordial invitation to the ladies of this section to visit her new place of business.

Jemison Boys Do Work In Orchards

A number of the vocational students in the Jemison High School have a home orchard as one of their projects. Their first job was the treating of the trees for peach tree borer. Some treated their trees with crystal gas while others dug them out with a knife. Next came the task of pruning the orchards. They are all through with the pruning and are now in the midst of spraying. They are spraying for San Jose scale using oil emulsion.

A few of the boys are planting new orchards. So are several evening school farmers.

The boys in the horticultural class have done considerable grape pruning this year. Each boy has made grape cuttings. They have also worked with scuppernongs, thinning out the vines and repairing or making new frames.

THOUSANDS SEE ROOSEVELT IN CAPITAL CITY

Democratic President - Elect Speaks Highly Of Need For Muscle Shoals

By Ralph E. Hurst
B'ham News-Age-Herald Staff Writer

Montgomery, Ala.—A gigantic development program centering about Muscle Shoals but to embrace the area "from the mountains of Virginia to the Ohio and Gulf" was envisioned here Saturday night by President-Elect Roosevelt in an address to citizens of the state capital. The huge development program will embrace industry, agriculture, reforestation and flood control.

"Just as soon as we can get back in Washington we are going to do something useful, something definite about Muscle Shoals." Mr. Roosevelt declared as the huge welcoming crowd cheered.

Mr. Roosevelt's address closed his public appearances in Alabama after a day spent in inspecting the $150,000,000 government development at the Shoals and rear platform appearances at Decatur and Birmingham.

Mounting a platform erected over the star on the Capitol portico which marks the spot where Jefferson Davis took the oath as president of the Southern Confederacy, the president-elect pledged his every effort to put "the great giant" to work after declaring he had found a development twice as big as he imagined Muscle Shoals to be."

At conclusion of his talk, the next chief executive of the United States went with Gov. Miller to the state executive mansion for an informal dinner and then went aboard his train early. He left at 4:45 a.m. for Warm Springs, Ga., with the business of selecting his cabinet his next problem.

In his address Mr. Roosevelt declared that "Muscle Shoals will give us an opportunity to accomplish a great purpose for the whole nation It will set an example that will be expanded to affect every section.

A great welcome was extended Mr. Roosevelt by thousands of Alabamaians who had gathered in Montgomery where his train arrived at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Greeted by an official committee, Mr. Roosevelt went from his train to a waiting automobile and moved through the city and up historic Dexter Avenue

New Store Opened In South Clanton

South Clanton has taken on some new life and new business, since the reopening of one of its main business houses recently. The new place of business is located in the stand formerly occupied by Van Smith's store, and is known as the South Clanton Cash Store.

Interested in this business is one of the most widely known merchants of that settlement, R. W. Lowe, who also operates a grocery and dry goods business there.

In this issue of the News will be found an opening announcement of the South Clanton Cash Store. The front of and interior of the building has been remodeled, gasoline and motor oil pumps installed, goods displayed and plenty of clerks to handle the trade. They will carry a full line of groceries, feed stuffs and some dry goods. Buying in large quantities and selling for cash.

This addition to South Clanton adds considerably to the business life of the community, and shows a spirit of coming back to normal times.

Reduce Waste And Suffering

The American people customarily burn up about $500,000,000 worth of property each year. About 10,000 human lives are included. This is a tragic burden on every community. Each fire adds to the toll in lost jobs, lost business opportunities, human sorrow and suffering.

In depressed times, when jobs are at a premium and taxation at a maximum, and when the nation sorely needs every business, we still burn up about $500,000,000 worth of property annually. During the first ten months of 1932, fire loss was approximately $5,000,000 greater than in 1931, a year in which the waste was practically the same as in the preceding three or four years.

If fire waste works a great hardship in normal times, what is its effect in an era of depression? There can be no question but that the destruction of homes, factories and places of business is not only an obstacle in the way of recovery, but an abetter of more hard times. The indirect cost of fire is always the most important. A factory burns—men are thrown out of work, hardship, distress and poverty result

Fire prevention is both an obligation and a duty that the citizen owes to himself, to his community and to the nation. Nearly every fire is caused by carelessness—because someone neglected to give the little time and the little money that would have been necessary to eliminate a hazard Do your bit in the cause of fire prevention and save human suffering.

The War And High Taxes

In the Boston News Bureau, Sherwin C. Badger explodes the theory that the tremendous increase in per capita federal government outlay is primarily the result of war..

If the war years are omitted entirely, and all war costs —such as interest and sinking fund payments arising from war borrowings, veterans' expenses, etc.—are deducted, the cost of government in 1932 was $22 per capita—three times pre-war cost. If Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds and Federal Land Bank subscriptions are included, the cost was $29.12—nearly four times pre-war expenditures.

What happened was that the cost of government was immensely increased during the boom years, when gigantic revenues accrued from income and similar capital taxes. Governmental activities of all kinds were broadened; new departments and bureaus came into existence by the hundred; thousands of new employes were given places on the government payroll. Now income taxes have lost their potency in producing revenue, and government is attempting the impossible—to operate on a boom standard at a time when the national income of its people is the smallest in a great many years.

When times change for the worse, businesses and individuals make necessary changes to compensate—they adjust outgo to income. Government must do precisely the same thing if the deficit is to be conquered, the budget balanced, the national credit maintained and the taxpayers saved from ruin.

Is American Initiative And Enterprise A Myth?

The people of the United States have a reputation for initiative and enterprise. They start things and they finish them.

They have a chance now to demonstrate their ability as never before.

Everyone is waiting for "business to pick up." But business won't pick up of its own accord. It will pick up when the desire and the determination to do something rises again in our national consciousness.

There are about 25 or 30 million families in the United States. This means that there are some 30 million men who are actual producers.

Payrolls depend on construction activity—the building and upkeep of homes, factories and enterprises which consume every imaginable product.

Building has been going down steadily for the past several years until it has become almost stagnant. Thousands of structures are deteriorating because of lack of repairs, paint, rotting foundations, leaky plumbing, worn out heating plants, crumbling chimneys and a thousand and one other things which have been let go.

Never in years could repair work or new construction be done as cheaply as today.

There are millions of individuals and industries in this country that have savings and are well able to carry on necessary improvements now.

Starting a few million jobs, varying in amounts from ten dollars to a few thousand dollars each, would release on avalanche of money and start the wheels of industry.

Employment would increase; our nation would take heart and commerce and industry would slowly regain a normal stride.

Before long this improvement would be reflected in other nations.

No amount of legislation or political panaceas involving increased taxation and greater public burdens, can do a fraction of the good that the people can do for themselves by exercising our much prized American initiative and enterprise.

Do it now! Investment and employment are cheaper than charity!

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Last week this column agreed to carry items about what the readers of this newspaper have they want to trade for something else. Well, I got one reply to that invitation. Here it is:

Mr. R. H. Gandy, of Maplesville, Ala., Route 2, states in a letter to this column, that he has a good milk cow he will trade for a good second-hand, one-horse wagon, or some ribbon cane syrup, or corn or hogs.

Now folks, there's a good trade for you. You can get a good cow in exchange for a good wagon, some corn, hogs or syrup. See how this is going to work out? If you have anything you want to trade, just address a letter to this column, in care of this newspaper and I'll see that it is printed. Mr. Gandy says the good part about this is that it don't cost you anything. Nope, I ain't charging anything for this service to my readers. Send in your list of things you want to trade.

The Ed, the assistant Ed, the assistant to the assistant Ed, the printers devil and in fact the whole darn force of the News office motored down to Montgomery Saturday night to see President-elect Roosevelt. I intended to go, but for some reason the gang went off and left me while I was powdering my nose or something. Yep, they say they got a good look at Mr. Roosevelt, heard his address and came back bigger Democrats than ever, and proud of it. They tell me that there sure was a mob of people lined up and down the streets Saturday night in the Capital City.

There is a man in Clanton who says he is certainly a firm believer that the people around here are reading the Chilton County News. He put a little classified ad in the News last week and is being swamped with replies, inquiries and things about that ad. Yep, if you ask me, ads in the News get results.

How well acquainted are you with this term "Technocracy"? I been kind of reading up on it, and can't get any sense out of the whole thing. Seems to me like they ought to spell it with a "z" — it all looks kind of crazy to me. However, I'm still trying to figure it out, and when I do, you can just look for a full explanation of it from me. About the only thing I can get out of it is that it has something to do with going off the gold standard and having electricity for the basis of our money value, or something.

I see in Mr. Roosevelt's speech at Montgomery that he had a whole lot to say about Muscle Shoals and getting it back in harness. Well, if he does that, he will have done more than any president we've had in many years. Think how much it will mean to Alabama and the South if that big plant is put to work making fertilizer. If Roosevelt gets that plant back to running, it will show that he still has "The Forgotten Man" in mind and is thinking of the South.

Reedie Taylor, manager of the Chicago Sales Company, is getting down to brass tacks these days about selling goods, and advertising. He says he means business about thi business of business and elling. Are you watching his ads in the News?

And he ain't the only merchant who says he means business about this business of business. Mr. Maurice Lande, proprietor of The Leader Store, is rolling along in smiles on account of the good business he has been enjoying lately. And are you reading his ads in the News each week?

I hear a lot of talk about this bankruptcy business of the Alabama Mills Company. Seems like several people have their own ideas about it, while others are taking the statement from the officials of the company. I wouldn't be a bit surprised if some of the officials hadn't ought to be a little more explicit, or something about it.

In the News this week I see that there is published a list of employees in the State Legislature. Did you ever see such extravagance? Count up the number of people listed as doorkeepers and assistant doorkeepers and you'd be surprised to know how many doors there are at the capitol. I asked the Ed why he was publishing this. Of course he looked at me like it was none of my business, but stated that he was not blaming the Governor with this extravagance, believing that Governor Miller has been pleading with our lawmakers to cut out this business of putting so many people on the payrolls. But that list does make some interesting reading matter, anyway.

Was talking to the deputy sheriff Norris the other day, and he said that so far hasn't anyone given him any cigars or anything to get him to tell them some stories. So I tells him that maybe they see he has been so busy lately, since last week's paper, they don't want to bother him. Last time I saw him he was snatching down the street talking to himself about some executions or something. When a fellow gets to talking to himself, it's time to keep an eye on him. I spoke to Norris about that, and he said not to worry, that he had so much on his mind, he had to keep some in his mouth so as to remember it all. Not a bad idea at that, Norris.

I see by the papers that some bird has been setting fire to houses in Goodwater. Seems like he just hit some high places and stuck a match to the houses. Boy, what will happen to that fellow when they catch him.

This Rev. J. T. Nelson, the man who is one hundred years old, is some corking good fellow. Truly a remarkable man. They tell me he certainly entertained the Kiwanis Club last Thursday night with interesting tales about the War Between the States. I wouldn't mind living to be one hundred years old if I could be as active as Rev. Nelson is at that age. But I 'spect when I get to be that old, I be "dust to dust, and ashes to ashes," or something.

And I see that we have a new lady here as Welfare Superintendent. Haven't had a good look at her yet, but just as soon as I can get round up to the courthouse I want to get acquainted with her. I hope she likes Clanton and Chilton county.

Did you read that story in the News this week about the squirrel shooting the man? Sounds kind of daffy don't it? But the fellow who wrote the story says it is authentic, or something, and knowing him to be usually a truthful sort of fellow, I guess I'll have to believe him. You read the story and draw your own conclusions, or something.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

—o—

I was sitting in my car waiting for a friend. Just across the street I saw two roosters go together. Each one drew his sword and went into the conflict. They fought right and left, up and down, hip and thigh. They pecked with their bills and dug with their spurs. As I watched the battle my mind started an inquiry as to what caused the fight. They may have been fighting over a worm, and then it could have been over some beautiful feathered dame on the yard. They may have been jalous of each other's popularity and then it could have just been pure cussedness on the part of each rooster. Whatever it was it could not have been worthy of their tattered feathers and bleeding heads. So far as I could see they were fighting like tigers over nothing. That is the way of most fights, not only between roosters, but between men and women as well. It looks mighty simple to see folks fighting over nothing.

My car was passing in front of several houses located on the highway. I noticed that the inmates of the homes had come into the yard and that they were all looking up at something in the sky. Glancing up I saw a large plane pushing its way high up in the air. Just then a lad of a few summers came dashing out of a door and ran out to the yard gate and then lifted his sling shot and let a stone fly away at the plane. The plane was in no danger, but the boy thought that he would likely bring it down. The boy with his sling shot does not endanger the ship in the sky. Many a time have I seen men high up in the sky of life, pushing their way on to success and service, and yet they were being fired upon by the carping critics. The stones of jealousy, enmity, hatred, were being hurled at them, but they were in no danger. It looks foolish to try and bring down a ship out of the air with a sling shot. It looks foolish for a tadpole to tackle a whale.

In South East Alabama there was a church that had an unruly member. The Sister sang in the choir, but there was objections because of a shadow on her character. The pastor appointed three of his leading men to make investigation to see if a trial was necessary. The men got together after service and went down to the church spring to talk the matter over among themselves. After much discussion the oldest man on the committee of investigation piped out with this confession, "Fellows, I can not afford to serve on this committee for I am just as guilty as rumors say this woman is, and if I bring charges against her, then some one will bring charges against me." Then the next oldest man on the committee chimed in, "That is my fix exactly and I am going to resign." Two out of a committee of three confessed themselves guilty. I rather think that is the reason why we do not have many church trials in these modern times—we can not find enough good folks to try the bad folks. Christ looked the Pharisees in the face and said, "Let him that is without sin among you, cast the first stone."

Not many nights ago a father sat on the other side of my desk and related to me a sad story. He had only one son. He loved that boy and gave him all that a father knew to give. Early in life the lad selected bad company and before he was twenty he was wise in the ways of wickedness. Soon he was before the courts. In a short time he was in stripes. Having political pull the father managed to get his son out of prison. Other charges were held against him and he dodged around for many years, and all the time going from bad to worse. The father opened his heart as he said, "Pastor, my boy is gone. He is now lined up with the underworld and is a notorious rum runner. I have been forced to give him up and I know not where he is. I do not know whether he is dead or alive. I do not know whether he is at liberty, or in stripes." Ten years ago the hair on that father's head was as black as the feathers on the back of a crow, but now his hair is as white as snow. There are more ways than one to commit murder.

Just before Christmas I was passing in front of a certain store. The show windows were large and long and they were crowded full of attractive merchandise. Admiring the display I decided to walk in at the door and see the stock of goods on the inside. To my astonishment there was nothing on the shelves. The merchant had everything on display and nothing much to sell. He carried his stock in the show window. I have seen lots of folks who were like that merchant—they carry themselves in the show window. Looking at them on display the conclusion is reached that they are really somewhat. On close inspection their whole stock of trade is nothing but display. There is keen disappointment when we find that all there is to some folks is what we see on display. Blessed is that individual who carries a stock of real values behind his show window.

Young Men's S. S. Class Organized Sunday, 22

For the past several weeks a number of young men have been working to organize a strictly young men's class in the Clanton Methodist church. A survey was made and it disclosed that there are approximately twenty persons of the desired age, who do not belong to other classes. Invitations were sent out which met with an enthusiastic response. Last Sunday the class held its first regular meeting and elected officers. Jim Roberts was chosen President of the class, Howard Mahaffey, vice-president, and John VanDerveer, secretary. Vernie Teel was selected as teacher. Members of this class invite the young men of Clanton, who are not now attending Sunday school somewhere else, to join in with them, for they all say that they're going to put this undertaking over in a big way.

In this issue of the News, under the Classified Ad, column, will be found an ad from Dr. C. N. Parnell, prominent resident and physician of Maplesville, Alabama.

Dr. Parnell states that he wishes to sell his vast property holdings, which includes 1390 acres of land in Chilton County, on which there are a large number of houses, barns and other farm buildings. Dr. Parnell has placed a reasonable price on this property, basing this on the assessment of his land by the Board of Review. Those who might be interested in this can get in touch with Dr. Parnell at Maplesville, where he has made his home for a number of years.

News from Thorsby

Miss EDITH JOHNSON, Correspondent

A sad happening in Thorsby last week was the death of Mrs. Louis Howard at her home on Friday night, January 20. Mrs. Howard had not been well for nearly a year, but was confined to her bed only a week before her death. She was born in Michigan and came to Thorsby twenty-four years ago where she has made many friends and was well thought of by Thorsby people. She died at the age of fifty-six.

Mrs. Howard is survived by her husband, who will continue to make his home in Thorsby, her son, Edward, two brothers in Michigan and a brother in St. Louis, Mo. The brothers were not able to attend the funeral. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon, January 21st, at the home and city cemetery, the officiating clergyman being Father O'Neal of Birmingham and Martin & Sons had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The following is a clipping sent by Mrs. S. C. Wood from Texas to one of her Thorsby friends: "Dr. S. C. Wood had always heard of 'fisherman's luck' and the 'big one got away,' but had never experienced such an occasion until last Sunday afternoon. The big one did get away—almost—and Dr. Wood knows that he had plenty of luck. While fishing with Gene Kincaid and Hance Smyth in the Nueces river west of Uvalde, Dr. Wood hooked a dandy. After playing the fish about for several minutes, he attempted to land the bass and his line broke. The bass, apparently exhausted, settled to the bottom of the river, in about 8 inches of water. Almost before the other occupants of the boat realized what had happened, Dr. Wood noticed the fish lying motionless with its mouth open. He quickly made a grab for the fish and thrust his hand into the huge mouth and brought the fish into the boat.

"The bass weighed 6 pounds 9 ounces one ounce less than the championship bass caught by Bob Smith some months ago. In addition, the three men caught three other bass, the combined weight of the four fish being 17 pounds and 9 ounces."

Mrs. Anna Phalin of Tuscaloosa arrived in Thorsby Thursday night to see Mrs. Lewis Howard and since her death will remain here a while to take care of her brother, Mr. Lewis Howard.

Thorsby Institute News

The Ladies Guild of Thorsby recently made a contribution of $50 to the Institute for Student Aid and the Lutheran Ladies Aid gave $15 for the same purpose. These gifts are very much appreciated. The school depends largely for its support on donations as the small tuition charged cannot meet the cost of running the school. Several this year are having to work their way. This does not mean cash to the school, and teachers' salaries and various bills must be met by cash. Perhaps others may be interested to make gifts of money or provisions. Some provisions may be applied on account.

The Helen Keller Literary Society gave one of the best program of the year on Saturday night. Members of Mr. Maddox's French class furnished the program. Devotions in French were given by Conway Thornburgh. A paper, "France and the French" was written and read by Lois Thompson. Several French songs were sung. The main part of the program was the play "La Belle et Le Bete" or The Beauty and the Beast. A synopsis of the play was given in English by Mary Sue Porter. Even if people did not know French they could follow the play from having heard the plot and from the action.

The leading parts were well taken by Gladys Smith, the Beauty; Brady Billingsley, the Beast, and Leo Spivey, the Beauty's father.

The dances under the direction of the Good Fairy, Edna Lee Wilder, added to the beauty of the scene. Most of the six scenes were laid in a very attractive garden.

Dr. Wm. J. Campbell, President of Atlanta Seminary Foundation affiliated with Vanderbilt University, gave a very interesting and helpful talk at chapel Monday.

Thursday and Friday come Semester examinations. The second semester begins January 30. Any one wishing to enter the second semester should call at the Institute office soon.

This is a list of the unnecessary and inexperienced stenographers, pages and other assistants employed by the House and Senate at the last special and regular sessions of the Legislature. This paper has but one purpose in publishing the following names: It wishes to arouse public opinion against a repetition of this unconscionable waste and extravagance at the special session opening January 31. Let Alabamians be certain that unless public opinion does come to the rescue, the sordid performance will be repeated.. Fight extravagance! Protest unnecessary employment by the legislature!

Side Quit Hurting, Got Stronger, Well; CARDUI Helped Her

WOMEN! Get rid of the handicaps of a weak, debilitated condition with the assistance of Cardui. Mrs. R. L. West, of Huntsville, Ala., writes: "I was weak and run-down. I had a pain in my side, and I kept losing weight. I grew nervous over my condition — this was unusual for me, for I am very cheerful when I am well and don't easily get nervous. I knew I ought to take something. My aunt told me I ought to try Cardui, which I did. I began to feel better. I kept it up until I had taken three or four bottles. My side quit hurting and I was soon feeling strong and well."

Cardui is sold at drug stores here.

Thousands See Roosevelt In Capital City, Saturday

to the Capitol under escort of 600 National guardsmen, soldiers from Maxwell Field, and policemen.

Alabamians were massed deep along each side of the route and wild cheers broke forth to keep pace Mr. Roosevelt's automobile as the procession moved towards Goat Hill and the State House. It was Mr. Roosevelt's first visit to the state's capital and, as he explained in Birmingham, he selected the capital because he could not visit every city in Alabama.

At the capitol Mr. Roosevelt mounted a stand beside the star that marks the historic spot where Jefferson Davis assumed the presidency of the Confederate states.

Moving along Commerce Street to the square, the procession turned in to Dexter between the greatest mass of people Mr. Roosevelt had encountered on his visit to Alabama.

National Guardsmen formed a line on each side to hold back the cheering populace.

Floodlights lit the capitol lawn where only a small part of the huge throng could find standing room.

"Alabama will remember this day with peculiar and pardonable pride," Gov. Miller said in introducing Mr. Roosevelt. "Within Alabama's borders, in this historic place, on the sacred spot, is present this evening the most distinguished citizen of America.

"We have with us today the man who first found and remembered the forgotten man of the United States. Woodrow Wilson, the great Democratic president, built the nitrate plants and Wilson Dam 15 years ago. The Republican party and president lost them. But Franklin D. Roosevelt found them today and will make these great giants go to work for the citizens of this nation."

Gov. Roosevelt began his speech by saying:

"My fellow neighbors of Alabama:

"This meeting tonight is a fitting climax to one of the most interesting days I have ever spent. It is a privilege to stand in this sacred spot where a great American took the oath of office as president of the Confederacy.

"I have been thinking as I passed through your state how little the younger generation of the South and North know of the causes and effects brought about by the War Between the States.

"I am not so old, yet even I can remember the causes for that war. I can remember as a small boy that two very distinguished gentlemen, intimately connected with the navy of the Confederacy, came to New York to visit the Roosevelt family. And because the great men fought in the navy of the Confederacy, there was a Roosevelt that regarded them as honored."

He said Muscle Shoals would afford an opportunity for millions yet unborn to have a better place in which to live.

Today has been a red letter day, he declared, and what was seen by those present means that they in Washington are going to start something practical.

"My one regret in coming here is that it is gone and that I shall not have the opportunity tonight of seeing this wonderful old city. Give me the privilege of coming back when the light is on and the sun is shining.

"Remember that I always will regard this as a red letter day because I have had the opportunity to come here and stand where Jefferson Davis once stood."

"Now the War Between the States is not only over but here in the birthplace of the Confederacy I believe I can say and be rightfully understood in the North and the South and the East and the West that that war has done more than anything else to bind the nation in a united cause. And I am particularly happy as one about to occupy the White House to have the privilege of seeing the first White House at your capitol. This morning early I saw with my own eyes what I have been waiting to see ever since I served in Washington as a lieutenant of that great Democrat and American, Woodrow Wilson.

"I was not only impressed with the size and operation of Muscle Shoals but it was twice as big as I have had any conception of. I think we were all distressed by the fact that so much of that great plant has been lying all these years in idleness."

Mr. Roosevelt said he had two objects—first, putting Muscle Shoals to work, and, second, a program of development taking in all of that magnificent valley from the hills of Virginia to the gulf.

"Muscle Shoals gives us the opportunity to accomplish much for the people of many states and for the whole nation. We have the opportunity of planting, not for ourselves alone, but for generations to come."

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Roosevelt received congratulations of those who occupied the stand with him, and then, turning, walked into the main lobby of the capitol and out the rear to his automobile which carried him to the governor's mansion.

At the mansion was another huge assembly with a band playing "Dixie," "Anchors Aweigh," and "Happy Days."

The reception at the mansion was strictly informal as was the dinner. Mr. Roosevelt sat at the head of the table with his daughter, the governor and Mrs. Miller.

Mr. Roosevelt returned to his train after the dinner for an early retiral. His train was to leave before dawn for Warm Springs with the president.

Kiwanians Hear Of War Between States

One of the most entertaining and enjoyable programs so far this year, was enjoyed last Thursday night by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton.

The club had as its guests the Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Nelson and Gen. J. W. E. Gulledge. The program was in honor of the birthday of General Robert E. Lee, whose birthday was last Thursday.

Gen. Gulledge was asked to tell of some of his experiences during the War Between the States, and spoke briefly on this subject.

The Rev. Nelson, despite his one hundred years of age, recalled events during his services as a Confederate soldier in a most clear-cut manner, mixing humor with his talk. Being a witness to the surrender of General Lee to General Grant, his story of this was most interesting. He began when he first entered the war and brought his story up to the time he returned to his home.

The club will hold its regular weekly meeting tonight at the Exchange Hotel.

MOBILESENATOR IS FOR INCOME TAX IN STATE

Asks People To Cooperate With Governor In Paying Debts

Following are excerpts from a letter from Senator John Craft, of Mobile, regarding the proposed income tax in Alabama:

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 19, 1933.

Editor, the News,
Clanton, Ala.

"Dear Sir:

"I am for the Income Tax. Why? Governor Miller inherited an empty treasury, a debt of from Fifteen to Twenty Million Dollars, and legislation over which he had no control, and the expenses of the State were greater than its income. The Governor is anxious to preserve the credit of the State, to reduce the cost of government, and I believe that is right, hence, I am for that policy.

"Only 3% of the people of Alabama are paying income taxes, many of them scarcely pay any ad valorem taxes to support the Government of the State, Cities and Counties. 97% of the tax payers of Alabama, their property is tagged, their farms, lands, homes. Their stocks of goods and merchandise are burdened with licenses exacted by the State, Cities and Counties, and intangible franchise taxes.

"I regret that the majority of the

After a month or so of more or less interruption on account of rainy and cold weather, the Central Singing Society anticipates making up some of the lost time when it meets on regular schedule at Chestnut Creek, Cooper, next Sunday afternoon. Singing will begin promptly at two o'clock and the singers of this section of the county are invited and urged to be present by that hour. It is hoped that if any interest in the singing has temporarily dropped that it will be regained in next Sunday afternoon's meeting. So, everybody make an effort to attend at Cooper. No one need fear of failing to get a seat, because there is plenty of room down there.

PILOT CLUB PICTURE FOR NEXT WEEK

Picture Here Last Tuesday & Wednesday Declared A Huge Success

The Pilot Club of Clanton will repeat its successful effort to raise funds again next Tuesday and Wednesday, when it will sponsor the picture "Three On A Match" at the Wadesonian Theatre

The Pilot Club sponsored the picture "The Crash" which was shown here Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, and it was declared a success in every way. A picture of the highest type, it drew a crowd at both showings.

On next Tuesday and Wednesday nights the club is also being assisted by business houses of Clanton. A list of those cooperating on this show are listed in this article.

The contrasting stories of the lives of three young girls when their paths converge to create a series of highly dramatic events, is the unique material used by writers Kubec Glasmon, John Bright and Lucien Hubbard for the plot of "Three On A Match," the First National picture which comes next week to the Wadesonian Theatre.

Due to the importance of these three feminine characters in the story, First National has placed in these roles their three most important and popular leading ladies, Ann Dvorak, Joan Blondell and Bette Davis. With the addition of Warren William to the leading male part, this four star arrangement makes the picture one of the outstanding events in the cinema year.

The story is one of Fate's queer tricks. Three young girls graduate from public school together, meet after a ten-year lapse, during which one of them has become the wife of a wealthy and influential lawyer, another a hard-working stenographer, and the other, a hoydenish blonde, is a graduate of a reform school and a wise-cracking show girl.

LOCAL BILL FOR ELECTION OF CO. SUPT.

Provides For Superintendent Of Education Of Chilton To Be Elected

An attempt will be made in the present extra session of the Legislature of Alabama, which convened last Tuesday, the passage of a Bill providing for the election of the Superintendent of Education of Chilton county by the people. Indications are that the Bill will be passed unmolested, information states.

This matter was brought up in this county sometime ago and with the endorsement of the Representative from the county, it was thought would be passed. However, it failed to pass and with a few misunderstandings eliminated, everything points to success of the Bill this time.

The Bill calls for the Superintendent of Education of Chilton County to be elected at the same time other county officials are elected and in the same manner. It also sets out sperifir qualifications of the candidates for the office. The Bill is being published elsewhere in this issue of the News, headed "Notice Of Local Bill."

4-H CLUB WORK IN CHILTON WILL BE PUSHED THIS YEAR

County Agent Outlines Work Among Boys In Organization. Present Clubs Report A Growing Interest; Meeting Places And Dates Set

The following is a letter being mailed out to the white farmers of Chilton County relative to 4-H Club work to be carried on by Mr. Stapp this year.

He states that he had 425 club members last year, and that there should be seven hundred or eight hundred this year. By club members, he means farm boys who select projects and study the best and most economical methods for successful operations of his project. Attention is called to the meeting dates for February at which time Mr. Stapp will organize active 4-H Clubs.

To White Boxholders

Dear Sir:

Would you like for your boy to do 4-H Club work in 1933? The object of club work is to prepare boys for better life. Read the enclosed card.

If you have a boy and would like for him to be a member of the 4-H Club, let him attend one of the meetings as scheduled on the back of this letter.

We had twenty-two organized clubs last year, with officers and leaders. Last year the Kiwanis Club of Clanton offered a silver loving cup to the club making the best record and reporting same. The cup was won by Concord Club. Verbena Club pushed pretty close. The cup and watches will be awarded at the club rally in March or April. The following is a part of Concord Club's report of activities:

"We have averaged holding a meeting once a month for the entire year and all of the meetings were very good. We had discussions on various subjects each time. There was an average attendance of about two-thirds of the membership at each meeting.

"We have put on three plays during the year, raising a total amount of $30.20. Out of this we have given one

Can The Business Men And Farmers Stop This ?

(AN EDITORIAL)

A stupendous and possibly tragic condition is facing Clanton and every other town in Chilton County. It is a condition being brought on by people who make their home in the county, people who own property here, people who make their livelihood here, each in turn depending in a large way on the other person for this livelihood.

This newspaper does not wish to dress this alarming condition up so that it would frighten the most optimistic person, scare away would-be-investors in Chilton property, or cause any dissatisfaction. The dissatisfaction is prevailing now, and there is nothing to be gained by dodging or trying to fool one's self or someone else.

This condition we speak of is simple. So simple in fact that it could be remedied now. It is simply the growing inclination of the people of Chilton county to purchase goods away from home. Perhaps ordinarily a person would not think of this condition as being as alarming and stupendous as we attempt to paint it. But a glance into the business sections of the towns of the county will give concrete proof that we are right.

We will take for an illustration, the town of Clanton, and this will apply to every town or settlement in the county. Clanton merchants open the doors of their places of business each morning except Sunday. Their stores are stocked with goods equal to any town the size of Clanton or even larger. Their prices are at a level whereby they can pay expenses and live, and yet there is a class of people in Clanton who will go to the larger cities to do their buying, whether it be a pair of shoes or a suit of clothes. Why? And very few of them could answer that.

One lady in Clanton was heard not long ago to tell another, "Why don't you go to Birmingham and buy it?" That lady and her husband own property in Clanton. They make this their home, attend church here, and yet we wonder if this lady had thought that they depend on Clanton for their livelihood. That her husband must sell goods in Clanton to meet his expenses, and if the merchant in Clanton can't sell these goods, it acts as a boomerang to her.

Vacant buildings in the business section of Clanton? Yes, there are about sixteen of them, and indications are that there will be more. Why? Simply because these concerns occupying these buildings could not exist with thousands of dollars being spent away from home when it could be spent here. Not only that but the merchants and business people of Clanton are continually being called upon to render assistance to some worthy cause in the town or county. Do they give? Sure they do.

This editorial is not being written at the request of anyone, but is the result of realization by this newspaper that unless the people of this county stop their buying away from the man who can help, stop their buying from mail order houses, and buy from the home man, the results will be tragic, not only to the merchant but to the county in general.

MERCHANTS PARTLY TO BLAME

We might state here that perhaps the merchant and business man is partly to blame for this condition. His failure to "go after" business means his failure to get it. By the term "go after" we simply mean ever on the alert to secure any new business and keep the old.

It is nothing but human nature for a person to want to buy goods in a store that is attractive and where they get prompt and courteous service. But that is not the only means being used now by stores in the cities and by mail order houses. The mail order houses see that their printed advertisements are placed in the mails for delivery to the country at large, at regular intervals. They give a description of the goods with the price. They invite business to their doors. They tell the buying public what they have to sell and what the price is, through the printed word. If a person in the country needs a pair of shoes, they may look in the mail order house catalog and see what the price is. Why not look in the county paper for that price from a local merchant, the man who supports the schools, government, churches and any other worthy cause?

This buying from mail order houses and buying out of your home county must stop or the results will re-act on every citizen. To stop it, the combined efforts of merchant, business man and farmer is needed.

We want to direct your attention to the advertisements from the business houses of this county, appearing in this issue, and in all issues of the News. These merchants are sending you these messages, telling you of the goods they have for sale. They are inviting you to trade with them. They are your friends and your neighbors.

This editorial is not only directed to the people residing in the rural sections of the county, but to those who make their home in Clanton or any other towns.

The problem discussed above, and here presented to you is one this newspaper believes to be very real in Chilton county. Yet, unlike many economic situations from which we suffer, it is one we can remedy. We don't have to have a Congressional investigation, Special Legislative Session nor even a mass meeting called to trade at home. As a matter of fact it is the easiest thing imaginable—a lot more convenient than doing business by long-distance. And if we all do it consistently the results will be the most pleasing factor of all—for we will then have made a mighty big step toward licking Old Man Depression in our own county.

LEGISLATURE IS FACED WITH THRIFT PROGR'M

Gov. Appeals For New Deal On Income Tax; Sales Tax Is Offered

The special session of the Legislature of Alabama convened in Montgomery at the Capitol last Tuesday morning, and Governor Miller delivered an address to a chamber packed with legislators and a full gallery.

A total of 183 clerks and Legislature employes out of 261 were lopped off the extra session pay roll by the Senate and House rules committees in session late Monday.

The House will operate with 51 clerks as against 156 at the last session and the Senate will operate with 27 as against 105 at the last session.

In the House the clerk will be allowed 20 clerks, the enrolling clerk 10, the engrossing clerk 10, five clerks of committees and a sergeant-at-arms and four assistants. There will also be a telephone assistant.

Governor Miller appealed to the legislators for a new deal on the proposed income tax, stating that the real issue was not made plain before, when the income tax was proposed.

His message as a whole differed from other messages in two other respects It contained a recommendation for a sales tax as a temporary measure and did not contain his previous insistence upon a bond issue, the Governor contenting himself with asking for any legislation effective in validating the State's debt.

A general sales tax bill to gather revenue pending enactment of income tax legislation, was introduced in the House by Representative Clint Harrison, of Marengo.

APPLICATIONS FOR CROP LOANS ARE READY NOW

This System Is Different From Usual Seed Loan Says County Agt.

Mr. Stapp points out that loans thru this source differ from the Seed Loan through which farmers borrowed last year in that loans through the Agricultural Credit Corporation Bank have to be amply secured. For the information of those who are making inquiry, Mr. Stapp states that the costs involved in securing these loans are as follows: 1% on loans up to $100.00 for clerical help in making the application, 6½% per annum for the period of the loan, $3.00 attorney fee, and the recording fee which varies according to the loan

The Seed Loan through which many farmers operated last year, is not available at the present time. Mr. Stapp states that the Bill which provides for the loans, similar to the ones handled for the past two years, has recently passed Congress and is now ready for the President's signature

It is Mr. Stapp's understanding that if the President signs this Bill, money will be available for crop production to farmers who are unable to borrow money elsewhere because of the lack of security.

In the recent series of outlook meetings held by Mr Stapp, he stressed the

OLIVER SAYS NEWS RENDERED A REAL SERVICE

Is For A Check-Up On All State And County Officials

Below the News is publishing a letter received from Hon. H. B. Oliver, prominent resident and business man of Verbena:

Editor, Chilton County News:

The service rendered to the taxpayers in your last weeks issue of your Chilton and Coosa County papers, in publishing—at considerable expense—a list of expenditures by the Legislature as compiled by Mayer W. Aldridge, Certified Accountant, is very commendable and should be appreciated in a substantial way.

So far as I have been informed only two Daily papers in the entire state—the Mobile Register and Dothan Eagle—have published this list.

Will someone say why papers who claim to furnish their readers all the news have failed—this is real news to a lot of us in the "stix". They may say it is not "fit to publish."

The people are finding out, by accident or otherwise, a whole lot about the waste in both County and State and they will take a greater interest in selecting their officials in the future.

These boys offering for reelection must stand a check up on their records and if a new man he will have to be investigated as well.

We pay our State Examiner of Accounts and his Assistants enough to have a check up on all County and State Officials once a year and those who have a clean record should have published by the County notice to the public the result of the Examination.

Yours truly,
H. B. OLIVER.

Let's Exchange Places With Our State With Its Debt

A man who had a large family, owned a good sized country store. He was doing a fair business but his children were becoming of the age when larger demands were being made on the family pocketbook in order that these children could receive the comforts and conveniences of life. Naturally the father had to do something in order to try to meet the demands made on him for his children's education and care. But what? Increase his profits and increase the scope of his revenue.

The State of Alabama is in debt. The State of Alabama is continually receiving demands. Demands, that ten years ago were not imagined. The State's sources of revenue are being cut down and it is finding a hard row in meeting the demands made by the public on its treasury.

School transportation, demonstration agents, highways, bridges, better law enforcement are among the growing demands on our state. Let us place ourselves in this position with this debt and increasing demands of the public.

Receiving courtesies only hotels of the best could extend, the Alabama Press Association met last Saturday at the Jefferson Davis Hotel in Montgomery. The meeting, attended by editors and publishers from all over the state, was most interesting. Touching on several phases of the profession of the utmost importance to weekly newspapers. Those attending the last two meetings of the association held in Montgomery at the Jefferson Davis will remember the courtesies extended by this fine hostelry, its manager and employees.

Politics And Debts

The world is now being disturbed by another period of discussion of the inability of various nations to pay the sums they owe the United States for war debts.

The sad part of the situation is that in most of the nations involved the issue is being handled as a political, rather than as a purely business transaction.

Undoubtedly some nations are entitled to an extension of credit but when they ask for it, other nations immediately demand the same concessions for fear their neighbors will get something they don't.

So-called diplomacy and cheap politics prevent consideration of debts owed the United States, on a business basis, in accordance with each debtor's ability to pay.

If the foreign debts could be handled as are private debts and the curse of politics eliminated, world peace would be a thousand years nearer, international strife would be reduced to a minimum and our loans would be more secure. Foreign debtors would then pay in accordance with their ability and those that were bankrupt would be treated in accordance with bankruptcy proceedings, and those that were solvent would enjoy the rewards of solvency.

A Long Wait

My grandpa notes the world's worn cogs and says we're going to the dogs.
His grand-dad in his house of logs, swore things were going to the dogs.
His dad among the Flemish bogs, vowed things were going to the dogs.
The caveman in his queer skin togs said things were going to the dogs.
But this is what I wish to state: The dogs have had an awful wait.

Pedestrian Perils

Automobiles cost the pedestrian the heaviest toll of life and limb of any class of persons involved in automobile accidents. Out of nearly 34,000 persons killed last year, according to statistics of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, 14,500 were pedestrians. In most of these cases, contrary to popular opinion, the pedestrian was wholly or in great part at fault.

There are four chief spots of danger for the individual on foot. These are: Crossing between intersections; coming from behind parked cars; walking on or along a rural highway and playing in the street—1,170 youngsters having lost their lives in street play last year.

The most dangerous pedestrian action is crossing between intersections, where 3,920 were killed last year. One should adhere rigidly to the practice of crossing only at intersections. Motorists should remember that every object along a street or highway big enough to hide a man or child is a danger sign.

Darting out from behind parked cars cost 1,630 persons their lives last year.

Rural highways apparently are death traps for walkers, 2,330 persons being killed on them last year. The man who sets out for a walk along a country road should walk on the left side facing oncoming traffic so as to be ready for any emergency.

Albert W. Whitney, Associate General Manager of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, says:

"As every motorist should obey the fundamental rule of safe driving, so every pedestrian should obey the code of safe walking. His cooperation is absolutely essential in reducing the tremendous annual loss of life and limb which is so darkly reflected in the cost of casualty insurance, economic waste and untold human misery."

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Here's another good trade for somebody. Mr. Oliver C. Duke, of Clanton, Ala., Route Seven sends in a letter stating he has a good milk cow that he will trade for corn, beans or cotton seed.

Seems to me that is a good trade. A cow for beans, corn or cotton seed. Get in touch with Mr. Duke and get up a trade with him. I wonder if anybody made a trade with Mr. R. H. Gandy last week.

Now if you want a good cabinet victrola, get in touch with Mr. G. H. Gandy, of Maplesville, Ala., Route 2. Mr. Gandy writes me that he has a good cabinet Victrola with a good selection of records he will trade for a good one-horse wagon or young hens and ribbon cane syrup. If you are interested get in touch with Mr. Gandy.

Folks, send in a letter to this column if you have something to trade. I'll print it, with the permission of the Editor, and it won't cost you a cent. Here's a letter I thought once I wouldn't publish, because I believe the writer of it is trying to kid me. The letter stated, "I have a good second-hand casket I will trade for most anything anybody has, except a two-pants suit of clothes. I can't wear two pairs of pants at one time."

Can you imagine a fellow with a good second-hand casket. I might refer him to Martin & Sons or to Spigeners. Maybe there could be a trade made somehow.

Well, whatta you know about this. Somebody left a note for me on the Editor's desk last week. It was a little too late for me to get it in this column last week, but I am pickled tink to publish it this week. Here 'tis:

Doug: "You heard correctly, when you were told that Mrs. Broadus Connatser is truly an artist, and she is quite versatile. Her work with brush in water-colors and oil have elicited the admiration of many Clanton callers. In sculpture, one marvels over her busts done from life. Her reproductions from still-life: her woodland scenes, are dreams.

"Mrs. Connatser is now working on an oil portrait of her husband; and it is with absorbing interest that one observes the various stages of development, that soon will reach a state of perfection, as far as the casual critic is able to discern.

"Her sweet songs have delighted Clanton audiences upon a number of occasions. Mrs. Connatser also excels in culinary art. Many dainties are frequently concocted in her kitchen and her viands are always finished to a queen's taste.

"Mrs. Connatser recently got much laughter out of the antics of a Clanton subject. The little fellow, Percy Pitts, junior, had been posing for the artist: she was developing his portrait in charcoal. A pillow had been provided for his comfort. Finally, the boy was given leave to go. He ran home and exultantly announced that he had been having his picture made. "Well, you had a very dirty face," commented the mother. "Yes," quickly came the rejoinder, "but that is all right, for she is doing the picture in charcoal, anyway, and the dirt won't show."

There was no name signed to it, but it is such a good letter I couldn't refuse to publish it. Whoever wrote it, certainly knows what he or she is talkng about.

Folks, watch the papers for some announcements of the moving of various business houses in Clanton. I got wind of some changes to be made in the very near future, and of course it is about three-fourths rumors, or gossip (have it your own way) but some of it is true. Nope I'm not telling you whose places of business are going to move. You just read the News and find out.

Yesterday, one of our well known and beloved citizens of the county took a starring part on a radio broadcast over Station WAPI. This was Dr. F. G. DuBose, of Maplesville and Selma. The broadcast was the regular broadcast of the Alabama Writers Conclave, and Dr. DuBose was asked to give a sketch from his "Episodes In Black and White." Dr. DuBose is one of the most prominent physicians in the South, and a nationally known figure in the medical world. He has a hobby of collecting negro sketches. The broadcast took place at 2:35 o'clock.

Something is wrong somewhere. I notice there were only sixteen marriage licenses issued in this county during last month. Now just where the difference comes in, I have no idea. Some months, there are something like twenty-five or thirty marriages recorded.

I see where Bill Moffatt, manager of the Gay Teague Hotel, of Montgomery was a visitor in our town last Monday. Bill is a fine sort of fellow, and you ought to know him. And I might mention (not Adv.) that he is sure doing some nice work on the Gay Teague. They tell me that the Gay Teague is not the hotel it used to be, but is now taking its place along with the best. Stop there sometime.

Monday was sure a bloom killer. Or maybe I just couldn't get warm or something.

Saw Mr. W. H. Sartor the other day with a broad smile showing. Speaking of showing things, Mr. Sartor is showing some New Spring Goods. I noticed a nice ad from his store, The Fair, last week in C. G. N. I took a look round in that store and I believe that Mr. Sartor is really selling good goods cheap. He goes under the impression that people don't have much money these days, they still must have clothes, so he just decided to do his part, reduce his prices and help the good cause along. Drop in there sometime.

I've been thinking of giving Mack's Place a nickname of some kind. It is sure beginning to become a good meeting place for tea, coffee and the like. Nice little booths to chat with your friends. And if you don't want to go in, just park on the curb. You get curb service pronto or something right now.

What is this story I hear about that man's mule dying from an accident down the road the other day. And just what kind of an accident was it. Victor Norris knows about it but said he didn't know just how to write it. And neither would I. It was truly an odd story and an unusual accident or something.

Clanton's banks—what about them. Are they safe? Can you put your money in them and feel secure? Those are questions that may come to your mind. You can tell the world that our banks are safe and sound, and any report to the contrary is nothing to it.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

An undernourished lad of ten years stood on the street corner with his morning papers under his arm. His feet were bare, his clothes were in rags and no cap covered his head. With a cheerful voice he was calling the name of his publication and asking each passerby for a sale. A well dressed lady bought his paper and then took him with her into a clothing store. There she had him fitted out with shoes, a suit and cap. She then told him to return to his stand and resume his work. The lady was gone before the boy could think to express his thanks. He knew the clothes were his and he knew that he must find the lady. He ran down the side walk and finding her he took her by the hand and looking up at her out of sparkling eyes he said, "Lady, are you God's wife?" No, she was not God's wife, but she had done a God-like deed. If you want people to take knowledge of you that you are God's child, you must act like one.

While I was pastor at a certain church I had a piano to move. It was a task that called for four strong men. At the depot in the town many colored men would gather there at train time and I made my way there to find help. Twenty negro men were there all huddled together and as I approached I said, "Men I want four of you strong men for a job of a few minutes." No sooner had I spoken the word than almost every man was all attention and he was saying, "Boss, take me." The men were out of jobs and they literally "Jumped at the job." A little girl of seven was dying. Her father was a great preacher and having an engagement approaching, he stood at the bedside of his daughter and said to her, "Darling, I will not leave you if you say for me to stay." The little child looked into the eye of her father and then said, "Daddy, you go back and speak to those students, and tell them for me that if they ever have a chance to lead one soul to Christ for them to jump at it." If an opportunity comes to you to do work in the church, to help someone who is down and out, to lead one soul to Christ, "Jump at that opportunity."

An Irishman had never seen a train. He found his way to the track and stood waiting to see what he could see. Shortly the train came in sight and Pat watched its approach with increasing interest and fear. The smoke was boiling, the whistle was screaming and the bell was ringing. When the train was about three hundred yards away, Pat had already selected the most open spot for his run. He leaped into the middle of the track and ran down the center of the rails ahead of the train. The engineer seeing the man on the track threw on the brakes. All the time the fireman was pulling the whistle. By the time the train had overtaken the Irishman, the train and the man were running about the same speed. The engineer stuck his head out of his cab and shouted, "Fool, get off the track." Pat glanced over his shoulder while he picked up in his speed and replied, "Faith and bedad, I am not the fool you think I am. I know your plan, you want to get me into the plowed ground and then you think that you can catch me." Lots of folks are using the judgment of Pat in regard to the devil's highway. They remain right between the rails and permit the devil's train to run over them.

A day of bitter debate on the question of Baptism had just closed at a country church and the audience had gone home mad and not religious. One line of argument affirmed that candidates for baptism should be buried under the water, while another line of argument said it mattered not how the candidate was baptized, just so water was used in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost. Uncle Wash, the yard man at the Deacon's home said much when he commented thus upon the day of debate, "Dat bunch of church men am all wrong about de water. What dat bunch needs am not much or little water, but hot water." Friends, it is not the amount of the water that was used in your baptism that counts, but it is the temperature. The amount used should have been hot with the fires of the spirit. Blessed is the man who was baptized with water that set him on fire for the salvation of the world. We have cold churches because we have used so much cold water in baptizing folks.

Dr. Clovis Chappell of Birmingham is responsible for this statement on the hog question, said he, "In every litter of pigs you will find a runt. This pig never seems to do well. You can take a half gallon bucket full of butter milk to that runt and he will drink every drop of it, and then you can put the runt into your bucket and he will not fill it half full." I have never tested that out to establish the claim of the preacher, but I have witnessed a like miracle in dealing with "Runt" church members. Many a time the "Runts" in our churches have been served with a car load of the gospel, and yet after the gospel feast they can be carted home in the preacher's vest pocket. Somehow the gospel food fails to fatten the soul life of some church members. The more they are fed, the poorer they become Section 2. That immediately after the passage of this Act, a special election shall be called, by the Probate Judge of Chilton County, and held in Chilton County, Alabama, the expenses thereof to be paid out of the general funds of said County, for the purpose of electing a County Superintendent of Education for said County, by the qualified electors thereof, who shall assume the duties of his office July 1, 1933, and shall hold office until his successor is elected and qualified, at the General Election to be held, on the Second Tuesday in November, 1934, at which time his successor in office shall be elected, and thereafter the Superintendent of Education of Chilton County, shall be elected quadrennial, and hold office for a term of four years, unless removed for good cause, nominations for this office shall be made in the Primary Elections as provided for the other County offices.

Section 3. That the salary of the said Superintendent of Education shall be fixed by the County Board of Education of Chilton County, Alabama, which salary shall not be less than $1800.00 nor more than $2400.00 per annum, and which salary shall be paid in the same way and manner as now provided under the general laws of the State of Alabama for the payment of the County Superintendents of Education in the several counties of the State.

Section 4. That said County Superintendent shall be charged with the same duties and shall exercise the same powers as are now or as may hereafter be provided by the general school laws of the State of Alabama, in the conduct of the office of County Superintendent of Education, and no person shall be eligible for political party nominations, or for election to the office of County Superintendent of Education of Chilton County who does not hold an Alabama certificate in Administration and Supervision, based on at least being a graduate of a Standard College equal to the University of Alabama, or Alabama Polytechnic Institute and proof of three years of successful teaching experience within five years before election, and such other additional qualifications as may be provided by the General School Laws of the State. Provided, however, that if no person meeting these requirements qualifies for election as provided in this Act, the County Board of Education shall appoint a Superintendent of Education as provided by the General Law regulating the appointment of Superintendents, and provided that no person shall be eligible to qualify or be elected to the office of County Superintendent of Education of Chilton County, Alabama, who is not a qualified elector of the State of Alabama at the time of the nomination or election to such office and who does not procure from the Superintendent of Education of the State of Alabama a certificate that he possesses the qualifications presented by this section. Thousands of Women Have Taken Cardui on Their Mothers' Advice

It is an impressive fact that many women have said they learned of the value of Cardui from their mothers.

What stronger evidence of her confidence in a medicine could a mother have than that she advises her daughter to take it!

Cardui is given the credit for relieving so many cases of womanly suffering that it is widely and favorably known. Druggists, everywhere, sell it.

If you are weak, run-down, suffering monthly, take Cardui. Take it for a reasonable length of time and try it thoroughly. As your health improves, you will share the enthusiasm of thousands of women who have written to say: "Cardui helped me."

MEMORY OF EURLIE LEE HAYES

On Sunday night January 15, death angels came and took away our loving little cousin, Eurlie Lee Hayes, [illegible] son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hayes. He was carried to the hospital where he [illegible] days. All was done that [illegible] could do, [illegible]eth. Through all of his sufferings he kept smiling, for he had a mansion prepared for him, so God called him home.

Weep not, dear bereaved ones, for the loss is heaven's gain. He only budded on earth to bloom in Heaven. Oh, how sad it was to give him up. No one on earth can fill little Eurlie Lee's place. He had such a sweet disposition that made home happy, but Jesus has said, 'Suffer little children to come unto me." He will be found beyond this vale of tears in the beautiful City of God. As the death angel came and took him home may the all-wise God watch over his remains which were laid to rest in Pleasant Grove cemetery. Now may the guardian angel guide and direct the broken hearted and bereaved family to their journey's end and land them safely on the other shore where they will meet their sweet Eurlie Lee, never to part any more.

We can't hear his voice any more in play or song of old, for now our dear cousin is sleeping in the grave. His empty chair is sitting there; his corner looks so lonely. Sleep on and rest, dear cousin; although our hearts are sad; long are the nights, but God knows best. He took his suffering away.

We miss him and miss him—
No human tongue can tell.
We said good-bye for a little while,
But we did not say farewell.

It was heard to give him up, but God's will and He knows best. He was a dear sweet little boy and won the hearts of all who knew him. The bereaved father, mother, brother and little sisters have our whole hearts' sympathy.

—One who loved him, his cousin, Bernice Delean Jones.

Livestock Reminders

By F. W. Burns, Auburn

Far too many livestock feeders lack acquaintance with market demands. Find out what your market demands first and then try to supply it.

Fatness in market animals is desirable because it adds weight, makes ripening possible, gives tenderness to the meat and increases the dressing percentage.

Only registered, purebred sires should be used, but farmers should be sure they are good individuals and have the proper breeding back of them so that they will improve grade or scrub females.

Unless a breed of livestock satisfies a definite market demand there is little excuse for its existence and those who foster it must sooner or later suffer financially for their effort.

One ton of cold pressed cottonseed cake running 26 per cent protein is approximately equal to 1,400 pounds of 7 per cent cottonseed meal as a feed for dairy or beef cattle.

A market classification of livestock represents the practical outcome of producers' attempts to reach ideals and a visit to any market will show you how far many breeders fail to reach their goal.

The word "purebred" has a wonderful charm to many persons, and many animals, very inferior from a utility point of view, have brought a large price belause they have a pedigree and a registered number.

Thorsby Institute News

The new semester of Thorsby Institute began Monday. Mary Bratton of Union Grove, Milton Diefenderfer of Clanton and C. B. Jean of Steppville enrolled as new students. More will probably be enrolled soon.

The last period Monday Dr. J. R. Scotford, Editorial Secretary of The Commission on Missions, gave a very interesting talk on "Missions" speaking especially of South America and stating qualifications missionaries need. The Glee Club sang "Going Home" by Dvorak.

As some do not understand the tuition rates at Thorsby Institute they are quoted here: $13.50 plus $1.50 pays the tuition fee for the semester through the rest of the school year. If necessary some of this may be paid in provisions. If one prefers to pay by the term, that is every six weeks, the charge is $5.00 a term. The registration fee of $1.50 is paid at the beginning of the semester for the rest of the year. Music tuition is $3.00 a term (six weeks) one lesson a week, or $8.00 for the semester. There is a saving of $1.00 if one pays by the semester. Two lessons a week are $4.00 a term or $10.50 a semester.

The members of the Christian Endeavor enjoyed a social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Butler Saturday night.

WHY DESTROY THE FOUNDATION? AN APPEAL FROM DR. GRAGG

To the Gentlemen now congregated on Goat Hill, both Executive and Legislative:- Before going too far let's meditate, or as Bill Arp used to say ruminate a little.

As the good book would say "Consider the farmer." From the first settlement of America; who paid for what we now have and have had all along?

The farmer's sweat, his blood, his life; from the landing of the Pilgrims down to the present day, has paid for and made us what we are. At Concord, Lexington, Bunker Hill, Valley Forge, he fought our battles, suffered, bled and died for us. From the first settlements on the Atlantic Seaboard, he shoved westward, clearing the forest, vanquishing the red skin, spanning rivers, opening fields, cutting roads, rearing homes, towns and cities, crossing alike the mighty Mississippi river and the gigantic Rocky Mountains, till finally he saw before him the broad expanse of the Pacific Ocean; conquering the entire continent from the hostile savage East and West from ocean to ocean; and from the frigid North to the Gulf of Mexico on the South. The farmers spread out over this vast land of ours taking years to go with ox teams and horse carts where we go now in one day with an airship. They uprooted trees and planted corn and cotton where we now have Universities, Colleges, factories, and other great modern institutions.

I had a grandfather who spent five years of his early life in the War of the Revolution and then pioneered in Georgia and Alabama. And I had a father who helped in the early settlement of Central Alabama; and, though too old for active service, did his bit as a coast guard in the Confederate Army. You, gentlemen, look back and honor those old pioneer ancestors of yours who helped make this country, and put forth your efforts to keep it a free country where the farmer and laborer may enjoy life.

It is only by and through the farmer that we are what we are and our wonderful country is what it is. Had the farmer not worked, suffered, sweated, bled and died by the millions all thru this 150 years that we have been a nation, how else could we have existed? Had it not been for the farmer, we would have no lawyers, doctors, teachers, merchants, etc. We would have no cities, towns; no manufacturing establishments or laborers therein. We would have no railroads, highways, hydro-electric plants nor the score of other wonders of modern civilization.

The farmer paid for all these things. He paid with his sweat, his blood, his very life. He has been taxed for what he owned only in name. He has paid tax on mules, cows, farm tools and land that the other man really owned and he was allowed to claim and pay tax on. He has paid and paid until he can pay no more.

The farmer has not stopped at clearing wood, pulling stumps, digging ditches and raising corn and cotton. He has stocked the stores in the neighboring village. He has paid for the education of brightest boys and girls who have left the farm, he has fed the entire world, including Professionals, business men, officials, tax-eaters, usurers, gamblers, middlemen, and profiteers.

Lo! this one hundred years and more he has had the little end of the horn. He has been forced to stint himself and family and work and squeeze to make ends meet, while others who profiteered on his labor, or lived from the taxes bled from him; enjoyed plenty. In short, the farmer has been robbed for generations and is now about to be entirely liquidated. I beg you, I plead with you, if you destroy the farmer you destroy all classes from the richest down. Now, you were the choice of a majority of the voters of your respective electorate. They spoke their confidence in you at the polls. You are, in a measure dependent on them. Don't destroy yourself by destroying them.

Many farmers and other oppressed and unemployed will not vote next time because they cannot pay their poll tax. Many poor oppressed children are today out of school because their parents have no money to send them to private schools and the money that should have been used to pay teachers and keep public schools open has been DIVERTED!! You are getting your pay and your child is in school. Why does not the public school teacher get his pay? That may sound like a hard question, nevertheless it is true.

Get off the farmers back. Let the oppressed laborer have a rest from tax, tax. Arrange for the unemployed to find a job to make an honest living and all will be well. If that is not done, the future holds a dreadfully dark day in store.

V. J. GRAGG.

Clanton, Ala., Jan. 31, 1933.

THE JACKSON CHAPEL PLAN AND SALARIES OF OFFICIALS

Editor, Chilton County News:

Please give me space in your valuable paper for a few lines to the farmers and taxpayers of our county. First, I want to ask if you think the servant is above his master. The Bible teaches he is not.

Now, let us take a few things under consideration, and see if the servant hasn't mounted high above his master.

We will first consider the Jackson Chapel plan for relief in that community, and was adopted by our County Agent, Mr. Stapp; and also recommended by our county papers.

A good many farmers have offered to give work to anyone who wants to work and pay in corn, one bushel for a day's work, or two bushels of potatoes, or one gallon of cane syrup. I think that is all a farmer can pay for a day's work. My understanding is that the plan was gotten up so that anyone that was able to work would not get something for nothing. The plan might be all right if it did not put the servant so high above his master.

As my nephew, W. L. Sanders, has the honor of being the inventor of the plan, I will use him to show how unfair the plan works against the master in favor of the master's servants. We must understand that all officials are supposed to be the servants of the people who put them in office.

Now, Mr. Sanders has some work he wants done and will pay one bushel of corn per day for the work. I heard through the papers about this work and go over to Mr. Sanders to earn me a bushel of corn. He goes with me out into his field early in the morning and gives me a line-up what to do. There I work about ten hours, putting out hard, laborious work for one bushel of corn which is worth only 25 cents per bushel according to what some are offering the farmers.

Well, on account of a board meeting Mr. Sanders can't work with me. But goes back to the house, takes a shave and puts on his best clothes and goes to Clanton and sits with the board from about ten until two o'clock and earns enough money to get him 20 bushels of corn. He puts in about 5 or 6 hours and I put in ten hours. I get one bushel of corn and he has 19 bushels left after paying me for my day's work.

Does Mr. Sanders get something for nothing? Is his five or six hours of official work worth 19 times as much as my manual work?

We will take next our Tax Collector and Assessor, who are said to get about five thousand dollars a year, which would purchase twenty thousand bushels of corn, and would be equal to 640 bushels per day. I do not blame these officials for such conditions any more than I do the people who put them in office.

I do think the people should have some resentment against such a system that has brought about such conditions.

The officials and teachers of Chilton county have called mass meeting after mass meeting for the purpose of giving relief to the destitute and suffering of our county, and the best plan they have found is the Jackson Chapel plan which will give one bushel of corn or two bushels of potatoes or one gallon of cane syrup, and at the same time they receive for their days work money equivalent to 19 to 640 bushels of corn per day.

Have any of these officials or teachers made any move whatever to have their pay cut? If so I haven't heard of it. It seems to me that they are perfectly willing to have from 19 times to 640 times the advantage of the man who produces from the soil.

Mr. Farmer, why should you go to the expense to educate your children unless you could make sure that you could land them in the official family? Otherwise you should know they will have to be a servant for our servants. Mr. Farmer, you had better wake up and demand a change of system that will put you nearer on an equality with your servants.

We all know that the body of our government is the people and the head of our government is our officials, and when the head of anything gets from 19 times to 640 times larger than the body that thing, no matter what it is, cannot exist long. Our officials had better invent some remedy without delay that will reduce the head and enlarge the body; otherwise, both head and body will perish.

Here is the remedy that will do the work: The Constitution of the United States says that Congress shall have the right to coin money and regulate the value thereof. Let the body of our government demand that the head of our government inflate the American dollar and make it as cheap as we farmers have made farm products, and that will make it as plentiful as farm prodults and limit ones inheritance of wealth to one million dollars and his income to one hundred thousand dollars. That would give us a system that would bring prosperity to all who had the perseverance to strive for it.

Mr. Farmer, we are up against the wall, what are we going to do?

Yours for a new order of things that will produce a system which will place both head and body nearer on an equality.

A TONIC Laxative

CONSTIPATION, with the annoying symptoms that usually come with it, cuts down organic force and disturbs normal health and well-being. A thorough cleansing of the digestive tract is of great assistance in the removal of sickening constipation symptoms.

When excessive accumulated waste matter disturbs and strains the muscles of the large intestines, rendering them temporarily unable to perform their wave-like evacuating movements, Thedford's Black-Draught is useful in stimulating them to activity, which, again started, should continue regularly until some future disturbance interferes. In this way, Thedford's Black-Draught is one of the TONIC laxatives, tending, as it does, to establish a regular habit of evacuation.

MYRTLE LEONARD ALLEN

On January 11, 1933 the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Allen and took from them their loving little girl, Myrtle.

Myrtle had been sick for sometime All that kind doctors, nurses and loving hands could do was done, but God said, I need you little Myrtle, and she smiled and left this world of sorrow to be with Jesus forever in that beautiful home where sorrow is unknown.

Myrtle was only nine years of age. She had a sweet disposition, and to know her was to love her.

Every Sunday, morning and evening, one could see a little golden, curly-haired girl coming to church, with a Bible in her hand and a smile on her face. She was sunshine everywhere.

The Junior classes of which she was a member, dedicated a song to her.

If Myrtle could only know and say, I am sure she would say, "Weep not, dear mother and daddy, for I am only sleeping, all is well and Heaven is so beautiful. Teach little sisters so that you all may live to meet me on that blissful shore, where all your hardships and heartaches will cease and will be joy forever more."

Rev. J. D. Hughes conducted funeral services which were held at Chestnut Creek Baptist church.

Myrtle is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Allen, three sisters, L. E., Henrietta and Inez. A number of relatives and friend

"Myrtle"

We loved our little Myrtle,
No human tongue can tell.
We said good-bye for a little while.
But we didn't say farewell.
The golden curls are fringing
Her cold and death-like brow
And oh! My heart is aching—
I'd love to see her now.
Some say she's gone forever,
Some say she's cold and dead.
A little girl lies before us.
But, oh! the soul is fled.
But still I feel it surely,
She's an angel in Heaven for aye;
To help us in our life's work
We can only look up and pray community picnic and three socials. The balance of the money we gave to the P.-T. A. of Concord Junior High School to be placed in the building fund.

"We held a public debate at the County Court House with the Verbena Club, the subject of the debate being, Resolved, That the farmers of Chilton County should follow the live-at-home program instead of depending on cash crops to buy living necessities. The Verbena Club won.

"Our members had a wonderful time on the 4-H Club camp last summer.

"We are endeavoring now to organize a 4-H basket ball team.

Respectfully submitted,
CONCORD 4-H CLUB,
—Cleveland Driver, President; Judson Easterling, Vice-President; Clement Easterling, Secretary-Treasurer; Frank Cleckler, Reporter."

If your boy lives too far from any of the places listed and cannot be in an organized club, if be would like to, he may be a Lone 4-H Club member by writing to me and telling me what kind of work he wishes to do.

The following is a list of the projects from which a boy may select: Corn, cotton, garden, truck crops, purebred sow, the meat hogs, purebred Jersey heifer, and a beef animal. The boy may take any one or more of these projects, study the best methods and keep records on his work.

If you give your boy a project and allow him to become a club member, have some understanding as to what the boy is to get out of the work. If he does his work well he will get good training, but in addition to the training let him realize some monetary value. By this I mean that if the boy would be interested in caring for all of your meat hogs for the year, tell him that you will try to co-operate in helping him do the things that will enable him to produce meat as cheaply as possible, and at the same you will give to him one of the hogs to sell. You might specify the smallest hog or the largest hog. A similar understanding should be had relative to cotton, corn, or any one of the other projects.

The organized clubs will be furnished suggested programs to be carried out once each month. At each place where we have an organized club, we will select some adult person to meet with the boys and help them with their meetings. If you are selected by the boys of your community, I trust that you will meet with them every time and help them to have the kind of meetings you would like for your boy to attend.

I am in position to do more work with the boys this year than I have been able to do in the past, and I trust that I may have your full cooperation.

Don't forget the meeting dates.

Yours for the development of the boys and girls into real men and women.

C. E. STAPP, County Agent.

Mobile Senator Is For Income Tax

Legislature hasn't seen fit to cooperate with Governor Miller in his regular session and his extra session. I observed one of the biggest lobbies fighting Governor Miller's effort to preserve the credit of the State and to shift the burden of the entire expenses of the State on the 97% of the taxpayers who pay no income taxes. I believe when the people are educated that they will vote for the income tax and Governor Miller's efforts to provide ways and means of paying the debts of the State, keep the schools open, pay the teachers and other creditors what is due them, deserve the credit of the 97% of the taxpayers.

"Those who pay income tax, the majority of their holdings are non-taxable stocks and bonds.

"I believe that the Governor should have the cooperation of the Legislature and the public press of Alabama, to give the facts and preserve the credit of the State and pay its just debts."

Yours truly,
JOHN CRAFT, Senator.

In furtherance of existing efforts to alleviate the wide-spread suffering in the county caused by unemployment, a Child Welfare Board has been created, it was announced Wednesday morning by Probate Judge L. Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, County Superintendent of Education B. Lawrence and Chairman of the Board of Education C. C. Conway are members of this board by statutory right because of their various offices. The statute also provides for the appointment of one member of the Commissioner's Court and three others by the probate judge. Commissioner C. D. Duke will represent the court. County Agent C. E. Stapp, Mrs. A. C. Wells and Mrs. Sophie Jones are the other members.

Members of the Commissioners' Court have not acted on the permanent appointment of a county child welfare worker, it was stated. Miss Kitty Clyde Austin, of Selma, has replaced Miss Virginia Denton as emergency worker.

importance of farmers as well as other people making as few and small obligations this year as possible. He has been urging farmers not to borrow money unless they had to have it. Mr. Stapp states that even though he will be out in the County organizing 4-H Clubs, his office will be able to handle applications for loans.

County Agent Stapp calls attention to those who expect to make application for government loans for crop production that they will have to furnish him with land numbers of land on which crop is to be made. Mr. Stapp calls attention to this because so many fail to bring their land numbers and necessitates holding up the application until the applicant goes to the Court House and looks up his land numbers.

SCRIP MONEY IDEA IS BEING STUDIED HERE

City May Issue Scrip Form Of Currency For Work On Streets, Etc.

Whether or not Clanton will follow the example of a half-dozen or more small Alabama municipalities in issuing individual scrip currency is still a matter of conjecture, according to a statement Tuesday, by Mayor J. Lee Smith, who declared that he has been making an extensive study of the system and expects to take up the advisability of its adoption with the town council at its next meeting.

Mayor Smith stated that he had contemplated urging the use of scrip at a later date in payment for work in draining swamps and combatting mosquitoes in the vicinity of Clanton, declaring that he believed with the proper co-operation of Clanton business men, that two or three thousand dollars worth of scrip could be successfully floated here.

Placing the system on a two thousand dollar basis, here's the plan: Two thousand dollars will be set aside by

Big Raid Made By Sheriff, Deputies

The business of law enforcement has been a bit more brisk in Chilton county this week. Eleven arrests have been chalked up by members of Sheriff Gillespie's force. A three months vigil ended Monday with the capture of two men, a ninety-five gallon distillery, twelve gallons liquor, and three-hundred-fifty gallons of beer. The men, Sterling Lenoir, 34, and Vivian Mitchell, 18, both of the Maplesville vicinity, have been on the Sheriff's suspect list for several months, he declared. They were charged with manufacturing liquor and possessing a still.

Sheriff W. H. Gillespie and Deputies James and Louis Gillespie, and P. L. Robinson participated in the raid. Other arrests during the week were: three for violating the game laws; two for shooting doves on baited field; two hunting without license; one for assault and battery, and one for violating the prohibition laws.

With the closing of the dove season January 31, there remains only quail to be hunted. The closing date for quail season is February 20.

Voters Will Decide Question Of Loan

Special Election In County Called For February 21st; Speakers To Tell People About Loan; Opposition Looms

Sometime ago there was considerable discussion up in this county in regard to the county borrowing the sum of $50,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of the government. This money to be used for the relief of the needy people in the county, through the avenue of road work.

The impression seems to be that if the county secures this loan, it will not have to pay it back, but this amount of $50,000 will be deducted from any appropriation the Federal Government may make to Chilton county during the coming years as set out in the contract, which is published in this article. Many people are inclined to believe that the above impression is not correct.

If the county secures this loan at the wishes of the voters, provided the voters say they want it, then it is understood that the money will be distributed through the office of the Welfare Worker, who will give an order to a person for a number of days work at so much per day. This person will present this order to the Commissioner in his district or to the road overseer. This money is not to be used for any other purpose.

Following is an order passed by the Commissioners Court at a meeting held Wednesday of last week, calling for an election on this matter:

"It appearing to the Court of County Commissioners that the opinion of the people of the County is somewhat divided as to whether or not application should be made to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of the United States of America by and through the Honorable B. M. Miller, Governor of Alabama, for Fifty Thousand Dollars to be used for the relief of the destitute and needy. Be, it, therefore, Resolved by the Court of County Commissioners of said County, as follows:

"That an election be held by the voters of the County on Tuesday, February 21, 1933, at the several polling places in said County, in the manner, at the places and under the law governing the holding general elections in the State of Alabama, that the same election officials heretofore elected to hold the general election of November 8, 1932, be and they are hereby each, selected and appointed to hold said election, but without expense to the County; and should any of such election officials fail or refuse to serve that the remaining election officials be permitted to select others in their stead and if no election officials selected volunteer to serve without compensation that the citizens present and desiring to vote select election officials.

"That the Court of County Commissioners meet on Thursday, February 23, 1933, at noon for the purpose of canvassing the returns of said election."

Judging from comments gathered by the News, there is apparently some opposition to the county securing this loan. Whether this opposition will start work is not known. Interested citizens are making plans for speaking dates over the county in behalf of the loan. W. H. Conway of Jemison has been selected as campaign manager to explain the conditions under which the loan can be secured and expended. Meetings at the following places and time will be filled by one or more of the following men: L. H. Reynolds, W. M. Wyatt, W. T. Bean, C. R. Foss, W. L. Sanders and C. E. Stapp.

The dates and places are Stanton, Maplesville, Mineral Springs, Cane Creek and Mt. Pleasant on Tuesday night, February 14th.

Collins Chapel, Isabella, Union Grove, Concord, Coopers, and Providence Beat 16 on Wednesday night, February 15th.

Enterprise, Verbena, Pletcher, Mars Hill, Oak Grove and Pinedale on Thursday night, February 16th.

Following is a copy of the agreement or contract that will be entered into by the county if it gets this money:

The Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, hereby acknowledge themselves to be indebted to the State of Alabama in the principal amount of $20,000.00 for a like principal amount paid in cash to (________________) for account of the said County of Chilton, being the proceeds of an advance made upon certificate of the Governor of Alabama, under and in compliance with Section 1 of the Emergency Relief and Construction Act of 1932. Said indebtedness is payable by the undersigned at the time, in the manner, and out of the funds as hereinafter set forth, with interest at three per centum per annum from date, to-

How Long Will You Keep Your Job?

(AN EDITORIAL)

Is your job at stake? Do you know how long you will keep your present position? Can your employer continue to pay you the salary you are now receiving?

These questions may or may not have entered the minds of employes in the different businesses in Clanton, but they should be thought of. Last week, in this same position, this newspaper pointed out a condition existing in this town and county, that unless curbed, and curbed soon, will affect practically every person residing in the county. And the effect will not be pleasing.

It is as we stated last week, simply the growing inclination of people to buy away from their home town the things they can buy at home. Why do we mention the employes this week? Simply because these employes can not and should not expect their employers to continue to keep them on the payroll if business does not warrant it.

These employes, including store clerks, stenographers, bookkeepers, truck drivers, must give this situation some consideration. We are not going too far nor saying too much when we call this to the attention of salaried men and women in Clanton or any town in the county. They too, as well as the business man, must get behind this matter and do all they can to stop this buying away from home. Think of the thousands of dollars spent by local people with mail order houses and in the larger cities, when it could be spent and distributed in your own county. Chilton County would not feel this slump in business so much if this is curbed. What are YOU going to do about it?

WILL THE SCRIP IDEA WORK IN CLANTON?

On the front page of the News this week is an article about using the scrip currency idea in Clanton as a means of giving work at the same time a small expenditure of money, and creating a large amount of trade in Clanton by doing it.

Will it work? That question is to be answered if our city officials will inaugurate the idea and push it. It has worked successfully in other towns, so why not Clanton? Of course we realize that it will necessitate some extra bookkeeping, but very little, and forming an opinion from the idea in other towns, Clanton should try it, even though on a small scale. We believe that our city officials would not find it difficult to locate some work to be done on the streets, alleys in the town, for which this scrip is to be used as payment.

Former Resident Killed In Accident Recently

Funeral services for Mrs. Lula Howard, former resident of Chilton county, who died Friday night at a Birmingham hospital, were held Tuesday afternoon from the Jemison Baptist church. Interment followed in Pine Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Howard's death resulted from injuries sustained when a small cut-down automobile in which she was riding with her two sons, Gordon and Fred, was struck by a truck on the Birmingham - Montgomery highway near Acton Mines, last Wednesday night, according to information from J. W. Smith, policeman at Jemison.

Officer Smith stated that early Wednesday night he arrested Fred Howard for operating this car without license, but he escaped and it was some hours later that the wreck occurred. He declared that charges of driving while intoxicated, and operating an automobile without license will be placed against Howard yet.

VETERANS HAVE FINE MEETING LAST THURSDAY

New Members Are Secured; Visiting Speakers Give Interesting Talks

The World War Veterans of Chilton County held a rousing rally at the court house in Clanton last Thursday night. Attendance was splendid. The court house was filled to capacity.

The meeting was held under auspices of Chilton County Post No. 6, of the American Legion. Commander R. D. Woodson presided. Music was furnished by Herman Lowery and Odis Ellison.

Veteran F. A. Lokey of Columbiana, was the speaker of the occasion. He came here by appointment of the Alabama Department of the Legion. The impetus of the address by Mr. Lokey was directed toward selling the American Legion to the ex-service men, and through the ex-service men to sell the Legion to the public.

His remarks were clearly and distinctly outlined to analyze the objectives the Legion seeks to carry out for service to the war veterans, and for a wider phase of service to the communities in which the Legion posts are located. It was one of the best presentations of the American Legion ever heard here.

Vocational Classes Are Given Actual Experience In Modern Farming

Following is an account of some training being given boys in the agriculture classes of the Jemison High School, with Prof. J. P. Montgomery as instructor:

Beginning this week Mr. Montgomery meets with groups of vocational education boys in five different communities. He met Monday afternoon with boys in Freeman School community. He and the boys went to Jade Cofer's and engaged in orchard work, including the pruning of peach and apple trees and grape vines, digging peach borers, etc.

Next Monday Mr. Montgomery will meet the same group of boys at the home of another student, and will lay off variable grade terraces. Should it rain, the boys will meet at a blacksmith shop and sharpen plows. The above is an illustration of the type of work Mr. Montgomery is doing with the boys.

In addition to this work with school boys, Mr. Montgomery will have three community meetings each week with adult farmers. The following schedule for adult meetings has been arranged:

Pleasant Grove, Tuesday nights; Oak Grove, Thursday nights; Collins Chapel, Friday nights.

This week's meetings will begin at 6:30 p.m. The meetings will be held in the above-named communities each week. Next week the meetings will begin at 2 p.m., and demonstrations will be given at each meeting, as follows:

Pruning, spraying, and grafting fruit trees. If the afternoon meetings are rained out, Mr. Montgomery advises that he will meet the farmers at the school house that night and discuss some timely agricultural subject.

The following subjects and discussions are among those to be given at the meetings: Pasture building, pruning, spraying, grafting fruit trees, landscaping, terracing; culling, feeding and housing chickens, poultry diseases; comparison of relative value of nitrate fertilizers; insect control in garden and truck crops.

This work is made possible through federal aid for vocational agriculture work. Mr. Earle Thomas, at Isabella school, is arranging similar work, but we are unable to give his program in this issue. It will be printed as soon as we can get an outline from him.

Make 1933 A Safe Year

A publication of the National Safety Council carries an excellent New Year wish: "Three hundred and sixty-five safe and happy days to you for 1933."

If that wish could bear fruit, it would be a magnificent thing for the country. It would save thousands of lives which would otherwise be needlessly destroyed—it would keep for useful purposes the billion or so dollars that is wasted annually through accidents—it would make for happier and better working conditions, and more efficient industries. Nothing is so destructive to the morale of the worker as a series of serious accidents in his plant.

The safety movement has been making good progress for a long time. There has been a general decrease in the number and severity of accidents—aside from those caused by automobiles.

The careless, reckless and irresponsible driver kills about 33,000 people a year nowadays.

We can make 1933 the greatest safety year in our time. We can do it by giving the little effort, the little thought, the little care, that is needed to make our homes, our places of business and the public highways safer. We can do it by giving consideration to the rights of the other fellow. As individuals, we have the power to save thousands of irreplaceable lives this year—Let's do it!

About 89,000,000 Japanese electric lamps were imported into this country by the end of 1932. Since these lamps use 20.5 per cent more current than American-made lamps, the supposedly-cheap imports are costing users an extra $11,000,000 annually.

Share The Work And Do It Now

The two outstanding public men in the United States are earnest believers in the "Share-the-Work" movement. According to President Hoover, "This movement affords one of the most practicable methods of speedily relieving the present distressing unemployment situation and should have the active cooperation of every employer and employe."

According to President-elect Roosevelt, "It is not enough to get the big nation-wide industrial organizations to put the 'Share-the-Work' plan into operation; it is equally important to get the smaller corporations and smaller corporations and smaller employers in every community to put work-sharing into their individual plants and businesses."

As this unanimity of opinion shows, "Share-the-Work" is a matter that goes beyond politics and party, and touches a vital problem of the moment. It is essential to the future of the country that what work there is be so dispersed as to afford a living to the largest possible number of workers. "Share-the-Work" is a powerful weapon with which to overcome unemployment.

It is especially noteworthy that both the President and the President-elect accentuate the need for smaller businesses following the lead of the larger ones. That is essential to the success of the movement. The bulk of the employment in this country is provided by comparatively small industries, and their influence will be the determining one in working out any plan of this kind.

Share-theWork—and do it now!

Without Railroad Prosperity --- What?

An article in Railway Age on "Railway Purchases—A Vital Force in Business Recovery," brings out vividly the influence of the transport problem on the lives of all workers, all farmers, all producers.

In the five years previous to 1930, railway purchases averaged over two billion dollars a year. In the past three years reductions in these purchases have amounted to almost $3,000,000,000.

This decline is greater than all the loans and appropriations made by the federal government for public works and relief.

It has brought distress to a multitude of communities, has affected every state in the Union, and has thrown hundreds of thousands of workers, in a large number of industries, out of employment.

The iron and steel industries, the lumber and copper industries, the oil and coal and electric supply business, in the past, have counted on the railroads for a heavy percentage of their sales.

Restoration of railway purchasing power is indispensable to business recovery. No one can doubt that stimulated rail activity would be one of the greatest blows we could strike against unemployment, against low general purchasing power, against depression.

"ROUND TOWN"

Do you know who has a team of mules they would like to trade for a Dodge truck? Mr. B. A. Vanderburg, of Jemison, Ala., Route 2, writes this column that he has a good one and one-half ton Dodge truck he would like to trade for a team of mules or horses, wagon and feed. He says this truck has a stake body, is in good running order and cost $1,650 when it was new. Now if you know of anyone who would be interested in this trade, get them to get in touch with Mr. Vanderburg.

Send in your letters folks, if you have something you want to trade for something else. Address them to this column in care of the Chilton County News, and I'll take care of them for you. Nope, it won't cost you a cent to get it in this column. Just remember, it is for anything you want to trade, and not anything you have-for-sale or want to buy. I received two letters this week listing some things for sale, but the Editor won't let me use them. He says he has a Classified Ad column for those. Let's get started in this trading business folks, so send in your list with your name and address.

A fellow, that is, I mean a young lady, asked me the other day when I was gonna select another Who's Who in Clanton. Back when I used to select my Who's Who in Clanton, it was 1930 B. D. (Before Depression) and since then, things and people have changed so that it is hard to check up on a fellow. In other words most folks are kind of quiet these days, but sometime I might select one.

Thanks To Man In The Moon

Last week the Man In The Moon, of The Union-Banner opened up his erstwhile shell and poured out something that touched my own heart. Likewise it must have touched the Editor of C. G. N., because a smile crept over his face when he read what The Man had to say, and he turned to me and requested that I express for him, his sincere thanks for that comment, through this column this week. And I too express my thanks for that recognition.

A little bit of kindness these days goes a long way, folks.

Just want to direct your attention to the article in the News this week about the Menace of Highway Railroads.

The Ed was telling me what Mr. Henry Pipes told him the other day, and it just occurred to me that there might be something to that after all, since you mentioned it, Mr. Pipes. However, I'm like you, I haven't noticed anything out of the ordinary, or peculiar about that fellow. He certainly doesn't give it away, at that.

Have you ever watched a telephone operator while she is at the board working? Well, I have, and if everyone would go down to the telephone exchange and watch the operators for awhile during their busy hours, there would not be anyone who would give a telephone operator a bawling out about getting the wrong number, or something. I am in sympathy with telephone operators. I've seen them get real busy, and I don't believe a Philadelphia lawyer could straighten out that bunch of wires. But the operator can, if she is given just a little time.

I heard of the derndest money-making scheme the other day I have ever heard of in my life. Boy it was a corker, and I can't figure out yet, who loses and how. I'm gonna look into it a little more and see if I want to bite, or something.

There seems to be a little misunderstanding or an understanding about Chilton county borrowing that fifty thousand dollars you hear talk about. Now they are calling an election in the county to see if the voters want the county to borrow it. My suggestion to the voters is that they look into that thing thoroughly before they do much talking and any voting at all. I can't figure out just how a county can borrow that much money and not have to pay it back. Wouldn't it be great if some of us poor folks could pull a stunt like that. Somebody might get killed in the rush, or something.

Now about this Local Bill to elect the county superintendent of education. I see that the Bill has been changed a little since it was published last week. A few requirements of the candidate have been cut out, which makes the Bill a little less containing shark teeth, as it were.

* * *

It would have pleased me mightily if the Groundhog had not seen his shadow the other day and stayed out to visit us for a spell. Now he noticed his shadow, became frightened or something, rushed back into his hole and we are in for some more bad weather. And it came Monday in Clanton, if you ask me. For sometime I didn't take much stock in that groundhog business, but I'm beginning to change my tune about that.

It just occurred to me that if the merchants, business men, city officials and county officials would get their heads together in Clanton, and, or, Chilton county, something could be done about creating more business in our town. How? Well, just like the editorial on the front page of the News said last week. I believe that if the thousands of dollars spent away from Clanton each year by Chilton county people, would be spent in Clanton or some town in the county, we wouldn't feel this drop in business nearly so bad as we are feeling it.

Not only that, but it just gives me a disgusting feeling to see some of our "big, public spirited" (?) citizens romping around like Senators or something, and letting this little, but all-important item pass by. There are a few men in the county who could get together and accomplish this, if they would. And neither of them would have to spend any money. Now the question is, "Why don't they?"

* * *

They are passing up a mighty good thing. Our city officials would do well to sponsor a movement of this kind, issue a proclamation, urge all business men to cooperate, and you'd see a change in things, is my opinion.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

While I was standing at the counter of a grocery store two customers entered the door at the same time. Young men met them for service. One of the customers knew what she wanted and the clerk waiting on her ran circles over the store until her supply was on the counter. This was checked up and the bill amounted to $3.49. The goods were placed in her car and she was gone in less than five minutes. I closely observed the other customer. She did not know what she wanted. The clerk urged her on but she halted and hesitated. She would handle the goods and then place them back, but gave no orders. The clerk consumed twenty minutes with her and she finally left the store with a five-cent bunch of turnips. The article bought should have been lemons. Blessed is the customer who knows what she wants. A customer must think that clerk hire is very cheap when she consumes twenty minutes of his time and buys a nickel's worth.

I scattered some chicken feed in the back yard. There was enough for all the fowls and some to spare, but as soon as they started eating, they also started to pecking and spurring each other. There was plenty for all, but they had to fight over it. Soon the birds came for their share and there was plenty and some to spare, but they set up a big fight. One day I carried some bones and scraps to my dogs. There was plenty and to spare. Soon they were fighting. After they had eaten and fought all they wanted, along came some cats, and they ate and fought until they were satisfied. God created land and water in abundance and then set it before the human race. There was enough and to spare, but soon they were fighting over it. It just seems that it is in chickens, birds, dogs, cats and folks to fight. When there is plenty and to spare it is foolish to fight.

The hired man at home was given the job of trimming up a large oak. He climbed into the tree and perched himself on a limb and started to sawing between where he was and the body of the tree. There were four youngsters on the ground and we became alarmed at the man, thinking that he was going to stand on the limb and saw it off. We warned him of the danger, but he kept pulling the saw. Finally the limb began to give and the man stepped over to another limb and continued his work. He stood on the danger end of the limb until it started to giving way under him and then he stepped to safety. That man acted just as many sinners are doing today. Sin is sawing the limb off between you and the body of the tree of life. Many keep sinning until they feel their life slipping from them and then they offer God the ragged end by stepping to safety in forgiveness. There are others who keep sinning until the limb of life is sawed off and they go down with it. The tree of life is crowded with men and women who are sawing the limb of life in two between them and life everlasting. Just keep on sawing, sinning and soon you will tumble into everlasting death. How foolish to saw the limb off between you and everlasting life.

I stood behind a clump of bushes and watched a large drove of Black birds at play. They were romping over a burned over sage field. A strong March wind was blowing and I observed that the birds would fly close to the ground with the blowing wind. At no time would they rise more than four feet above the ground. In the midst of their joy and fun, my dog lunged out toward the birds and frightened them. They lifted themselves on their wings, but they did not fly with the wind, but against it. They went almost straight into the air and all because they flew against the blowing winds. On the field of life we can see great hosts of men and women who are playing about with the currents that blow. They drift with the tide, and they never rise to an exalted altitude of living. If you want to be lifted into the sky, face the currents and use them as pulling power for loftier living. We only go up when we meet the currents that blow and the tides that drift, with the wings of our faith set for an upward flight. It is hard pulling, but it is rapid climbing when we battle against currents.

A huntsman was in the woods looking for game. He heard a noise near him and turning to make sure of himself, he saw a large reptile as it made its leap for his limb. As quick as a flash his strong hand clinched about the neck of the serpent's head just as it was going to plant its fangs into his flesh. He held the snake in a firm grip while it coiled itself about his arm and body and exhausted its dying strength in the firm hand of the one who was intended for death. You had better watch your step. When you least think of it, there are reptiles hiding near you in the form of temptation. When you see temptation coming toward you, it behooves you to seize that reptile with a firm grip. If you do this the power of temptation will exhaust itself under your will power, but if you fail to grip the thing that tempts you with firmness, it will plant its poison of death in your soul. When you see temptation coming make yourself safe by flight, or by the grip of will power.

The Menace Of The Highway Freight Train

Excerpts from an address delivered by C. L. Jellinghaus, Superintendent of Property Protection, New York Central Railroad, at a recent meeting of the New York Sectional Committee, Protective Section, American Railway Association, in New York City, publication of which was suggested by General Manager C. T. Williamson, Empire State Department, Buffalo, N. Y.

Among the rank and file of railway transportation employes, bus and truck competition as affecting the railroads has been a subject of much discussion. That this competition has had a serious effect upon railroad revenue is well known, but its effect on the rank and file an dthe individual railroad employe's iinterest in the situation has not been as fully appreciated.

The unfairness of this competition is obvious. The railroad company must provide its own right-of-way, file tariffs, carry all freight tendered and is subject to much State and Federal regulation. On the other hand, trucks in particular are in many Eastern States under no particular restrictions, do not have to file tariffs nor do they submit to accounting, and have the benefit of public-maintained highways toward the cost and maintenance of which they subscribe but a small proportion, considering that cost and maintenance are much higher because of the weight and size of the trucks.

It has often been stated that motor vehicles pay the entire cost of highways. Dr. Duncan, economist of the American Railway Association, states that they paid but 22% for the eight years from 1923 to 1930, while the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce places the figure at 80%.

A Commission appointed by the New York State Legislature to study taxation in general reported that from 1920 to 1930 the total expenditure for state and local highways was over $1,757,000,000 while during that period the total receipts from motor vehicle licenses and motor fuel taxes were but $296,000,000, or $1,461,000,000 short.

This latter amount came from general state and local taxes, special assessments and other sources. In 1930, New York State spent over $242,000,000 for highways and received but $64,000,000 from motor vehicles. The amount spent on highways in 1930 exceeded by more than $100,000,000 the total state and local taxes for all purposes in 1900!

High State Highway Costs

These are stupendous figures, but what is not generally realized is that because of the large busses and the enormous trucks, the concrete slabs of a modern highway must be thicker and wider, and more lanes must be provided. The pleasure vehicles and the light truck do not necessitate such expensive highways as the states are building today. On excellent authority, it is stated that the additional cost of building roads for heavy trucks runs from $9,000 to $10,000 per mile.

Another striking feature of this picture is brought out by a mechanical engineer of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, who says: "Roads designed to carry three-ton vehicles without undue deterioration, will be satisfactory for about 95% of the vehicles in use today. To accommodate 4% of the remaining 5%, roads of double this strength would be required, while to be correspondingly safe for the heaviest group, roads from three to five times as strong would be necessary.

The additional cost of the stronger roads where they are built, and the excessive maintenance cost of the lighter roads, where the stronger ones are not provided, are directly chargeable to the relatively small number of heavy vehicles. In addition, these same vehicles occupy more road space, and require considerably wider roads, thus further increasing their share of highway costs."

Burden On Taxpayers

Another authoritative statement places the number of trucks five tons or over manufactured during the past four years at less than 2% of total truck production. For the past seven years they constitute 2.2%. In 1930, there were roughly 340,000 trucks of all types registered in New York State, and two per cent would mean 6400 trucks of 5 tons or larger.

To tax these trucks to pay for their use of the highway would tax them out of existence. Therefore, the heavy truck cannot be justified on economic grounds, and is a burden upon the taxpayer. Whether the railroads originate the idea, or wait until villages and counties on the verge of bankruptcy awake to the condition, sooner or later freight cars on highways must be prohibited.

It is the purpose of this column to discuss and comment briefly on events that are unusual or out of the ordinary.

A fifty-seven-year-old London citizen named Datas, renowned as "the man with the World's best memory," has sold his head to a group of London physicians for $5,000 and a quarterly sum of $425 until his death. He remembers twenty thousand dates, the name of every jockey that has ridden in a race in England during the past fifty years, the amount of the purse and who won it, and thousands of other facts.

The physicians hope that a scientific analysis of his brain at his death will reveal the reason for his unusual ability to remember. In 1904 Datas sold his head to four American doctors for $30,000, but outlived all four and his head became his own property again.

Don't lose your head; it may be worth than you think it is.

A well-known biologist has declared that people are gradually becoming dumber and offered this proof. Six generations hence, he avers, one-thousand Harvard or Yale graduates will have only fifty living descendants, while one-thousand laborers will have more than one-hundred-thousand. With the limited chances and the inherited handicaps under which the one-hundred-thousand must live, civilization must naturally retrograde, he said.

Not a bad argument for birth control anyway.

HENRY GRADY'S ADVICE

Henry W. Grady, the great Southern editor and orator, died 43 years ago, but the advice he gave to the farmers of his native Georgia and the South many years ago is as sound today as it was when it was uttered.

One particular gem of his which has been often republished is of particular significance just now. It applies equally to North or South, provided the principal money crop of any particular section be substituted for "cotton," where it occurs in the original. Grady said:

"When every farmer in the South shall eat bread from his own fields and meat from his own pastures, and disturbed by no creditor and enslaved by no debt, shall sit among his teeming gardens and orchards and vineyards and dairies and barnyards, pitching his crops in his own wisdom and growing them in independence, making cotton his clean surplus and selling it in his own time and in his chosen market and not at a master's bidding—getting his pay in cash and not in a receipted mortgage that discharges his debt but does not restore his freedom—then shall be breaking the fullness of our day."

SANDERS REPLIES TO LETTER FROM JACKSON

Editor, Chilton County News:

Please allow me space in one of your columns to say a few words in regard to Mr. A. A. Jackson's letter to the farmers and taxpayers of Chilton county. He took the Jackson Chapel Plan of relief work for his text, and tried to show its defects by using the minimum amount of products to be paid for a day's work and below the minimum price of said product.

If Mr. Jackson had inaugurated this plan it would have been all right, but since he didn't it's all wrong, and it's too bad that Mr. Stapp and the county papers recommended this plan. I'm sure if they had consulted with Mr. Jackson this plan would have never been recommended.

Mr. Jackson failed to tell the farmers and taxpayers that anybody offered more than one bushel of corn, or one gallon of syrup per day. He didn't tell them that some had offered two bushels of corn or two gallons of syrup or seven and one-half pounds of meat per day. He didn't tell them that corn was worth as much for bread today as it was when it was bringing two dollars per bushel. He didn't tell you that meat was worth as much to eat now as it was when it was bringing forty cents per pound.

Mr. Jackson said the plan might be all right if it didn't put the servant above his master. Intelligence is not going to prompt any man to do away with any plan that will eliminate suffering among women and children.

The county is paying me sixty dollars per year for my services as a board member. If Mr. Jackson thinks I'm getting too much money, why don't he have a law put through this extra session of the legislature to have my salary cut, instead of trying to do away with a plan that might help someone?

Mr. Jackson never said that he was willing for people to get something for nothing, but since he said the plan was unfair, I presume he was.

He said I would go down and sit with the board from about ten until two o'clock. I wonder where he got such information. Somebody needs to confine themselves more closely to the truth.

I haven't heard of anybody selling corn for twenty-five cents per bushel. I wonder if Mr. Jackson has any corn to sell at twenty-five cents per bushel; or has he a bushel of corn to give some man to feed his hungry wife and children for a day's work? If he has it's more than I have heard.

You notice Mr. Jackson said the Tax Collector and Assessor were making enough money to purchase six hundred and forty bushels of corn. I would advise Mr. Jackson to figure again because my figures show that his estimated 20,000 bushels per year divided by 313 working days average him only sixty-three and a fraction of a bushel (almost 64) per day instead of the 640—an error of only 576 bushels per day.

The eliminating of the plan of the farmers helping each other would not reduce the salaries of the officials. I'll admit that the salaries of these two officials are too high, but it will take some constructive legislation instead of destructive criticism.

Mr. Jackson said he did not blame the officials for the existing conditions any more than he did the people who put them into office. In the next paragraph he also stated that the people should have some resentment against such a system that has brought about such conditions. (What a contradiction!)

In regard to the criticism made against the mass meetings held by citizens, teachers and officials for the purpose of devising some plan by which the destitute might be helped, the delinquent taxes paid and the schools kept open, I wish to state that Mr. Jackson never raised his voice to offer one suggestion by which the conditions could be relieved. I think it little of a person to criticise the action of a people without having something better to offer.

Mr. Jackson has criticised the action of the County Board to me many times in which I gave him a special invitation to meet with the board and tell them what he had to tell me, but he has never been the man to stick his head inside the door when the board was in session. Do you call this statesmanship?

This is the kind of statesman Mr. Jackson has been for the past few years, he has looked for a controversy with someone through the papers. It seems that his whole heart's desire is to fuss with somebody. I regret very much having to come out before the public with a letter like this because I desire no controversy with anyone.

I do not object to any constructive criticism from people with common reason and who will not use unjust tactics to make an example of someone.

When a person criticises something that's done for a local benefit and offers in its place, something that will have to be enacted by the federal government, he hasn't done much.

I hope that Mr. Jackson will not force me to write another letter like this, for I have no desire to quarrel with anyone. I rather he would take his wisdom to Montgomery and get things straight down there and make a dive for Washington and tell them what to do up there. This would suit me better than trying to pick a fuss out of me and everybody else that will fuss. In fact, it will be more honor to him to straighten out a state and national government than it will be to put down a little fellow like me.

Thanking Mr. Smith for this space, I will close.

W. L. SANDERS.

DORMINEY SAYS "NO" ON THE $50,000.00 LOAN

Jemison, Ala., Route 1.

Editor, Chilton County News:

The reason I haven't let you hear from me for the last week or two is I kindly or sorter ran out of "subject material." However, this week I have more than I can really give justice to.

Now, Mr. Editor, no doubt you have noticed in my letters of the past that I have been pretty careful how I used two words, namely "know" and "never". I will continue to dodge these words until I gain more information, education and experience.

I noticed on the front page of The Union-Banner this last week an election would be called on Tuesday, February 21st, in regard to borrowing $50,000.00 from the R. F. C.

If I don't change my mind or something I will vote No. I believe the same principle that works best in small business will also work best in big business. I do not think it best for me as an individual to borrow money and I do not think it best for the county. The Better Business Bureau of Birmingham, sometime ago, sent out some instructions or advice reading like this, "Before you invest, investigate," and "read before you sign." If we ever needed to go slow and think fast it is now. Are you doing your own thinking, or are you letting someone else do your thinking for you? You know 'tis said that one ounce of brains is worth 16 pounds of hard muscle, and I believe all is and then some.

You readers have no doubt heard it said, "The last man to a fire puts it out." When I was a boy I happened to see this clearly demonstrated. My father and a bunch of us boys were out in the field at work when we noticed my uncle's house on fire. Some of you know how exciting a fire is. We boys ran for all we were worth, and when we got there smoke and lots of smoke was boiling out through the top of the house. We boys grabbed up axes, picks, crowbars and ladders and we went to work in a hurry, tearing and digging through the roof and sides of his house. We had a hole through the roof and were knocking through overhead ceiling when my father got there and he went on inside of the house and located the fire up on the mantle above the fire place. He at once put out the fire with one little bucket of water. We boys had done ten times more damage to the house than the fire.

My grandmother had laid her pipe with fire in it on a book and it caught on fire, burning a small hole through the ceiling.

Now, readers, here is the point I'm driving at: We boys were traveling fast and thinking slow. My father was traveling slow and thinking fast. If we will draw a picture of this county as one big house and containing one big family and this house being on fire from depression not caused by pipe being laid upon mantle, but, by war debts, by high tariff, by revenue and high taxes, by high salaries, by too big a crop of fellows being on the "pay roll" and last, but not least, Prohibition. Now, Mr. Editor, I believe you will somewhat agree with me that we cannot put out this fire of depression by adding any of the above named fuel to the fire, but will have to use some good pure economy water. Now, am I right? Or, am I right? As I see it now, I am against this loan.

How many thousands are there in this county? You will no doubt agree that practically all need help. Will this money be equally divided? If so, how much do you think you would get? Please figure this out and tell me thru your paper or some way if you can.

Mr. Editor, you may hear from me again next week.

Yours very truly,
S. Y. DORMINEY.

February 6th, 1933.

THIS LAWRENCE EDWARDS DID NOT GET MARRIED

When two persons have the same name, and one of them gets married and it is in the newspapers, it is likely to cause some misunderstandings. And that is what happened last week. In the list of marriage licenses published last week in the News, appeared the name of Lawrence Edwards.

There is another Lawrence Edwards, son of VanBuren Edwards, at Lomax. He was in the News office Saturday and said it was not he who took the step into the sea of matrimony, as many people were believing.

Good Pastures Are Gaining In Alabama

Auburn, Ala.—Continued increase in permanent pastures in Alabama is shown by 1932 reports of county demonstration agents sent to extension headquarters of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

For example, 224 pasture meetings were held in 1931 against 429 in 1932; 865 completed demonstrations in 1931 against 1,941 in 1932; and a total acreage increase from 38,812 in 1931 to 61,988 in 1932.

Pastures were planted on lowlands—lands near streams of water. Briars and bushes were removed from the land in the winter when other farm work was not pressing. The general practice was to clear out all under-growth and leave only enough trees for shade.

The land was not plowed but the seed were planted on a firm seedbed, sowing them on unbroken ground in late winter and early spring—not covering the seed.

Asked to name the leading pasture plants for Alabama, J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn, replied, "Bermuda grass, lespedeza, carpet grass Dallis grass, and, in some sections, redtop and white clover."

Lowery added that there are excellent pasture plants for each county in the state, that starting a pasture costs very little, that it can be maintained easily and at little expense, and that a good pasture of this kind is invaluable to the farmer who has livestock of any kind.

SENSE AND SPEED

It has been rather well established that laws which arbitrarily fix speed limits for automobiles are little protection against accidents. The speed at which one may safely drive depends upon the road and traffic conditions involved.

A high executive of one of the leading automobile manufacturing companies, who has made a close study of speed in its relation to accidents, declares that 50 or even 60 miles an hour over good open roads in the country may be safer than 15 miles an hour in cutting corners in town.

The safe driver is not necessarily the slow driver, but one who uses common sense whether driving fast or slow. Careless driving while turning corners, passing pedestrians or other cars, crossing railroad tracks and maneuvering in congested traffic is the greatest menace to life and limb.

TORNADO SEASON ARRIVES; TWISTERS FAIL TO APPEAR

By George L. Davis
In The Montgomery Advertiser

While Alabama's tornado season is in full swing and no twister thus far has descended upon the State this year, Alabamians generally and especially those who live upon high elevations, will do well to keep a watchful eye upon the weather within the next two months or so, according to the records of the Montgomery Weather Bureau.

The record shows that tornadoes strike most frequently in Alabama during January, February and March, and not infrequently in April.

The Montgomery weatherman is not permitted to make any predictions concerning tornadoes, for the reason that such prediction could not be made with any degree of accuracy, but facts disclosed by the records of tornadoes in the past, disclose certain accompanying weather characteristics that will aid and perhaps forewarn the layman.

These characteristics are simple and easily observed.

In the first place the weather must be generally cloudy and unseasonably warm. Rainfall may or may not accompany the cloudy condition and by "unseasonably warm" is meant a temperature principally of from 60 to 70 degrees or above during January, February or March.

Second: The wind generally must come from the south or southwest. Almost invariably the tornado wind comes from the southwest and moves the tornado northeastward.

According to past records these are the principal characteristics for the layman to observe. If the weather is generally cloudy and cold there is little if any danger of a tornado condition appearing, so long as the temperature remains low.

Monday, for instance, furnished an example of such a condition. The weather was generally cloudy, the wind switched to the South, but the temperature remained low throughout the day beginning at 30 degrees early Monday morning and rising to 44 degrees at 7 p.m.

Of course there are other influences and conditions that are as strong in the occurrence of a tornado as those mentioned, but they are of little value to the layman for the reason that he can not observe them.

The question the layman, therefore, should ask himself to be on his guard is: "Is the weather cloudy, is it unusually warm for this time of year, and is the wind blowing from the south or southwest?"

If the answer is in the affirmative it does not of course, necessarily mean that a tornado will strike in the State, but it does mean that it is very unlikely one will strike unless these conditions prevail.

Actually, however, the intensity of a tornado is governed by the variation in temperature, but the layman in Montgomery has no way of knowing the temperature in Birmingham or Florence at the same hour.

On March 21 last year, for instance, when five tornadoes raked the State in the worst disaster of its kind on record, the variation in temperature between Montgomery and Birmingham was approximately 30 degrees, Birmingham reporting a temperature of around 40 and Montgomery about 70 at the same hour.

Another fact disclosed by the record shows that there is no method by which one can base the slightest guess as to where a tornado will strike. The records show they generally strike from 300 to 600 miles from the center of the cloud area.

For instance, the center of the storm or cloud area when the tornadoes struck Alabama last March was east of St. Louis and not far from Memphis.

Tornadoes, too, always are followed by a terrific downpour of rain. They may be preceded by occasional showers or a continuous drizzle, but after the high winds come and the rain begins falling in torrents, then the layman may heave a sigh of relief, for the danger of a tornado has passed.

The cause of the tornado is the rapid change in the weight or density of the air. This change occurs when cold dry air pressed in against warm moist air which sets up a rapid condensation of the moisture causing the air to assume a whirling motion. The more rapid the condensation, or the colder and warmer the conflicting air currents, the greater the intensity of the tornado.

Stable Manure Ranks High As A Fertilizer

Auburn, Ala.—Stable manure ranks high as a fertilizer for cotton (also corn and other crops) on Alabama lands. The experiment Station at Auburn has found in an experiment running 8 years that 5 tons of stable manure applied to an acre was better than other fertilizers. Actual figures are 1,581 pounds of seed cotton per acre where 5 tons of manure was applied; 1,348 pounds after a crop of hairy vetch; 1,287 pounds where fertilized with 325 pounds of nitrate of soda. Each fertilized plot received the same amount of superphosphate and muriate of potash.

Having determined the value of it, the Alabama Experiment Station gave suggestions about care of farm manure. "Supply bedding of leaves, pine needles, or grain straw for comfort of animals and to absorb the valuable liquid manure, thus keeping the manure wet. As soon as manure is removed from stables, scatter it over the field. Do not place it in small heaps in the field to be scattered later. This may result in almost complete loss of nitrogen.

"By keeping halls in the barns, sheds, and the barnlot well covered with litter, leaves, or straw much valuable manure can be saved in addition to keeping the lot from being unpleasant for walking.

"If the barnlot is too large to cover with bedding, build a pen of rails or logs and cover the bottom with 12 to 15 inches of litter. Use sufficient litter to absorb the water from the usual rainfall to prevent loss from leaching. Rake up the droppings in the lot and throw them into this pen until almost one foot deep. Then add another layer of litter. Build up in alternate layers until about 6 feet high. This pen should be built in the open so that the rainfall will keep the manure wet. Keep the sides of the pile straight and the top flat.

BABY NOW HAS CHANCE

In the long list of accomplishments to the credit of modern medical science perhaps none has a greater significance than the success attained in the reduction of childhood deaths.

A recent writer recalls that Queen Anne of England, born in 1664, bore 17 children, only one of whom lived more than a year, and he died at the age of 11. Now large families of children often mature without a death.

Through medical education and the treatment of early defects the child's chance of reaching maturity has been greatly increased, especially during the last half century. The lengthened average span of human life which now prevails is largely due to the reduction of mortality among infants.

In addition to regularly employed physicians and nurses of public health units, thousands of volunteer workers are cooperating in the noble task of saving babies' lives. In Kansas City alone it is said that 3,000 of these volunteers aided in this movement last year.

For their effective efforts in this and other directions looking to the preservation of human life the medical profession and those cooperating are entitled to the highest praise.

Great Social Drama In Animal Kingdom

To make it clear that "The Animal Kingdom" is not a sequel to Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive," nor any sort of menagerie picture, the Wadesonian Theatre announces that their attraction for February 9 and 10 is a sophisticated drama of modern life.

The title comes from the heroine's contention that, when it comes to love and an appreciation of its spiritual values, human being still belong pretty much to the animal kingdom. And the events of the photoplay seem to prove her right!

Ann Harding and Leslie Howard are co-starred in "The Animal Kingdom," from one of the most successful plays of Philip Barry, who wrote "Holiday" and "Paris Bound," two of Miss Harding's most successful pictures. Others in the cast of this RKO-Radio Picture, directed by Edward H. Griffith, are Myrna Loy, William Gargan, Neil Hamilton, Henry Stephenson and Ilka Chase.

Got Over Weak, Painful Condition By Taking Cardui

"I was weak and run-down and suffered quite a bit with pains in my side," writes Mrs. Nick Barranco, of Beaumont, Texas. "I was nervous. I did not rest well at night, and my appetite was poor.

"My mother had used Cardui with beneficial result, so I decided to take it. I surely am glad I did, for it stopped the pain in my side and built up my general health. I took seven bottles in all."

For over 50 years, Cardui has been helping women just as this Texas lady describes above.

Cardui is sold at all drug stores.

More Range Users
In 12 Months!

APPROXIMATELY 1,056 more Alabama women are now enjoying the comfort and convenience of electric cooking on this date in 1933 than on the same date one year ago.

Among these 1,056 women, we are prepared to say that we do not believe that even one can be found who will not say that electric cooking is far, far superior to old fashioned methods. Some of the reasons?

- IT'S CLEAN No soot to blacken utensils, curtains, walls. No fumes, no smoke.
- IT'S AUTOMATIC You simply place your entire meal in the oven, set the time and temperature controls and the rest of the day is yours until dinner's ready.
- IT'S COOL Your kitchen is just about the same temperature as any room in your house.
- IT'S BETTER All natural juices are retained, SEALED IN. Foods have a finer flavor.

Joe Brown A Comic Marathon Swimmer In His Newest Film

More hilarious gags and comedy stunts are said to be involved in Joe E. Brown's latest First National picture, "You Said a Mouthful," than any production which has been shown on the screen in many years. The entire story, which will be unfolded at the Wadesonian Theatre on February 14 and 15 is based on a series of grotesque errors which lead to the most surprising and laughable incidents.

Joe, in the character role of an artless boob, is both afraid of the water an unable to swim. Mistaken for a champion swimmer, he is forced into a marathon race and comes out a victor through the most unusual lucky breaks imaginable. The scenes, which were taken in the icy waters at Catalina Island, near Los Angeles, lend themselves to many new and astonishingly funny water stunts.

Brown is said to be at his funniest, and has as his co-worker, mascot and swim mentor, that roguish imp of the "Our Gang" comedies, Farina. Ginger Rogers, the red-haired and peppery musical comedy and screen star, who played in a similar capacity opposite Brown in "The Tenderfoot," is again the leading lady, with Preston Foster, Sheila Terry, Guinn Williams and Harry Gribbon heading a strong supporting cast.

The story was written by William B. Dover and adapted into screen form by Robert Lord and Bolton Mallory. It was directed by Lloyd Bacon.

Karl Oepfer, former Prussian officer, was convicted of marrying four women in two days.

After being hurt three times in auto smashups, George Kedzie of Palatine, Ill., sold his motor car and now walks three miles to the railway station.

Guessing exactly to an ounce the weight of a man, J. A. Conner of Glasgow won an automobile.

Two burglars met while trying to rob a West London jewelery store and got into a fight, both being arrested.

Mrs. Hannah Corsin of St. Louis, who had her husband arrested for desertion, admitted she threw him bodily out of their home.

MY PRECIOUS MISS MONNIE BAKER

And when I lay this body down
All on my bed to sleep
We miss her smiles everywhere,
Which cause me to weep.

Yes, a few days have passed and gone
Since Miss Monnie went away.
I wept and prayed for her return,
But Miss Monnie went to stay.

Go, Pilgrim, to thy home,
To soothe my aching brow,
To cool my burning fevered lips—
We have no Miss Monnie now.

We should not wish her back again
In this dark and dreary world,
Although I know she dearly loved
Her darling friends.

Miss Monnie lay and suffered long
Before death set her free.
But now she dwells where Jesus is
And she's waiting there for us.

My Lord saw fit to take her home,
And set her spirit free,
But while on earth dear Lord, I roam
I humbly trust in Thee.

Miss Monnie again I hope to meet
In that sweet home above;
There I can fall at Jesus's feet
And sing redeeming love.

Oh! Won't that be a happy time
When Miss Monnie's face I see
And the golden gate rolls open wide
And Miss Monnie Welcome us all.

Oh, how sweet to dwell in heaven,
And see dear Miss Monnie smile,
And hear her say as I go in,
Oh! That's my darling friends!

Miss Monnie's gone, I need not weep.
She cannot come any more,
But soon I hope to meet her there
And rest on Canaan's Shore.

the council to guarantee the validity of the scrip; then two thousand one-dollar scrips will be issued, to be used in payment for work by the town. Stamps of three-cent denomination to cover the amount, with eight per cent extra for the expense of printing, will also be issued. Each person through whose hands the note passes must place a stamp, purchased from the town of Clanton, on the note until it bears thirty-six, when it is redeemable by the town in currency.

Thus seventy-two thousand dollars worth of buying power would be put into operation in Clanton, the town would get two thousand dollars worth of work done for nothing and would make a small profit on the stamps, every business man who handled the scrip would make his profit, and maybe the gnawing pains of the depression would be alleviated to some extent.

The original idea of this plan of placing more money into circulation was conceived by a jeweler in Montgomery last Spring, and was given wide publicity at the time. Since then several towns in Alabama and other states have adopted the system with slight revisions and in many places it is reported to be meeting with success.

Interest on the total principal amount unpaid to date of payment on account of principal, at the rate of three per centum per annum, to be paid when and as installments on account of principal shall be paid, not later than the respective dates above set out.

It is understood that this obligation is executed in the name of the County of Chilton without representation as to their authority to do so and without personal liability of the Chairman or the individual members of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County.

The above obligation is payable only out of the Federal Road Funds available to Chilton County, and shall in no way effect the constitutional debt limitations or the general revenues of Chilton County, Alabama.

It is understood that this obligation is given for advances made by the Governor of Alabama to the County of Chilton from money advanced to it by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, under Section 1 of the Emergency Relief and Construction Act of 1932. If the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or the Federal Government should not deduct from Federal Aid Funds due the State of Alabama the amount advanced to it from funds due the State for the years 1935, 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, or any of them, this obligation is to be void and the funds being advanced are not to be repaid, but if the Reconstruction Finance Corporation does deduct the funds or the Federal Government, or any of its departments, deducts the funds as now permitted by law from the Federal aid to be paid to the State of Alabama, then the amount herein shown is to be deducted from funds which would be due to the County of Chilton from the State of Alabama on allotment of such Federal aid funds so deducted. Gulledge Station In Verbena Is Destroyed

o

Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the Verbena Service Station and garage late Wednesday night of last week. According to information given the News, the blaze was discovered about eleven o'clock that night and haid gained such headway that it was impossible to control it. The fire is said to have started in the service station and spread to the garage which adjoined.

This service station and garage was one of the most popular and most widely known of its kind between Birmingham and Montgomery, and was owned and operated by Charles E. Gulledge for a number of years.

The two places and their contents were a total loss. The Clanton Fire Department was called, and by pumping water from the creek was able to keep the flames from spreading to other buildings nearby, several of which were in danger.

Mr. Gulledge told a representative of the News that he was not positive he would rebuild but hoped that arrangements could be made so he could rebuild his station.

CHANGES MADE IN COUNTY JOBS

MASS MEETING SET FOR SATURDAY

ONLY QUALIFIED VOTERS TO ACT IN CO. ELECTION

Whole Affair Is Suggested Dropped By Commisioner In Discussion

Consternation prevailed at the regular quarterly meeting of the Commissioners' Court, Monday afternoon, when Commissioner J. C. Atchison, of Maplesville, astounded other members of the body with a move to rescind the Court's action of two meetings ago in regard to the application for a $50,000 relief loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds leaped to his feet with the assertion: "Gentlemen, you act like children!" charging that the inconsistency of the members of the court in regard to this matter is beyond his comprehension. He declared that for several months he has exerted every possible effort in behalf of this proposal, only to repeatedbly be baffled by some inconsistency in the Court's action.

Judge Reynolds charged that petty political propaganda, with personal vengeance the paramount purpose, is being spread over the county by those who oppose this loan.

It was voted unanimously to allow only legal voters to cast ballot in the special election which will be held February 21, for the purpose of allowing the people of the county to express their wishes in regard to obtaining the loan.

Even after the meeting had adjourned, discussion between the pros and cons waxed warm on almost every street corner, Monday afternoon.

CONWAY SAYS ATTEND MEET HERE SATURDAY

Urges Those Opposing Loan To Be Present And State Opinions

To the People of Chilton County:

Please let me urge that everybody come out to the meeting at the court house next Saturday afternoon at 1:30 to hear discussions on the question of our Commissioners making application for the $50,000 relief funds. This is a very important question before our people and it deserves your careful study.

Those who are opposed to the $50,000 are especially invited to come to this meeting and explain their objections. We want to do the right thing. We want to know the truth and be governed by the truth. If it is not good for our people to have this relief fund, and is in any way detrimental, we want to know it, and we want the people to know it.

Likewise, if it is good for our people to have it, as I believe it is, then we want the people to know and understand it fully. I urge everybody to come out in order that we may have

DEMOCRATS WIN OVER G. O. P. ON TARIFF ISSUE

House Votes 212-174 Against Raising Duties To Meet Low Currency

Washington, Feb. 13—House Democrats scored a smashing victory over administration Republicans today in an old-fashioned tariff fight that ended for the last lame-duck session any chance of raising the duties on imports from depreciated currency countries.

The issue was forced by the Republicans after a series of White House statements. But the Democrats bound themselves in caucus against the plan and killed it by a 212 to 174 vote.

"Every man who votes for this is not only voting for an embargo against all the world but is endorsing the Hawley-Smoot tariff," Chairman Collier, of the ways and means committee said, just before the ballot. "The American people repudiated this law in the last election."

"Depreciated currencies have brought about a condition in this country that the Democrats do not dare to try to de-

TRADE AT HOME IDEA IS GAINING IN COUNTY

Many Persons Heard To Express Opinions Similar To Those Expressed By News Editorials Warning Against Sending Money Away

(AN EDITORIAL)

The warning issued by the News thru editorials in the last two issues of the paper against the people of this county buying articles away from home that could be bought in the county is making its impression over the county judging from letters and comments received by the News during the past several days.

The News pointed out that if this practice continued, the result would be disastrous to the county in general and would eventually act as a boomerang to the person who is inclined to order goods from out-of-town business when the article could be purchased from a merchant in the county.

The amount of money sent to mail order houses from the people of Chilton county is amazing. This appeal and warning is not merely a trade-at-home idea. It is a statement to the people of Chilton county, including merchants, farmers, business and professional men, straight from the shoulder.

Would it be exaggerating to say that the value of property in Chilton county is being endangered by this buying out of Chilton county? We think not. With a decrease in business in the county, property values will also decrease. Increase the business of your town and county and you will see your property values increase.

We wonder if it has occurred to anyone how much is paid to clerks and other employees in the business houses of Clanton each month. This amount must come from the business employing these people. Unless these places can do enough business to keep these employees, then the outcome is clear. More persons out of work. Less money paid to people in the county to be spent in the county.

Will this buying away from home affect the farmer? It will, and in fact will affect every working man and taxpayer in the county, and the effect will be most displeasing. Buying and selling in Chilton county is one big cycle of business, enveloping the farmer, merchant and business man. The more money spent in Chilton county means more money passed from the merchant to the farmer and circulating in this business cycle. The merchants, business men and farmers must come together on this subject and keep business alive in our county. Create desire to buy at home.

The News invites anyone who wishes to write in to the columns of this newspaper, their opinions on this subject.

Miss Callie Watts, operator of the popular Watts Hat Shoppe, has recently returned to Clanton from one of her buying trips. She invites the ladies of this section to visit her shop in its new location.

Mr. John Deramus left Monday for Tuscaloosa and other nearby points on business.

Mrs. Will Orr of Birmingham was a guest of Mrs. Orr at the Exchange Hotel.

WILL DISCUSS PRO AND CON ABOUT LOAN

Opposition To Proposed Loan Looms Strong As Day Of Election Nears

Another mass meeting of citizens of the county has been called to be held at the court house in Clanton Saturday afternoon at one-thirty o'clock, according to information given the News.

This meeting is called for the purpose of discussing the proposed loan, the county plans to make provided the idea is sanctioned by the voters of the county on February 21st, it was stated. This meeting is the second called for this purpose, while very little was accomplished at the first meeting, which was held sometime ago.

It was also stated that those persons who are opposed to the county securing the $50,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, are urged to be present at this meeting and will be given an opportunity to state their views before the gathering.

In commenting on this meeting and the proposed loan, Judge Reynolds had

CHILTON FARM'R WRITES ABOUT HOME TRADING

Says Merchants Should Buy As Much As Possible From Local Men

Following is a letter from Mr. R. F. Atkinson, in which he comments on the subject of keeping business at home:

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 7, 1933.

Editor, Chilton County News:

Dr. Gragg and Mr. Jackson have told us how sick we are financially, but they do not offer very much in the way of a remedy.

The News editorial of recent date was along the right lines, when it complained about people in Clanton going to the city to purchase their finer clothes. Now that the farmers and their families can't go to Clanton with money in their pockets, the merchants feel keenly the loss of trade that is theirs or should be, more than ever. Speaking of the farmers without money, one day last week a car was loaded with chickens in Clanton. It gave the farmers some cash. At least two merchants told me they had a good day. If the citizens of Clanton would use in every way that they can, things that are brought in from surrounding territory, the town would have a lot of good days.

Suppose the fuel was used from the forests of Chilton county, for cooking and heating purposes, and the articles of food that are shipped in on these box car trucks were used from the farms in this county instead of from farms in some other state. Don't you think the folks would stop talking panic so much? In a lot of instances the merchant objects to a foreign catalogue in the farmers' home. (I think he is right) And proceeds to put goods on his shelves shipped in from other places—in most cases out of the state—in direct competition, or rather shut off his customers' market. Of course I refer only to the things that are and can be grown on the farms of Chilton county.

A "Trade At Home" movement ought to be started by someone.

R. F. ATKINSON.

Like The Horse

If anything could forcibly illustrate the law of diminishing returns resulting from increasing costs beyond a reasonable figure, the three-cent letter postage has turned the trick.

Postal revenue has been lost which will never be regained from the same class of mail, for the simple reason that the public has devised ways to use third-class mail instead of first.

The same thing will take place with gasoline. As gas taxes are shoved up beyond reasonable figures, smaller cars will be used, or larger cars will be used less, and the volume sold will diminish, thereby producing less revenue for the state.

The same thing will take place with property. Beyond a certain point, the owner cannot pay taxes. When that day comes, he will let the city, county or state take it and the tax rolls will be flooded with unsalable property, and tax deficits will mount.

The public is no different than the horse. You can lead the horse to water, but you can't make him drink. You can tax the public beyond its ability to pay, but you can't make it pay.

The political subdivisions of this nation, from the smallest hamlet to the Federal government, should readjust the tax bill and public expenditures to fit the ability of the people to pay.

The papers are filled with reports of meetings of tax experts, state tax commissions and other organizations of "tax spenders" who are in a large measure to blame for the present taxation problems of the people. As advisers on the financial affairs of the people, they have for years taken the easiest course, acquiescing in public demands for extravagant public expenditures without raising their voices in protest or showing where exorbitant spending was leading the people.

Even today, most of the "tax experts," instead of recommending drastic cuts in public expenditures, are hunting ways and means to increase existing taxes or find new methods of taxation.

The same thing is going to happen to every city, county, state and the nation itself, that happened to millions of families—they are going to have to get along on less money than they thought was possible a year or two years ago. Instead of increases in taxes or new methods of taxation to balance public deficits, there is going to have to be decreased taxation and decreased public demands on a balanced scale, which will eventually wipe out the deficits.

Families are paying up their bills now on reduced income simply by reducing their expenses below their income. Governments will have to do the same thing.

"Share Those Jobs" — Cheaper Than Charity

A total of 2,700,000,000 marks ($640,000,000 at current exchange) is to be mobilized by Germany during 1933 to provide jobs for as many as possible of the nation's 5,600,000 unemployed. The leader of the movement is to be given wide powers in order to free the program from bureaucratic red tape. A greater part of the money is to be spent on major public works.

The United States government has also thrown its resources into the fight against unemployment and has produced some excellent results. But it is probable that Germany will discover what we have—that government relief projects can be of but temporary benefit. The solution for aggravated unemployment lies to a much greater extent in such a movement as the present "share the work" drive. Here is an endeavor that strikes toward the root of the matter—turn one job into two or more.

To "share the work" costs nothing and "providing jobs is always cheaper than charity," not to mention the social profits accruing therefrom. Its influence on purchasing power is tremendous, aside from what it does to prevent and overcome distress and poverty. It is a recognition of the fact that all must cooperate to defeat depression, and must not lose sight of the general welfare which always precedes individual welfare. The fact that the movement is rapidly growing, in large businesses and small, puts America at the forefront of the nations in solving the unemployment problems of today.

Two Classes Of Traffic Violators

Robbins B. Stoeckel, Motor Vehicle Commissioner of Connecticut, divides traffic violators into two classes—the inadvertent violator, and the "automobile criminal."

The inadvertent driver means to be careful and compentent, but he is congenitally a poor driver, or is slow in his reactions, or is absent minded, or is easily distracted from the business of operating a car. Because of him, many severe accidents occur. The solution in his case is a licensing authority which passes on every driver's fitness, refusing those who are mentally incapable of safe driving, no matter how good their intentions may be.

The automobile criminal presents an entirely different problem. He may be a good and compentent driver in all respects save one—deliberate disregard for the rights and safety of others. In his case, intent—that old arbiter of any criminal act—is present. He drives recklessly or under the influence of intoxicants. He runs away after accidents. His punishment must be certain and severe if he is to be surbed.

One the one hand are the inadvertent violators, who should be helped and do not belong in the courts—on the other, the intentionally dangerous, who are a real menace to public safety. Mr. Stoeckel suggests that legislation recognize these factors, and his ideas should be given serious consideration in every state as a constructive step toward solving the problem of automobile accidents.

"ROUND TOWN"
---by Doug

All right, folks, get your trading clothes on because here's another fellow who has something to trade. Mr. J. D. Mullins, of Clanton, Ala., Route 3, writes me saying that he wants to trade a Good Chevrolet Six truck in good condition for a Chevrolet car which must be in good condition. Now that trade may interest some of these auto salesmen, and then there ought to be a lot of fellows who would like to trade their Chevrolet car for a Chevrolet truck.

Mr. O. F. Davenport of Maplesville, Route One writes a nice card to me this week saying that he likes to read this column each week. Me and Mr. Davenport are going to be good friends from now on, and I'm going out to his house and have dinner with him sometime. Mr. Davenport states that he has a good two-horse wagon he wants to trade for a good one-horse wagon. That is not a bad trade, seems to me. A two-horse wagon for a one-horse wagon. Two for one, so to speak.

And here's another trading proposition from Mr. B. A. Vanderburg, of Jemison, Ala., Route 2. Mr. Vanderburg states that he still has that Dodge Truck, 1½ ton; also Red Star oil range, 6-burner; Electric floor lamp and Electric Iron, to trade for mules, horses, one- or two-horse wagon, milch cow, corn, syrup, farm tools.

These trading letters are sort of slow about coming in, but I've had one or two each week for the past several weeks. Send in your letters to this column folks, if you have something you want to trade. I will publish them in this column and it won't cost you one cent, or anything else, so far as I am concerned.

It won't be long now until Chilton county can celebrate, hold services or something, remembering the storms here. It don't seem like it was a year ago, but next month brings it round to a year.

People in Chilton county are not the only ones hereabouts who are preparing for any future storms as best they can by building storm pits. You can see pits down in Autauga and Elmore counties and over in Coosa and Talladega counties. Don't blame 'em a bit. I'd build me a storm pit if I had some land to put it on.

Now that brings on more talk. I had an argument once with a fellow about storm pits. The question was, do you build a storm pit, or dig it? I contended that you could do either or both. Nat Bentley and some others in Thorsby did both.

When all this moving in Clanton starts, or that is, when it ends, don't get your places of businesses all mixed up or something. Just follow the story in the News and you can't go wrong. That reminds me of what a fellow remarked some time ago. He was talking about the News and said "You certainly can depend on what you read in that paper. They don't hesitate to tell the facts about things."

I see by C. G. N. this week that Dr. N. S. Johnson received a letter from the Secretary of the Senate, stating that the Mrs. N. S. Johnson whose name appeared in the list of employees published by the News sometime ago, is a resident of Selma. This letter I understand, was written due to some belief up here that the Mrs. N. S. Johnson listed, was our Mrs. N. S. Johnson. But that is a mistake. The lady mentioned lives in Selma.

The special meeting of the Commissioners Court held last Monday was something of a wow, or something. To a fellow like me it was a very interesting and amusing scene. Who ever heard of an election being called and allowing just anybody twenty-one years old or older, to vote in the special election. As a means of carrying a point beyond the reach of the legal voters of the county, that scheme would be splendid. But for determining the wishes of the people by an election, the scheme disorganizes and strips from the qualified voter, any dignity attached to that privilege and distinction of being a legal voter. So much for that.

This place called "Hell" must be some place, according to James Whitcomb Riley, who goes so far as to set it out in one of his writings. Just read this, and ain't it the truth:

"HELL"

James Witcomb Riley

Just what is meant by this word "Hell"?
They say sometimes, "It's cold as hell."
Sometimes they say, "It's hot as hell."
When it rains, "It's hell," they cry;
It's also "hell" when it's dry.
They "hate like hell" to see it snow.
It's a "hell of a wind" when it starts to blow.

Now "how in hell" can anyone tell
"What in hell" they mean by this word "Hell"?
This married life is "hell" they say;
When he comes in late, there's "hell" to pay.
When he starts to yell it's a "hell of a note."
It's "hell" when the kid you have to tote.
It's "hell" when the doctor sends his bills
For a "hell of a lot" of trips and pills.
When you get this you know real well
Just what is meant by this word "Hell."

"Hell yes." "Hell no," and "Oh hell" too;
The "hell you don't," and "the hell you do,"
And "what in hell," and "the hell it is;"
"The hell with yours," and "the hell with his,"
Now "who in hell," and "Oh hell when"?
And "what in the hell" do you think I care?
But "the hell of it is, "It's sure as hell"
We don't know "what in hell" is "HELL".

Now, in closing I want to say something about this business of trading at home. You may not think that there are thousands of dollars being mailed or spent away from Clanton or Chilton county, that could be spent here, but it is a fact. Just supposing that there was four thousand dollars a year done that way. Of course by the time that amount is divided among the merchants here, it wouldn't mean much, but don't every little count. However, I believe there is more than four thousand a year spent like that. Folks let's stop as much of that as we can.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

Two men of leisure formed the habit of meeting on the gallery of the community store, and they spent the day in playing chess. The checkered board was between them and all day they would watch each other's moves that they might be able to win in the game. Watching those men day after day I was reminded that every man and every woman has a partner and day and night we are playing the game of chess on the board of life. The devil is sitting on the other side of that board and he is watching every move that we make, and if we fail to play the game with skill, his Majesty will leap over our lines with his crowned kings and beat us in the game. He has his crowned kings stationed opposite Sabbath desecration, intemperance, impurity, profanity, covetousness, untruth, and all the other deadly sins, and when we move our souls into those places, he leaps over us with his crown kings and he wins. Blessed is the man who plays the game of life with skill, and who can leap his majesty, the devil, with the crowned kings of a virtuous life and thus win the game every day and all the way.

As I drove on the college campus I saw a company of young men running over the athletic field with great speed. I stopped my car to watch the race. It was interesting to watch that drove of human machines as they stepped on the gas and gave their heels all the power of muscle, that they might win. Before half the race was over the men had scattered over a long range of the race track, and before it was over it was evident that certain runners would be in the lead when it was all over. Each runner had grit and he kept running until he passed over the goal. That was a picture of the entire human race. We are all runners toward the goal of death. It seems that some folks are so anxious to reach the goal in the lead of their comrades, until they will do all kind of things to speed them on the way. They grudge themselves the time to rest, they form all kinds of bad habits, they take so many risks, they play with death along the race that they may entice him to assist them in winning. O mortal man, why step on the gas that you may speedily reach the final goal of every racer on the run of life? The run of your life is toward death, and why be in a rush to reach the goal? Let me cross the goal in the sunset of life.

I was standing on the street corner talking to a friend and each of us followed a man with our eyes who had just gone by. The friend knowing the stranger to me remarked, "That fellow is a thoroughbred." At first I did not think much of the remark, but as I thought of his remark and then learned to know the man, I decided that he was paid the best compliment that could be paid any man. In the stock yards a thoroughbred is an animal with fine eyes, a generous spirit and erect bearings. The keeper of thoroughbreds will tell you that they never whine. It is not the best horses that scream when the stable is on fire, it is the common blood. One man told me that you could take a thorouhbred dog and swing him around by the tail and he would not whine. It is just not in a thoroughbred to whine. A thoroughbred man will bend his shoulders to carry his load without a whine and at all times he will lift his eyes to yours in honest fashion. It is just not in a thorouhbred human to whine.

Never put too much confidence in circumstantial evidence. Even the most perfect circumstancial evidence could be untrue. For instance, take any pencil sharpened by a woman, if you have witnesses you might prove that she did the work with a knife, but if you take the circumstancial evidence that is before you in the pencil, you could prove that she did the sharpening stunt with her teeth. Be very careful how you let your tongue wag when you only have circumstancial evidence for your statements. A good woman was seen to enter a building of bad reputation, and tongues went wild. The motive of that good woman was to find and lead back to the path of right a girl who had gone astray. Beware of those people who put "Two and Two" together and make a thousand lies out of them.

I hired a hand and outlined to him the work that I wanted done. Being busy in my study I left him with the task. On going out five hours later I found that the hired man had practically done everything that I did not want done, and had done nothing that I had instructed him to do. Those kind of people take the joy out of life. I hired another man. His work was outlined to him, and I went on about my business. On schedule time he was at my study door, the work done and it was done as I had requested. There is no more valuable element of character than that of trustworthiness. To such men a task can be assigned and then nothing more is heard of him until he returns to report that the duty has been well done. The pastor of any church, the head of any business concern, the president of any nation, can be great when he has under him men and women who will accept a task and then perform it in fidelity. If you want to be great in your soul be trustworthy.

PLANTERSVILLE MAN ADVISES AGAINST LOAN

Plantersville, Ala., Feb. 13, 1933.
Editor, Chilton County News:

Will you please publish this? I have heard so much here lately about taxes and more taxes that I sometimes wonder where we will land. We are all taxed to the limit now. I would like to shake hands with Rep. Rish of Houston. He is wanting to cut salaries instead of more taxes, and if that is left to a vote I have no doubt of it being carried.

And now I see that we will have an election the 21st day of this month to say whether or not our county commissioners can borrow fifty thousand dollars. I, for one, heard Judge Reynolds say last summer that there was sixty thousand dollars in the treasury. That being the case, I do not think it wise to borrow any more, for I do think the State and counties should live as near as possible on the incomes of said state and counties. If we farmers have to make it if we can and what we get after paying our taxes and we all should vote no on anything that looks like, tastes or smells like more taxes.

Respectfully,
J. A. SAMPLE.

KNOX REMINDS OF THE MEETINGS ALREADY HELD

To the Chilton County News:

A few weeks ago when our schools were approaching the time when they would have to close for lack of school funds the teachers and school patrons of this county went before the Commissioners Court and appealed to them for an appropriation for our schools so that they might remain open the balance of the school year. We repeatedly went before the court and begged them to devise some means of keeping our schools open, even to the extent of borrowing $50,000.00 from the Federal government to use as relief on the roads, thereby releasing road money for the schools. Dr. Ezell showed them that they had a large amount of road money that could be used for the schools. Judge Reynolds disputed the figures but was challenged to prove them incorrect, and he has never answered the challenge. So we presume they are correct. The court had the money and the authority to use it for the schools without a referendum, and even after we requested them, in a resolution, to call an election for a referendum, and they having promised to call an election, they did not keep faith with us and to this day have not called for such election as they promised. We asked them for a small amount to keep the schools open a short time, if they could not give the full amount, hoping the legislature would provide money by that time. They turned us down flat and our schools are all closed except a few that are running by private subscription.

Now we have come to another interesting chapter in the matter. The Commissioners Court has called an election for a referendum, but not a three-fold referendum as first planned, to give relief, save the schools, and work the roads, but only a referendum for borrowing $50,000.00 for relief and roads, and they are making an active campaign for the referendum. Now, as they do not intend to use any of this money for the schools, we do not see any need for more money than is already available in the road fund. We are not discounting the relief that will be accomplished, but there is supposed to be a dollars worth of work on the roads for every dollar spent and the other plan called not only for relief and road work, but for running our schools also, which is one of the most important functions of our government. Now it seems to us that our officials have gone road crazy just like our state administration. It seems to mean nothing to them that our schools are closed and our children are roaming the woods and streets and growing up in ignorance, while they are spending our money building beautiful roads for our cars to run on while about one half of them are already standing in the garage on account of high taxes. Don't forget to come to the election February 21st and vote against this measure.

P. H. KNOX.

SAYS QUESTION IS NOT A PARTY ISSUE

Jemison, Ala., Route 1.
Editor, Chilton County News:

A man's position no doubt has a lot to do in the way he sees things. I read both Mr. Sanders' and Mr. Jackson's letters. I understand Mr. Sanders is in office, and Mr. Jackson is out of office. If this is true, I am also looking at things from Mr. Jackson's position. However, I do not want any controversy over this.

Mr. Editor, I have heard quite a lot of comment on Dr. V. J. Gragg's last letter on "Why Destroy the Foundation?" One party said it simply contained "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." I say he was quoting undeniable history, truths and facts in every line from top to bottom, and I as one poor, ignorant one-horse farmer, want to thank him for his very able pleading in our behalf.

Now, Voters, and everybody else over 21 years of age, let's get back to the hot question in regard to borrowing, donating, giving, pay back or not pay back at 3 per cent, etc. this $50,000 from the R. F. C. I have read over copy of contract which our county would make and sign for the $50,000. The fellow that wrote this contract reminds me of a minnow fish in a hole of water. You can't tell half the time where he is. This contract simply contains too many "ifs" and "ands" etc. A Republican no doubt wrote this contract, for it reads and sounds just like their last programme and platform in their general election. I didn't understand it, and I didn't vote for it. I don't understand this contract, and I will not vote for this loan.

Mr. Editor, you no doubt would like to know how the people up here in my settlement, Union Grove, Beat 12, stand on this question and election. Will say I have not been around much lately, but from what scattering information I have this settlement will go over 3 to 1 against loan. Of course we cannot foretell just what influence these speakers will have, but in my opinion, it is going to take more than speaking to change the public sentiment up here.

Mr. Editor, I do not consider this question to be so much of a partisan or party issue if you please, but it does seem to me that it will give somebody somewhere a chance to play politics or something. Somebody is getting nervous and trembling from fear of Mr. Roosevelt. You see Mr. Roosevelt will walk into the White House in about three weeks from now. I understand he will have more authority and more power to do things than any President we ever had. I understand he will have the power and authority to "cancel" all these federal appropriations, to cut salaries not already fixed by our Constitution, to cut out commissions, bureaus, veterans' compensation, etc., thereby reducing our Federal tax, that is now on practically everything we buy from a postage stamp to an automobile. I claim there are two sides to any question that is a question. And there is surely two sides or more to this question of borrowing money from Peter to pay Tom, Dick and Harry. The front side of this thing looks pretty good, but let's turn it over and around and look it all over, put it on the scales and weigh it and examine it every way we can, and then decide to leave it alone for awhile. If it is any good it will keep. Let's not vote for anything that does not tend to lower our taxes. They tell us that this money will be spent on the roads of our county.

There is something sorter funny to me about all this road work, road talk and the like. Some of our folks like to boast or something about our good roads, but they do not care to talk much about the rotten market on one end and a mortgaged farm on the other end. And no one knows any better than our State how big a per cent of our cars and trucks have been forced off of the roads and into the shed to stay for awhile, and I am frank to tell you that I do not believe this Federal loan will help our markets, or pay off mortgages, or help to put our cars and trucks back on the road, or tend to lower our taxes, but will do us more or less damage in the long run. Something strange about this system of our government right now anyway.

Our schools have closed, but our road work must go on regardless of the cost. Our schools have closed, but prohibition enforcement must go on just the same.

Mr. Editor, you may call me a "crank" or what not, but I say something else is going to stop along with our schools. I cannot figure just how long, but not very far in the distant future.

I believe you and some others no doubt realize that we farmers are being forced off of the map, and out of the picture, so to speak, and that high taxes and graft in our government has played the leading role. Our experts figure that we pay about 30 cents on the average out of each dollar we spend to our city, county, state and national governments, and that we pay as high as 50 cents out of the dollar on some few things, such as gasoline and smoking tobacco. Do you see where we can continue to operate on this scale? You need not tell me something else will not come down with us, for I say, they will.

Our government used to play a game like this, say, penny ante and 5 per cent limit. We could afford to play that right on, but here in these late years, they have raised us to a 50 per cent limit, and we farmers are dropping out of the game.

I hope I have said enough, and not too much. I also hope you farmers will see fit to vote with me against this $50,000 loan. I will close by saying, I am

Yours very truly,
S. Y. DORMINEY.

RAYMOND C. SMITH SAYS VOTE "NO" NEXT TUESDAY

Editor, Chilton County News:

There has been considerable discussion concerning the question as to whether or not our county should borrow $50,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. However, the discussion has largely consisted of statements said or written by those who favor this loan and those whose opinion apparently differs from that of the Corporation in the manner by which it shall be repaid. As a further step toward the settling of this important matter an election will be held next Tuesday for the purpose of ascertaining the sentiment of our citizenship.

There should be no greater source of information on this question than the Reconstruction Finance Corporation itself. And the correspondence hereinafter shown should suffice to satisfy us that such a loan will not ultimately constitute a gift as is popularly supposed and claimed by some of those in charge of county finances.

The following is a copy of a letter written by me in reply to an answer to a former letter I wrote:

February 9, 1933.

Mr. Fred C. Croxton,
Assistant to the Directors,
Reconstruction Finance Corp.,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter under date of February 6, 1933, as a prompt reply to my inquiry of February 3, 1933.

However, there is one thing more that I should like to ask of you. Referring to the last sentence in subsection (e) of Section 1, TITLE I - RELIEF OF DESTITUTION, of EMERGENCY RELIEF AND CONSTRUCTION ACT OF 1932, will be found in verbatim these words: "The amount paid to any municipality or political subdivision under this subsection shall not be included in any amounts reimbursable to the corporation under subsection (b) of this section." I shall appreciate your construction of this sentence in the light of the Act and with regard to this question, viz, If a political subdivision of a state (for instance a county) receives a loan at the request of the Governor, may such loan be repaid from future Federal aid to such state for highway construction?

My construction of the sentence as aforesaid is that it cannot be; and that a political subdivision must fully repay its loan with interest regardless of future Federal aid to its state, and that no deductions can be made therefrom.

Your further prompt reply will also be appreciated.

Yours very truly,

The following is an answer to said letter:

RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION
Washington

February 11, 1933.

Mr. Raymond C. Smith,
Clanton, Alabama

Dear Mr. Smith:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of February 9, quoting the last sentence of subsection (e), Section 1, Title I of the Emergency Relief and Construction Act of 1932, reading:

The amount paid to any municipality or political subdivision under this subsection shall not be included in any amounts reimbursable to the corporation under subsection (b) of this section.

Your construction of this sentence is correct. Funds made available to a political subdivision of a state upon application of the governor under subsection (e) become the obligation of the political subdivision, and as stated in our letter of February 6, are reimbursable to the Corporation under whatever arrangement may be entered into by the political subdivision and the Corporation.

Sincerely yours,
Fred C. Croxton
Assistant to the Directors.

This letter is in my office and may be seen by anyone who desires to do so.

Now that we should be reasonably convinced that such a loan must be repaid let us deal with another phase of the Act creating the R. F. C. and which concurrently prescribes its limitations. The Act also states that the money cannot be borrowed unless the funds we now have are inadequate to meet relief needs. This county now has $16,000 in its road fund and receives an average of $4500 per month from the state, that being its pro rata share of the gasoline tax. All this for the roads of Chilton County, the place it is alleged the $50,000 would be spent. In addition to other funds, the county also has $35,000 in the general fund and $10,000 on time deposit in the bank. And with the money the county may appropriate for welfare work together with flour and clothing donated by the Federal Government we should have enough for relief. Do we need the money, and can we qualify under the Act? NO. But it has not been contended that we need $50,000 unless it is on the theory that we need all we can get given to us.

Bear this in mind, that the ones who would have the pleasure of spending this money will probably not be the ones who repay it with interest.

I have written this for the purpose of disclosing the foregoing information to our citizenship before they vote. This is not intended as eleventh hour propaganda. It would have been given sooner had it been announced earlier that a vote would be taken on February 21st. However, those who have opposite views have ample time in which to answer this publicly, according to their speaking announcements.

There is an old saying, Beware of the Greeks bearing Gifts. This old proverb may mean something even today. And since we do not need to borrow this money let us not endeavor to burden ourselves with debt even though we may possibly have the opportunity.

RAYMOND C. SMITH.

What Negroes Are Doing

County Training School News

After school closed January 27, plans were effected that would permit Vocational activities to continue. The plans, as set up, make the present program much more tangible than the former schedule. The all-day boys are given more actual practice in shop work, mostly farm implement repair, and more timely supervision in project work.

The outlook for supervised practice work is very bright due to the fact that more boys are able to carry a greater number of projects than ever before. Only a few years ago a Vocational student thought he had done something when he had carried a one-acre cotton project to completion. Today he thinks he has done little unless two or more projects are carried to completion each year. This must be done in order that a boy may get a fair cross section as to the operation of the farm during the four-year course.

The interest in project work has grown so rapidly that boys compete with each other in the number of projects they carry each year. The result this year is quite interesting. The following are a few of more than thirty competitors:

Carl Brown: ½ acre sorghum, ¼ acre sugar cane, 2 acres corn, 4 acres cotton, 2 pigs, and 50 baby chicks.

Archie Hall, Jr.: ½ acre peanuts, 1 acre corn, ½ acre cow peas, ¼ acre melons.

Frizzell McKinney: 2 pigs, ½ acre peanuts, 2 acres corn, 2 acres cotton.

Charles Sistrunk: 2 acres corn, 2 acres cotton, ½ acre peanuts, 1 sow and litter.

Clinton Calloway: 25 hens, 125 baby chicks, 3 acres corn, 4 acres cotton.

George Wilson, Jr.: 2 acres corn, 3 acres cotton, ½ acre peanuts, ¼ acre sweet potatoes.

Boys of the above type are our only hope of future prosperity.

In addition to the all-day groups of boys, there are the part-time group and the adult evening school group who come in for class and instruction in shop work. The part-time boys are taken from the over age and undergrade folks, who may or may not be in school. Usually this type of boy finds it difficult to cope with his younger and more apt classmates, and because of discouragement drops out of school. The plan to teach this type of individual was prompted by a consciousness of the fact that he can do nothing but try to farm. So why not get him in and give him some new ideas about his future business.

The adult group includes those persons who are actively engaged in farming. They are now being given special instruction in terracing. An effort is being made to teach the farmer how to terrace his own land. About fifty acres have been terraced already, with a schedule of fifty or seventy-five more to be terraced.

The shop is opened for community work on Wednesday of each week, at which time any farmer may bring in repair work.

Contests have been launched with these adult farmers in sweet potato and corn production. The purpose is to get farmers to see the economic importance of greater acreage yields.

The missionary society of the local Methodist church had its regular weekly meeting Monday afternoon at three o'clock. The program was in charge of Mrs. Warr, Supt. of Bible and Mission Study. After an interesting introduction to the new text which is being used this year, Mrs. Warr presented Mrs. Reid Mullins, who had charge of the remainder of the program. The first chapter was taught by Mrs. Mullins in an endeavor to make it as instructional as possible. "The World To-day" is the first chapter, and the author gives a vivid description of the vast need of work to be done, and workers to do the work. One outstanding quotation will here be given to show the line of thought: Lloyd George said, "It is Christ or chaos; magnanimity or militarism; life or death and desolation."

On next Monday afternoon, Miss Morris will have charge of the Mission Study and will discuss the chapter on "Christ and the Ministry of Missions."

ARE WE SLEEPING AND OPPORTUNITY PASSING?

Jemison, Ala., Feb. 14, 1933.

Editor, Chilton County News:

I am just wondering if the men and women of this great County of ours are thinking, or doing anything to help the school situation in our county and state. Have you seen in person, or written to your Representative or Senator — telling them what you desire them to do about this deplorable condition? The legislature is in session now—and now, is the time to act. Each day that passes puts us one day nearer the summer, when children are needed at home. Also, one day nearer the close of a legislature. We have the opportunity today to get in touch with our governing body. They may not listen to one or two people, but they will to the thousands. A small sum spent by each family in Chilton county, informing our law-making body what we are expecting of them, I believe will be appreciated and do much good.

The school situation is more deplorable than one might think. Everyone knows that boys and girls are going to do something. We cannot give them better employment, at this season of the year, than keeping them in school, and training them to make better citizens. Our schools are stressing the more practical side of education year after year—teaching more essentials needed in solving the problems of every day life, for examples in English: How to write business letters; in history formation of government; in physics, application of mathematics and mechanics; in agriculture, kinds and amounts of fertilizers; in home economics, health, foods and clothing; and in addition to these, there are thousands of other lessons taught that give students wholesome employment and assist them in making a living.

It is regrettable that some of our students have had to leave our county and go to neighboring counties for school, or pay high tuition to local private schools. While Chilton county is waiting on our legislature to act—and most people believe they are going to do some constructive work this time—would it not be wise for the educational authorities, parents, and teachers to get together and devise some feasible plan whereby our schools could open Monday, or Monday week. Our Superintendent and Board of Education have proven their ability to solve the educational problems of the past. With the parents and teachers cooperating with them I have no fear of the future. If the legislature doesn't do something within the next few weeks, I believe if the educational authorities have the above cooperation something will be done to save our splendid school system.

Our county, which is near the top in assessed valuation of property, has powerful hydro-electric plants, fertile soil, numerous truck crops, paved highway to markets, and nice school buildings will keep on going forward, and will not let its citizenship go untrained. I say again, are we sleeping while opportunity is passing?

Respectfully,
J. A. PETERSON,
Pres. County Teachers Association.

A LESSON FOR MOBS

How unjust it is to judge of guilt on the strength of superficial circumstantial evidence was illustrated some time ago by the case of a 11-year-old boy murdered in Arkansas, presumably for a small amount of money he carried.

It was known that shortly before his death he had been in company with a one-eyed negro boy, who also was missing. Search for the negro was begun, with open threats of summary vengeance. After several days the negro boy was found not far from where the white boy was killed. But he was also dead, with indications that he gave his life in common battle with the white lad's murderers.

Now suppose that the two boys had separated before the white boy was killed. And suppose the mob had captured the negro lad, whose sightless eye would have identified him beyond question. There would have been just one more lynching of a negro, despite his pleadings and protestations of innocence.

This should be a lesson for any who may be tempted to take part in mob murder.

A. A. JACKSON'S REPLY TO SANDERS LETTER

Dear Editor, Chilton County News:

Will you please give me space in your paper to reply to W. L. Sander's article which appeared in the News of last week in which he misconstrued an article of mine that appeared in the News of February 2nd.

I want the readers of the News to read carefully both articles and then you can judge for yourself whether or not Sanders misconstrued and misrepresented my article of February 2nd.

I can't understand why Sanders wrote such an article, as my article is a criticism of a system and not of individuals. My article did not criticise Sanders, Mr. Stapp nor our county papers. The Jackson Chapel Plan was used to show how unfair the system was that would give a small official 19 times the advantage of the man who produces from the soil.

It seems from the ring of Sanders' article he took it all as criticism of him. My article stated that Sanders was no more to blame than anyone else for a system that would give him 19 times as much for his official work as it would for his manual work. I think I showed to all intelligent people that the system did put the servant above his master and made the head larger than the body.

Sanders' statement and figures in regard to our tax collector and assessor were about right. The 64 bushels of corn was padded with an 0 aught which made 640. I will take that 0 aught and place it on Sanders article, that will leave about 64 bushels per day for our collector and assessor and put Sanders about where he belongs.

I did not say that our tax collector and assessor or Sanders were getting too much money for their official service, nor did I say that the Jackson Chapel Plan was responsible for the 19 times difference between Sanders' official service and his manual service.

I do think a small school boy can understand that my article showed that the economic system of our country is responsible for the difference and makes it hard for any farming community to offer any better plan than the Jackson Chapel Plan.

Whatever defect might be in the plan our economic system is responsible and not Sanders, Culp or Collins.

I hope Sanders will learn the difference between a system and a plan before he writes another letter of criticism against me accusing me that for the past few years I had been looking for a controversy with some one thru the papers, and that my whole heart's desire was to fuss with somebody. The people who have been reading my articles for the past thirty years know as much about my fussing qualities as Sanders does. Sanders wondered if I had a bushel of corn to give some man to feed his hungry wife and children for a day's work, and if I had it was more than he had heard of.

I take the assertion that I am not mindful of the needy. I wonder if Sanders remembers back in 1930 a certain poor fellow wanted to run for office and had no money to pay the qualifying fee, and I let him have ten dollars in cash and more than a year later I got my pay; and it was a derned little old, stunted sow shoat, and a box to carry it home in. I can't see how anyone could say in that case, I was not mindful of the needy. My neighbors know whether or not I help the needy.

Sanders said I didn't tell you that meat was worth as much to eat now as it was when it was bringing forty cents per pound. I am not going to: because it is not. But I will tell you that a pound of meat at the present price has as much food value as it had when it was bringing forty cents per pound.

But the present Republican economic system and not the Jackson Chapel Plan makes any article worth what you have to pay for it. The reason the little, old, stunted sow shoat was worth fifty cents per pound is because it cost me that. I killed the shoat a few days ago and canned most all of it except the hair, and according to Sanders theory I will have to wait until the price of meat advances to fifty cents per pound before I can eat any of it, because the system Sanders is backing up makes any article worth the price paid for it.

Sanders said he had rather I would take my wisdom to Montgomery and get things straight down there. And then make a dive for Washington and tell them what to do up there. Well, from what I have been told, and seeing his picture in our good Democratic paper several times, and the hobnobbing he is doing he surely must think he has the Republican votes in one pocket and the Democrat votes in the other and that will land him in the legislative halls at Montgomery in 1934 and then the crooked will be made straight, and they will not need me.

THE LEADER
MANAGER, M. LANDE
Clanton Alabama

And as to Washington, the people of the United States have selected Franklin D. Roosevelt to do that job. He has promised to remember the forgotten man and give the people of the United States a new deal, and I have faith in his promises. I hope the new deal will be so drastic that Sanders, Collins and Culp can always draw as much for a day's work as they are now and that we poor farmers and laborers can receive returns for our service and products that our poor families can enjoy the fruits of their labor.

I am glad to be identified with the many millions who have faith in our new President-Elect, that he will give us a new deal that will do away with the damnable Hoover Republican system that has damned millions of poor men, women and children.

Respectfully,
A. A. JACKSON.

WEATHER MYTHS

Perhaps many credulous persons are now watching for a verification of their weather predictions, based on whether the ground hog saw his shadow in their localities on Ground Hog Day, February 2. And even if their predictions are not verified, they will doubtless offer some sort of alibi for that venerable forecaster.

Then about March 21 these same folks will watch for the "equinoctial storm" which is supposed to occur about the time when the sun "crosses the line."

Of course, no one with any knowledge of meterology pays any attention to either of these ancient superstitions, but in the popular mind they cling with grim tenacity.

Owing to the erratic habits of the weather, any kind of prediction will come true occasionally, but scientific observers tell us that in the present state of human knowledge it is impossible to predict weather conditions more than a very few days ahead.

From records of the last 50 years, kept by the United States Weather Bureau, it is shown that storms are no more frequent during equinoctial periods than at other times of the year. In fact, the most destructive of all storms—western tornadoes and West Indian hurricanes—occur principally in the summer and fall, at periods farthest removed from the equinoxes.

But old superstitions die hard, and those concerning the weather are among the most persistent.

BAN ON BILLBOARDS

Drastic action against the billboard nuisance is reported from the province of Ontario, Canada, where strict regulations are being enforced in pursuance of a recently enacted law. It is said that existing billboards are being removed at the rate of about 100 a week.

The Ontario law prohibits the erection of billboards on the public highways, and even forbids the painting of advertising on barns or other buildings near the roadside. Signs erected by a person on his own property are restricted in size and are subject to a tax. No billboards may be erected at turns in the road, and old, unsightly signs must be cleaned up or removed.

Enforcement of the new regulations has already made a marked improvement in the appearance of the countryside, and the absence of billboards will tend to reduce the number of traffic accidents, it is believed. Regulations similar to those established in Ontario are being adopted in other Canadian provinces and might well be extended to the United States.

Farm Women Earn Money For Homes

Auburn, Ala.—As a result of their work in home demonstration clubs under the leadership of county home demonstration agents, Alabama farm women and girls are learning to earn money with which they are making their homes more attractive and their living more satisfying.

The report of Miss Helen Johnston, State home demonstration agent, shows that during 1932, 33,000 girls and women who belong to 4-H clubs and home demonstration clubs sold products from their gardens, poultry yards, and orchards amounting to $762,252.32. Sales on curb markets totaling $267,319.32 accounted for the major item in this income. Other cash came from vegetables, dairy products, poultry, and eggs, canned goods, and other items sold in other ways.

Money earned by these women and girls is only a small part of the total, Miss Johnston said, as their work influenced thousands of other farm women who did not participate directly in the organized club activities.

The 33,009 club women and 4-H club girls also kept records on the value of the products made and consumed at home under the direction of home demonstration agents, and the total for this was $3,239,262.47. This is an increase over 1931 of more than a million and a quarter dollars.

The live-at-home program will receive increased emphasis in educational work done by home demonstration agents in 1933, Miss Johnston said.

Thorsby Institute News

Saturday night at the Dining Hall the Helen Keller Literary Society had a very pleasant Valentine party. The hall was prettily decorated, red being the color scheme. After two games were played Kathryn Lenoir, Edith Foss and Dulcie Hayes with Miss Phillips as accompanist sang the "Shoogy-Shoo," and Irish song. This was their first appearance as a trio and they sang very well. Alice Polk gave as a reading "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," while Miss Phillips played softly on the piano. This was very much enjoyed. After this some games were played after which cocoa and cookies were served. A rising vote of thanks was given to all who helped to make the party such a success; also to Mrs. Ekblad who had generously made and donated the delicious cookies served.

Reverend Rexford Raymond, D. D., formerly pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Chattanooga, Tenn. but now associated with the Atlanta Seminary Foundation which is affiliated with Vanderbilt University, made a brief call at Thorsby Institute Friday morning. TIMES ARE HARD, BUT DOG OWNERS REFUSE TO SELL

Moultrie, Ga., Feb. 3.—Irrespective of what the depression has done to other things, the local fox hound market has eager bidders but no offers.

Three Moultrie sportsmen greatly desirous of purchasing a hunter scoured two counties in vain. They found plenty of hounds all right but nobody would even talk of selling. Men are funny about their hunting hounds.

One ragged individual living in a shack had 11 dogs but talk of selling a single one insulted him.

"It takes 'leven hounds to make good music, strangers," he told the sportsmen with cold stare, "and I'm keeping all I got."

Another with similar signs of poverty was found with a pack of 12 but he wasn't in the market either.

"I 'low how I needs the money," he admitted, "but not bad enough to sell one of them hounds."—Times-Journal, Moultrie, Ga.

It Was Not Mrs. N.S. Johnson Of Clanton

The News has received a copy of a letter written to Dr. N. S. Johnson, relative to the name of Mrs. N. S. Johnson which appeared in the list of legislature employees recently published by this newspaper. Following is the letter from the Secretary of the Senate relative to this:

Montgomery, Feb. 8, 1933.

Dr. N. S. Johnson, Clanton, Ala.,

Dear Sir:

Re: Mrs. N. S. Johnson

For your information the above named lady, who appeared on the Senate Payroll for the last Special Session of the Legislature, and who was Assistant Comparing Clerk of the Senate, and assistant to Mrs. Hattie S. Ross, whom I understand is her sister, resided in Selma at that time. In other words the Mrs. N. S. Johnson referred to, does not reside in Clanton.

I am advised that it is understood locally by a few that your wife was possibly on the payroll, by reason of the similarity of names, and for that reason, if you see fit, you may use this letter to correct this apparent error.

Very truly yours,

J. E. SPEIGHT,

Secty. of Senate.

Commissioners Hear Advantages Of Engin'r

An innovation in road construction and supervision in Chilton County was outlined before the County Commissioners' Court, at the quarterly meeting Monday, by Major W. W. Slaton, of Centerville, with the suggestion that a trained county road engineer be maintained. He declared that more than thirty per cent of other counties in Alabama have employed the system and found it desirable as well as economical.

During the World War Major Slaton was with the engineer corps and constructed some of the first roads in France over which U. S. soldiers and supplies were moved. He constructed the first slag road in France, and at the end of the war was offered a position as road supervisor with the French government. Since his return he has been connected with the highway departments of Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Louisiana.

He declared that a trained engineer can save Chilton county thousands of dollars each year by gradually perfecting the system along permanent roadbeds.

Don't be misled by false statements. Calomel, salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills and drugs have no effect whatever on the liver or its production of bile. The truth of this statement can be proved by consulting the authoritative medical textbooks published during the past five years.

There are only two known substances which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances, and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them.—(adv.)

Another Meeting Called About $50,000.00 Loan

the following to say in a lengthy letter given the News for publication this week.

"I am sure Mr. W. H. Conway, the chairman of the committee, whose duty it is to explain this matter to the people of Chilton county will be glad for anybody that is opposed to the county getting this money to come to this meeting and explain their objections.

"I ask you people to consider for one moment the position of the few men in our county who have opposed this loan behind closed doors. If they had facts to establish and prove the position they take, why have they not come out in the open and pointed them out to the people and shown them from the record and facts to substantiate their criticism of the county receiving this money? If there is anything dangerous in the proposition, why don't they come out in the open and tell the people what the danger is?"

As was predicted last week by the News, there appears to be considerable opposition to the county making application for this $50,000, judging from letters from citizens, as published elsewhere in the News this week. These letters state reasons of the writers for their opposing the loan.

Conway Says Attend Meet Here Saturday

the fullest understanding of all phases of the question.

As I understand it, the Commissioners Court will have full charge of all phases of administration of this relief measure. They will designate the relief agency to make investigations and determine who needs the work. All persons thus employed will be Chilton County people, and the money will be spent in Chilton County to the destitute and needy people.

If you vote against your neighbor having a chance to work for this money and getting relief, don't you think it will, in a way, be detrimental to yourself to do so?

The people who do not need relief have an opportunity, at no cost to themselves, to vote for this relief fund, and thereby help a poor needy neighbor to get some money to feed and clothe his family and pay his taxes to save his home. Is not such an opportunity for service worthy of the sincere support of all good citizens?

In conclusion, I want to again urge every citizen to come to the court house next Saturday afternoon at 1:30. Come with an open mind, prepared to hear and understand the truth. Remember it is the interest of the poor people we want to serve, and let us not make the grave error of throwing away an opportunity to help them.

Respectfully,
W. H. CONWAY, Chairman.

velop by keeping their promises of reducing tariff rates which they made in the last campaign," retorted Crowther, (R), New York.

Only 20 minutes of debate preceded the ballot. It came on a motion by Representative Schafer, (R), Wisconsin, to take the Crowther bill away from the ways and means committee, which had rejected it, 13 to 11. The vote was forced by a discharge petition signed by 145 members.

3 Democrats Join Republicans

On the final roll-call, three Democrats—Hill, of Washington; Martin of Oregon, and Connery of Massachusetts—voted with the Republicans. Kvale, the Farmer-Laborite, and 15 Republicans, voted with the Democrats.

The Republicans who voted with the Democrats were: Amlie, Christgau, Gilchrist, Guyer, Hoch, Hope, Morton D. Hull, LaGuardia, Lambertson, McGugin, Nelson of Wisconsin, Peavey, Schneider, Sparks and Stafford.

"Central Park" Is Coming Here Soon

A man's battle for life with an enraged lion in its cage, a panic on a ballroom floor when the ferocious beast leaps into the midst of the dancers, a chase for the escaped animal in the darkness of a park forest, are among the exciting incidents said to make "Central Park," a First National Picture, coming to the [illegible] Theatre [illegible] February 21 and 22, one of the most thrilling dramas ever depicted on the screen.

Two animals from the Selig Zoo were used for the scenes in the picture which features Joan Blondell and Wallace Ford, one Jackie, an intelligent and tractable lion that could be depended on to follow directions, and the other Tarzan, a ferocious beast that had to be [illegible]

IN MEMORY OF MISS BERTEEN DELOACH

The death angel visited the hospital at Tuscaloosa February 10, 1933 and carried away from us our beloved sister, Berteen DeLoach. She was sick only a short time with flu, and bronchial pneumonia set upon her, and God saw fit to take her beloved soul from our midst. He saw fit to take her out of this old world of trouble, sickness and sorrow, which we must all leave sooner or later in that day to come. So weep not, dear brothers and sisters, for God saw fit to take her from us, and His will must be done and not ours.

All was done for dear sister that loving hands could do for her on earth to save here, but the Lord saw fit to take her away. So be reconciled one and all to His will for He knows best.

She lived to be 19 years old and left behind to mourn her loss four brothers and two sisters: S. B. DeLoach of Birmingham, Otis DeLoach of Georgiana, Gattis DeLoach of Coopers, Clifton DeLoach, Iroma Powell of Clanton and Omie McKee of Mt. Creek, and a host of friends and relatives.

Her body was laid to rest on Sunday, February 12th, at Bethany church near Enterprise. Rev. Raines conducted the funeral. So let us all prepare to meet her in a better world on high, where there's neither trouble, sickness nor sorrow, for we know not when we will be called to leave this old world of sin. So let's try to live in a way that we can say to our loved ones here when we are called to leave this unfriendly world I'm ready and not afraid to die, but all is well.

—Written by her sister, Mrs. Elmer Powell.

WALLACE BEERY AND JACKIE COOPER AS FATHER AND SON IN PICTURE COMING HERE, 16TH

Poignant human interest, comedy and details of the exciting life in a Mexican border town mingle in the first appearance on the screen together of Wallace Beery, hero of "The Big House," and Jackie Cooper, famous for "Skippy."

The pair are teamed in "The Champ," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid drama, coming to the Wadesonian Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 16, 17 and 18.

Beery plays an old prize fighter, living with his small son in border town where he is everlastingly trying to make a "comeback." There is a sensational prize fight, thrills of racing at Caliente, and through it runs the stirring story of a father's love and his sacrifice to give the child the "break" he never could have.

Brief News Items

The one bright spot in the Alabama agricultural picture as farmers begin another crop is the fact that there are reasonably ample supplies of food and feed crops on hand, says the Alabama Economic Review, Auburn publication.

The supply of farm labor in Alabama is about two and one-half times the demand, with farm wages by the month being reported at $8.00 and by the day at 40 cents with board.

Alabama bank failures for 1932 were only half the number recorded for 1931, there being 36 in 1931 and only 18 in 1932.

Building activity in Alabama reached its peak in 1927 and has declined each year since, according to data on plans and permits issued as reported by the Commercial and Financial Chronicle for January 28, 1933.

The drastic price situation confronting agriculture is shown by the fact that for December, 1932, prices paid by farmers for things bought stood at 106 and prices received by farmers for things sold stood at 52 when prices for 1909 to 1914 are used as a base at 100.

New Commissioners Are Making Several Changes

approximately fifty vacancies, created in the county system of government by a wide-sweeping re-organization program set into motion this week. It was explained that the absence of Judge Reynolds handicapped continuance in voting, inasmuch as the vote of the Probate Judge is often necessary in case of a tie between the four commissioners.

With Commissioner Cobb acting as chairman, the remaining three members of the court voted in the Wednesday morning session to re-set the salary of the county treasurer to $1,000 per year. The treasurer's salary was reduced from $1,000 to $800 a year at a December meeting of the court, prior to the installation of the two new members, Duke and Atchison. It was also stated that Commissioner Mims was not present at the meeting.

It was also voted Wednesday to adopt the same scale of taxation in the county that was in force last year. Several other matters, including fixing the amount to be paid an expert accountant who is employed to audit the books of the county treasurer, were discussed.

ATTEMPT MADE TO ASSASSINATE GOV. ROOSEVELT

Five Others Wounded When Man Fires Into Crowd As Roosevelt Speaks

Wednesday night of last week almost brought a red sheet of history in the world, when a man fired five shots from a pistol into a crowd at Miami, Fla., where President-Elect Roosevelt was extending greetings.

Missing the president-elect, the five shots found their mark in five other persons, including Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago. The man attempting to kill Roosevelt was grabbed by several persons and rushed to safety in the top story of a jail. He gave his name as Giuseppe Zangara, age 33, an Italian.

All this happened in a flash. During the excitement, president-elect Roosevelt calmly rose in the automobile in which he was seated and assured the crowd that he was unhurt.

Following is an Associated Press report of recent developments in the case:

Miami, Fla., Feb. 20.—As scornful of the law as when he tried with fanatical zeal to assasinate President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt last Wednesday night, Giuseppe Zangara today pleaded guilty to four counts of attempt to murder and was sentenced to 80 years.

Zangara is 33. His sentences of 20 years in each case, running consecutively, constitute life imprisonment at Raiford State Prison or hard labor in the Florida road camps.

However, should Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, or Mrs. Joe H. Gill,

SCOTT CASE IS AGAIN BEFORE CHILTON COURT

Judge Tate Presiding Over Court; Criminal Cases Set For Today

A special session of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, with the Hon. Judge F. Loyd Tate presiding, got underway here Tuesday morning with the hearing of a motion for a new trial in the case of J. B. Scott against the Louisville and Nashville Railway Company for $100,000 damage in connection with the death of J. D. Scott, son of the plaintiff, in a railway accident near Cullman, Ala., in 1927.

This is the second time the case has been up for trial in the Chilton county courts, having been brought here in 1928 on a change of venue. A reversal was rendered by the Supreme Court on an appeal from the former hearing.

W. A. Denson, of Birmingham is attorney for the plaintiff, and the defendant is represented by Hon. Lawrence Gerald, of Clanton. Most of the Tuesday session was spent in the discussion of technical phases of the motion. Judge Tate granted a hearing for a new trial.

Judge Tate announced that Wednesday will be devoted to the hearing of civil cases and Thursday to criminal cases. Circuit Solicitor Winston Huddleston was also in court Tuesday.

1933 Bootleggers Made Appearance Tuesday

Have you seen the 1933 model bootlegger?

He's an innovation in the dispensation of giggle water in Chilton County —and you should hear his lines.

But they failed to stand up to the test meted out by Sheriff Gillespie's boys' early Tuesday morning.

For when Andy Foshee and Morry Gamble, two of the new models in dark maroon colors, scrambled off a Louisville and Nashville freight train in Clanton about 2:30 a.m., lugging five gallons of Shelby County corn, they walked right into the arms of Deputies James and Louis Gillespie, Norris, Robinson and Night Policeman Foshee.

The boys said that they had boarded the freight while it was taking water at Helena; and admitted that they had taken advantage of the 'transportation by rail' method before, however, it was understood that they had not planned to avail themselves of the L. & N. pick-up service which goes into effect at an early date.

During the next few weeks Mr. Stapp will organize 4-H clubs at more than twenty-five places in the county, and he declares that he hopes to enroll more than seven hundred active members in the various clubs.

"Harmony Four" Gets Kiwanians Glad Hand

One of the most entertaining programs given at the Kiwanis Club meetings of Clanton was presented last Thursday night at the regular club meeting. This program was put on by the well known "Harmony Four" radio entertainers of Calera.

Composing this quartette is R. B. Dodge, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, Leon Busby, W. L. Osley, with Mrs. R. B. Dodge at the piano. They rendered several vocal numbers.

A rousing welcome was given Dr. Lawrence by the club, on his moving to Clanton to make his home and open his practice.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid Mullins, Mesdames J. C. Jones, Clara Mullins spent Thursday in Selma attending the Womans Missionary Conference.

Thieves Enter Church Near Here Recently

The News was informed of one of the lowest pieces of thievery recently, that has been heard of here in some time. Several days ago someone entered the New Home church, southwest of Clanton and took away a small table, a small bookcase, and all the books and church papers in the church.

Mr. I. M. Deason was in Clanton Tuesday and told the News about this incident. Mr. Deason asked the News to state that if those who took these things, would return the books and papers to the church, no questions would be asked. The church is inconvenienced by the loss of its books.

FARMER NEAR JEMISON ENDS LIFE RECENTLY

Arthur Horton, 43, Fires Full Charge From Shotgun Into His Head

Becoming despondent over financial conditions Arthur Horton, a 43-year-old farmer of the Providence community in the north-western section of the county, ended his life, last Thursday afternoon, by firing a charge from a 12-guage shot gun into his right temple.

Coroner J. Mell Martin, after a thorough investigation, rendered an official report of death by suicide. There were no eye witnesses to the shooting, nor was any note found to indicate that he had contemplated the act.

A party composed of the dead man's two young sons, Mytle and Renfro, and two neighbors, M. E. Brantley and Cecil Carlee, were hunting rabbits in a nearby field, when it was reported that Mr. Horton asked to use the gun, which

Burglars Get Away With Groceries Here

Aside from the burglary of the Mims Grocery Store Saturday night, criminal activities were quiet over the week end in Clanton.

A passerby heard noises in the store, late Saturday night, and made a report to the Sheriff's office. Deputy Norris and Night Policeman Foshee rushed to the scene, but the burglars had already made a get-away. Several dollars worth of groceries were missed.

Officers expressed the opinion that the burglar had secreted himself in the store before closing time. Mr. Will Hayes is manager of the store.

MORE CHANGES ARE MADE BY COMMISSIONERS

Next Regular Court Meeting Is Expected To Bring More Changes

Drastic changes in employes of Chilton County were made during a three-day session of the Commissioners' Court, last week, with the newly-elected members of the court, Commissioners Duke and Atchison, taking the lead.

After two days consideration of a barrage of applications for various posts in the county government, changes were made throughout the entire system, setting into motion a "readjustment program", as it was termed by members of the Court.

Percy M. Pitts was appointed county attorney, succeeding Omar L. Reynolds; Mrs. David H. Arant was succeeded as clerk of the Commissioners' Court by Irving P. Kennedy, and J. E. Easterling was appointed to succeed Arthur Burnett as driver of the county gasoline truck.

Judge L. H. Reynolds declared that certain members of the Court took advantage of his illness and absence from the meeting Wednesday to make changes that did not meet with his approval. Only three members of the Court participated in the voting—Commissioner Cobb acted as chairman. It was reported that none of the decisions were unanimous.

Other appointments, including the road crews in the several districts, won't be made public until the next regular meeting of the Court, March 6, it was announced.

Two Men Are Shot In Jemison Affair

Two men were shot and slightly wounded at Jemison Saturday night by J. W. Smith, night policeman, when he declared that a group of several men attacked him in an effort to effect the escape of Ruby Crowson, who was under arrest for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

The wounded men were: Ruby Crowson, with a flesh wound in the hip, and his brother, Andrew Crowson, who was struck in the right arm.

Smith declared that he was rushed from the dark while trying to place Ruby in jail. He suffered severe bruises about the head, a cut on his right hand, and a bruise on his left leg from stones and other weapons that his assailants wielded.

Medical aid was rendered in all three cases by Dr. H. G. Franklin, of Thorsby, and Dr. R. B. McNeil, of Jemison.

Smith intimated that charges af assault and battery and interfering with an officer while in pursuit of duty will be placed against other of his assailants, whose identity he claims to know.

MOVING AND REPAIR WORK IS UNDERWAY

5 Stores In Clanton Change Locations with Extensive Remodeling Going On

The moving of various places of business in Clanton, which has been causing so much comment lately, is now going on in full speed, and all taking place almost in the same block.

Several days ago, M. A. Gore moved his feed and supply store to a vacant building across the street from the former location, and next door to the Woco-Pep Station.

Later, Jesse Baker moved to the building next door, south, of Gore's new location, and next to Calloway's Garage. Mr. Baker has cleaned out his stock of dry goods, given them a good display in his new store, which is still having some remodeling done in it. He stated to a representative of the News that he is expecting a large shipment of new goods in the next few days.

The Clanton Cash Store, with O. D. DeLoach as manager, is now located in its new home, which is the corner building on main street, formerly occupied by Marion Gore. This building has been remodeled throughout. A new and very attractive front has been put in. New flooring, shelving also adds to this place. This change took place this week. The Clanton Cash Store

Does the Public Want to Know?

Mr. G. D. Newton, of the Travelers Insurance Company, recently said: "I have come to the conclusion that the public—that mass of 120,000,000 men, women and children, doesn't want to know anything about automobile accidents. Absolutely nothing. But . . . let me hasten to add that there are thousands of responsible persons. . . . who are deeply interested in this problem, and therefore are curious of mind. But they cannot be classed as comprising the American public."

As a solution, Mr. Newton recommends that the insurance industry work to make "safety" more attractive, and really "sell safety" to the public at large.

Whatever the solution may be, his indictment of the public is important—and entirely justified. The ghastly toll of automobile accidents has increased in spite of improvements made in the design of automobiles and highways. The public has virtually refused to recognize the need for care, competence and courtesy—the trinity of accident prevention. It has allowed conditions to develop to where public highways are almost as dangerous as battlefields.

A multitude of organizations—civic committees, insurance committees, law enforcement officials, etc.—have worked to instill an understanding of safety in the public mind. That work is being continually intensified and improved. But it will not be successful until the public really wants to learn safety—until it realizes that there is no place for the incompetent and the reckless behind the wheel of a car. Safe driving is a duty we owe to society —and, if nothing else, the age-old instinct of self-preservation should force it upon us.

A First Mortgage On The United States

A life insurance policy is a first mortgage on the productive wealth of the United States.

Behind it are millions of dollars in cash and investments embracing every major industry. Government bonds, railroad bonds, utility bonds—these are issues which find their way into life insurance portfolios. Some of the bonds may go down temporarily, some of them may stay down for periods of years. But that has little influence on life insurance security. An individual, when times become hard, may have to sell in a buyer's market, taking whatever is offered. A life insurance company keeps on hand sufficient cash, in a legal reserve, to meet obligations and can hold investments until it can sell at an advantageous price.

After all, the real test of a country's wealth is what it can produce. That is what will finally pull the United States, and other powers, out of the depression. That is what life insurance realizes, and has taken full advantage of. It doesn't deal in promises. It deals in facts. It backs up every policy it issues with its gigantic holdings in those enterprises which provide employment, pay taxes and produce goods or services which the people must have. And the answer is—absolute safety.

Nothing For Charity

When our government was considering resumption of specie payment after the Civil War, Sherman is credited with saying that the only way to resume is to resume. That applies now. Everywhere the prevalent thought seems to be, What can I do to cut down? Whom can I fire? and so on.

Commenting on the statement that "investment and employment are cheaper than charity," F. V. Keesling, attorney of San Francisco, says: "Unless there be continuous investment and employment, there will be nothing for charity.

"There is an unfortunate attitude among the people. For instance, at the golf links the other day one of the members decried the fact that there were several men employed in planting trees. When he was told that it seemed to be a highly desirable thing under the conditions, so long as the club could afford it, a clearer vision gave him a proper reaction."

No good fairy is coming out of the clouds and create employment. The people are going to have to create it for themselves. The good fairy will be their own desire to do something.

Every day that those of us who can afford to, delay in furnishing employment for needed and necessary work, our national wealth is reduced, taxes are increased for charitable enterprises and the day draws nearer when there will be nothing left to give for charity, and government itself will face bankruptcy through inability to collect taxes. There are millions of individuals and industries whose premises are sadly in need of repairs. The time to do that work is now. Delay is expensive "economizing."

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Haven't got any trade letters for you this week. Seems like folks haven't got anything they want to trade so bad these days. Here I go and offer to run their trading ads free. Well, just send in your letter if you have anything you want to trade. I'll put it in this column.

I'm having to write this column before I get the results of the election on the $50,000.00 in the county. Wish I knew the outcome so I could comment on it, or something.

* * *

Notice that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad is going to give the business houses of Clanton something to talk about pretty soon. When a merchant says that he can have his goods shipped here by truck and delivered right to his door, well, he ain't getting any more than the railroad will give him after March 15th. The railroad announces that after that date they will make store-door delivery of freight, etc., in Clanton. Of course that means in the business section of town. Now, you merchants, let's get to patronizing the railroads some more. They are going to give you some real service.

Then comes some bad news. I see by the News that the Western Union office will not be reopened in Clanton as was stated sometime ago. That's just too bad, or something.

Well, the moving in Clanton is taking on momentum, or something this week. When you come to Clanton on Friday or Saturday of this week, you will find the Clanton Cash Store on the corner where Marion Gore had his stand. They'll be in a nice freshly repaired and painted store. Jesse Baker is already round on Sixth Street, hossing for business. He has a little smaller place of business, but more light, and I believe he made a good move. Then there might be some more changes by the time this column goes to the press. But at this writing I don't know of any that will be made by that time. However, the Sample Shoe Store is getting their new home all fixed over. This will be over next door to Calloway Drug Co. Then Calloway Drug Co., will just have to move, so they are going over to the place where Ben Margolis and his Sample Shoe Store was. Sounds like a cross-word puzzle or something.

Hurrah for Clanton. We've got a new resident and a new doctor all at the same time. This means that Dr. C. O. Lawrence, formerly of Calera, is becoming a full fledged resident of Clanton. If you all knew Dr. Lawrence like I know him, you would all say hurrah, too. Doc is a fine fellow if there ever was one. Yep, I understand that he will put out his shingle and start practicing right away down here. Let's all give him the big, glad hand.

And what's this I hear about somebody going to get all hitched up and jump in the sea of matrimony? Nope, I ain't talking about Durwood Teel, but I get rumors of someone else, but can't get the low-down on it. I note with pleasure that Durwood is making such arrangements. I might say also that I extend congratulations to Mr. Teel and Miss Parnell of Maplesville. They both have good taste when it comes to selecting life-time partners.

I've been reading these editorials in the News about trading with your home merchants so much that I'm getting into the scrap myself. Some folks may think that the News is stretching the blanket a little when they tell of the impending crisis unless this trading away from home isn't stopped. Well, I've talked with the editor about it, and from his standpoint of view, he is right. But the majority of our merchants are just sitting down sleeping at the switch and letting this thing go on. Of course there are a few of the merchants in Clanton who are going after business hot and heavy by various routes. But regardless of the route, they are getting the business. But there is a bunch of merchants here who are making very little effort to get down to the business of getting business. You ask the question, how to go after this business? Well, loosen up a little and do some advertising, let the people know you want their business. It' either that or let the other fellow get it all, or the biggest part of it. You merchants better heed this. Opportunity is knocking at your door and I ain't fooling you this time, either.

I notice that prices on automobile tires are taking a jump downward several notches. Dief, down at Dief's Service Station said that he would be ready in a day or so to start telling the people of the low prices now on Goodyear tires an dtubes. He says they are way down in price. Watch for Dief's ads.

Also might mention here that Howard Garage, down at Verbena, is also dealers in Goodyear tires and tubes. And you can certainly depend on them for quality of workmanship in repairing automobiles, and in low price. Get acquainted with the Howard boys. They are a fine lot of fellows to know.

Selma did herself proud in Clanton last Friday afternoon and night when the Selma High School band staged a street parade and a band concert. The parade was a knock-out, and true to form. We might also give special mention to the dashing and charming young lady at the head of this band. I've forgotten her name, but regardless of that, she came near being the show in the parade, no doubt being the cause of many young fellows purchasing tickets to the concert that night. The band showed good tutoring, and prospects of bigger things. My hat is off to Selma on having this fine group of young people taking part in music interests. I might mention as a suggestion to them, that when playing in a building, they take consideration of the building and tone their music down a bit sometime, or something.

I note that the Wadesonian Theatre has dropped its prices of admission. That should be quite an inducement to many people to see more pictures. The Wadesonian is getting some good pictures here now, too. During the past several weeks, they have been showing pictures in Clanton several days before they would be shown at Montgomery or Birmingham shows. That is something, isn't it?

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

My early morning slumber was disturbed by blood curdling sounds coming from the back yard. I arose and went to the window and in the moonlight I saw five cats standing in a circle about the size of a wagon wheel. Each one was watching the others, while the air quivered with their growls and screams. I held my observation point for quite awhile, and listened in on the bitter debate. It was Tom cat against Tom cat, while ever and anon there were shrill sounds that made me to think that a sister cat was in the bunch. There came a lull in the contest and I was sure that peace had been made. Then the trouble broke out louder and fiercer than ever. The longer it lasted the more bitter was the argument. I never asked the gentlemen and the ladies of the fur what they were arguing about, but I rather think that they had met to settle an estate that was left them by deceased parents. Of all the things under the sun out of which cometh strife and bitter arguments, there is nothing to be compared to the settlement of an estate.

A friend of mine was making a trip in his car. On leaving the paved road he came to a sand hill that he must climb. He pressed the accelerator expecting to gain in speed, but his clutch slipped and his car stopped. The engine would run with great speed, but the power failed to reach the wheels. There he sat with a perfect machine, with the exception of the transmission of the clutch, and he was as powerless as if he had no automobile at all. It matters not how perfect may be our organizations in community and church life, if there is a slip of the clutch, and we fail to link up with the people, our machinery becomes null and void. It is a fact that many of our organizations will run well when there is no hard pull, but when there is a difficult task, the clutch slips and we stop. Many a pulpit in this country is running well, but the clutch that connects the pulpit with the pew has slipped, and the church is standing still.

I have seen many monuments standing in public places. They were standing there last year and they will be standing there next year, and no one seems to care. They create no excitement and the passing public rarely ever stops to take notice. In the town or city where the monuments stand the fire bell may sound and all the citizenship becomes interested. A building is on fire and the people begin to gather. The smoke becomes thicker and blacker and as far as it can be seen the multitudes are pressing towards the burning building. If you want to see the citizenship of most any town, just burn one of her blocks. There is something in us that pulls us toward a burning building. Many of our churches are nothing more than a monument. People see them and think about the past and then pass on. When our churches are set on fire with a burning passion for the salvation of the lost, then we will have no empty pews. The crowds will gather where the church is on fire. O that all of our churches would cease to be monuments and all alike become buildings burning with the passion of the Master.

When the Circus comes to town you can see in the parade animals of various sizes and temperaments. Near the end of the circus line you will observe the Zebra. He is a beautiful animal and he carries himself with such grace and dignity, and that is all that he is good for. He carries no load, he pulls no stunts, he is good for nothing but to be seen. In the parade of human life there are men and women of various sizes and temperaments, and they carry various loads and pull various stunts, but in that parade we see a certain class, who like the Zebra, serve no place but to be seen of men. God pity the individual who is good for nothing but just to be seen.

A cur dog came near where an Elephant was munching his hay. A hopping flea leaped from the dog's back and landed on the snout of the Elephant. He made a race for the ear of the Elephant and became very much at home. Later the huge animal was being carried to the circus grounds, and the flea stuck his head out to see the line of travel. A bridge was reached and the flea heard the keeper talking about the strength of the bridge. The Elephant was driven over not without great danger. The timbers showed every sign of being tested to the limit. After reaching the opposite side in safety, the flea drew in his head and walked down near the ear drum of the Elephant and shouted, "Big Boy, we made that bridge sag and creak and tremble as we passed over." If I mistake not there are many people in the church who have hopped her for a ride. They seem very much at home in Zion. They know much about the line of travel, and when the church accomplishes something that is really worth while you will hear them shouting, "We have done wonders." "We caught the bear" is a common expression used by the fellow who was up a tree while the bear was being caught. Good Lord, deliver us from the riding, boasting fleas that pounce on the church and do nothing but ride and boast.

ORVILLE MASTIN DISCUSSES PRESENT CONDITIONS

Clanton, Ala., Jan. 6, 1933.

Editor, Chilton County News:

The letters by Dr. Gragg and Mr. Jackson in the February 2 issue of your paper were well worth everyone's careful thought. As Dr. Gragg pointed out the farmer has made this country what it is. Mr. Jackson reminds us what treatment he is getting in return and then goes to the very heart of our problem when he states that it is not individuals who are to blame but the system under which we are living. But will the "remedy" he offers change this system? He suggests inflation of the currency and limitation of incomes to one hundred thousand dollars a year and of inheritances to one million dollars.

If inflation is what we need then we should be enjoying prosperity now for there is at this time almost a billion dollars more money in circulation than during the boom according to a recent editorial in the Birmingham Post.

On what basis would incomes be limited to $100,000 a year and inheritances to one million dollars? Do we want justice or do we want to bribe the capitalists into letting the farmers and working man get just a little more of what he produces? If a person justly earns even $500,000, then he should have it but there is no man who can honestly earn even $100,000. The only way he can get that much in a year is by taking away from working men part of what they produce. Either this is right or it is wrong. There is no half way ground. If it is wrong then it should be ended entirely and if we are going to admit that it is right then the case of the working man is hopeless.

The thing we must control is not the amount of income a person is to have but rather the way he is to get what he has. In other words, as Mr. Jackson states, we must change our system. Under our present system a few individuals own the means of production and exchange and operate them for their own profit. If we are to change this system then the people who work on the farms and in the factories must own them and operate them for their own use and not for the profit of a few owners.

Now a farmer may individually own his own farm, tho every year fewer and fewer are able to do so. But even if he does own his farm he cannot individually own the factories that make the things he buys, nor the railroads, nor the stores from which he buys and which sell the products of the farms. If these things are to be operated for the benefit of all then they must be owned collectively by the producers and consumers. The only way to accomplish this is through governmental ownership.

Why is it that in spite of an abundance of everything we need we are now in the fourth year of our depression with no real evidence of future improvement in sight? It is because everything that has been done that was supposed to help is based on keeping our present system. It is true that it will be no easy job to change from our capitalistic system to one based on justice and cooperation, but until we do it we will have a social system with a much larger head than its body, until finally the body will be unable to support the head.

The above is my firm conviction after years of thorough study. If anyone can show we where these ideas are wrong and has a better plan then I am ready to join them. We are all in the same boat and the only way for us to improve our conditions is to join forces on the right plan and stay put until we succeed. We must create a system in which everyone will be able to earn a good living and in this way we will each be sure of this for himself. As long as we depend on someone else to do something for us we are doomed to disappointment. We must do it for ourselves if it is to be done. Talk is easy but by itself will get us nowhere. The question is what are we going to do about it? If the farmers and working men will build up a political party of their own so they can elect their own representatives to put a just system in operation instead of electing representatives of Big Business then we will be on the right road. The time to start is now. Let's Go!

ORVILLE H. MASTIN.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN CHILTON COUNTY

Editor, Chilton County News:

Once upon a time way back in 1907 there was a good natured, bald-headed parent who seemed to conceive the idea that it would be good to become the parent of a great political family, known as the Republican Party of Chilton county.

By and by the conceived idea came to a head which resulted in a great birth of a new political party of hundreds of new born Republican babies.

I was one of the Republican babies born in this great political family at the same time hundreds of others were.

I was a faithful child of this family from 1907 to 1928, a period of 21 years, which is the legal amount of years to serve any parent.

During this period of 21 years I got the experience of my life as a Republican. We had many family troubles which had to be solved, and the one I want to speak of now is the question as to whether or not we would permit colored children to be adopted into our family or not. So by and by we had a great family reunion in Birmingham and the question of whether or not we would adopt colored children into our family came up, and had to be settled. Well, this most important question caused a great family row which resulted in a split and a new family was created, so we had two Republican families. One known as the Lily Whites —this family would not accept colored children. The other Republican family was known as the black and tans and would take just any old colored child.

Having two families in so small a circle proved to be poor Republican discipline. So our parents went to work to bring about better discipline, and the result was no more Lily Whites nor Black and Tans, and the family again became just the G. O. P.

Now this G. O. P. of Chilton county was borne into existence for the purpose of giving its allegiance to the national G. O. P. family. And this national G. O. P. family has made some interesting history since 1866 to the present time, and should be studied by all young people of the South.

Back in the latter part of the sixties and first of the seventies it gave us carpet bag and colored rule. And from 1930 to the present time it has given us Hoover starvation and nakedness.

When the good Republicans of our county understand what real Republicanism means to the South they will turn their guns on it just like they did Hoover. And select their leaders and officials from the Democratic family, and then Chilton county will be in line with our nation to receive the New Deal and the Forgotten Man remembered, that our President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, has promised to the many millions of people who selected him for that purpose. I believe the people's faith will end in sight of these promises.

Respectfully,
A. A. JACKSON.

A FEW THINGS TO CONSIDER

Editor, Chilton County News:

Will you let me have space in your valuable paper, as it has been some time since I have written any? I am going to speak concerning our relief plans as we have some things to be considered. Now, Mr. Red Cross, we see as we have tried the system it has been run for some time, and it don't get our suffering any relief, only just while it is lasting. It isn't anything more than giving a dose of morphine. Now we don't want to make dope eaters so let's change our system again, try it. Let's take this government stuff and put these boys that are out of jobs, put them to the plow and let them make them some bread while they eat and wear this. Let's turn to the Bible. Turn to Eze. 18:17. Try Jethros plan, Moses' father-in-law. It seems that he had some trouble concerning some conditions and he tried it and they came out conquerors. Now Jethro said to Moses, Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able men such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness. And place such over them to be rulers of thousands and rulers of hundreds and rulers of fifties and rulers of tens and let them judge the people at all seasons and it shall be that every great matter they shall bring unto thee and every small matter they shall judge. So shall it be easier for thyself, and they shall bear the burden with thee. Now boys, if we get our $50,000 loan, let's see that it is equaled out and give everybody equal share and let's be one and equal. Do unto others as you would that they do unto you. I will close by thanking the Editor for same.

LARGE CROWDS SEE THE NEW FORD V-8 HERE

Clanton Motors Display Late Model Of Ford; Give Many Improvements

A steady stream of visitors viewed the new Ford V-8 cylinder 112-inch wheelbase motor cars when they were put on display today at the showrooms of Clanton Motors, Ford Dealers, at Clanton.

Throughout the day the crowds about the cars showed unusual interest in the new bodies and their appointments. The new Fords are the most powerful ever built, it was stated by Clanton Motors. Fourteen body types are available, including both Standard and DeLuxe types of the Roadster, Phaeton, Coupe, Tudor and Fordor Sedans. The Cabriolet and Victoria are exclusive DeLuxe types.

The new Ford bodies are characterized by a new and distinctively modern note, with flowing streamlines. The front and ensemble of sloping Vee radiator grille, new skirted fenders, newly designed lamps, horn and bumpers, is most attractive. The windshield has a 20-degree slope. A wide choice of body colors is available. Colored wheels are optional on the DeLuxe types.

Bodies are of all-steel construction, and many sections are joined by electric welding.

Body interiors are exceptionally roomy, the bodies being materially wider and almost a foot longer than formerly. Seats are wide and deeply cushioned. Front seats in closed cars are adjustable. A choice of broadcloth or mohair upholstery is used in the standard body types; broadcloth, mohair and bedford cord in the DeLuxe types.

The interiors reveal a number of convenience features. The instrument panel is directly in front of the driver with a roomy package compartment at the right. The coincidental ignition and steering lock is located on the steering column bracket.

The doors are ususually wide, allowing easy access to the seats. Doors on all closed models may be locked from the inside. A single key operates both coincidental lock and door locks.

On all DeLuxe models a concealed ash receiver is located in the center of the instrument board with a cigar lighter just above it. The DeLuxe Tudor and Fordor Sedans and Victoria are also provided with an ash tray in the rear compartment.

Safety glass is used in the windshields of all body types and in the rear windows of cars with rumble seats. DeLuxe body types are fitted with safety glass throughout, while standard body types may be similarly equipped upon special order.

All closed cars are fitted with dome lights while the DeLuxe body types have cowl lights and rear compartment arm rests. The Tudor and Fordor Sedans and Victoria have a convenient radio aerial.

Don't be misled by false statements. Calomel, salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills and drugs have no effect whatever on the liver or its production of bile. The truth of this statement can be proved by consulting the authoritative medical textbooks published during the past five years.

There are only two known substances which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances, and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them.—(adv.)

INK DROPS FROM C. C. H. S.

By Dan Smith

Beginning with this issue and continuing during the school term there will appear each week a column of news from the Chilton County High School.

Last Friday night a concert was given in our auditorium by the Selma High School Band. This interesting program was attended by a good crowd. We were glad to welcome this fine band to our school and invite them to come again.

Chilton County High School is very proud of the Science Club here. Organized last year under Mr. J. B. Varnell, science instructor, this worthwhile organization has accomplished many things during its two years of existence. Recently the Science Club presented to the school four mounted specimens which are of a major importance to the biology classes. These four specimens, costing approximately fifteen dollars, are a skunk, crow, partridge and a blackbird. Money was raised for the expense of these valuable specimens with the presentation of the play "A Box of Monkeys," several weeks ago. For the benefit of those who wish to inform themselves on this club, a list of the members and the rules of the club are given below. The requirements of new members are:

1. All members must have an average of not less than eighty on all their studies.
2. Each must show a decided interest in scientific research.
3. Each must keep up dues and be co-operative.
4. The group must contribute something worthwhile to the school each year.
5. Each member must conduct himself in an orderly and mannerly way every day.
6. Each member must be willing to take part on the programs.
7. Each member must be approved by the membership committee and club director.

The members of the club at present are Joe Moore, President, Elizabeth Gragg, vice-president; Dixie Johnson, treasurer and social secretary; John Ezell, secretary; Jesse Frank Foshee, reporter; Louie Alford, critic; Louise Knox and Pearl Vinson. The Science Club with Mr. Varnell as director strives to promote a scientific interest among the students and contribute something worthwhile to the school each year.

The "C" Club at its meeting last week filled several vacancies and elected the following officers: Jesse Frank Foshee president; James "Gabby" Tiffin, vice-president; Jarrell Burdette, secretary and treasurer and Joe Moore reporter.

The Tennis Club is becoming very popular among the students and teachers of C. C. H. S. this year. At their regular meeting last week they elected officers for the last semester of this school term. The officers and members are Joe Moore, president; Miss Sarah Colley, vice-president; Morgan Bonnie Clyde Griffin, Miss Josephine Reynolds, secretary and treasurer; Miss Martin, Miss Berniece Williams, Grady Reynolds, Coach Walker and Jesse Frank Foshee. The following rules were adopted: 1. Membership fee for one semester is fifty cents. 2. Only members who have paid their dues will be allowed to play on the court. 3. Players must wear tennis shoes while playing. 4. A club member is permitted to have a non-member play by paying twenty-five cents for the time he plays. 5. The membership expires at the end of the school term.

Emerging from the study of land, labor and capital by the Senior III Democracy class is the revelation of two talented students in the persons of Pearl Vinson and Jarrell Burdette. Jarrel, with the wonderful knack for drawing, portrayed in an excellent cartoon how land, labor and capital were very close friends when production began; and when the profits were to be divided capital received the much larger portion, labor received a much too small portion, while land was made even poorer. This cartoon is in the office and it is worth stopping in and looking at. Pearl portrays this in a poem entitled, "Capital and Labor." This piece of poetry is indeed worth reading.

CAPITAL AND LABOR

By Pearl Vinson

"Friendship is but a name
Unless to one you stint that flame."
But listen to this story Labor tells About capital, the one friend he loved well.

"Now capital and I were the best of friends,
We thought we'd be so to the end.
So hand in hand, on the way.
To production we went day by day.

I labored almost night and day:
For to me, Capital would say,
'Now you do the work and I'll pay cash,
That we may to distribution come at last.'

To distribution, one day we came.
I thought we would receive the same:
But silently by my friend I stand,
While he takes all that should be in my hand.

Now, no longer friends are we;
He's my staunch enemy.
For since to Distribution we came
Our Friendship is only a name."

Life still has its humorous side despite the depression. Recent? Anyway, a teacher in Jr. I Geography class asked a bright looking little fellow to name her a small member of the camel family. Without hesitation, he innocently and honestly replied, "A baby camel."

To keep in style our school should have a class in Technocracy. We have a Democracy class, why not a class of Technocrats. So far we have only one confessed technocrat, none other than John Ezell. Anyone wishing a few pointers on this new national party should see John Ezell, a technocrat erg.

Mrs. Arant's Doughnuts Making Hit Here

Did you ever eat a real doughnut, cooked without grease? Well, Mrs. M. B. Arant has the will and the way of making these doughnuts, and they are delicious.

A representative of the News was asked to attend a demonstration by Mrs. Arant in making these doughnuts this week. Coffee was served with the doughnuts, and there is no reason why Mrs. Arant's doughnuts should not become very popular here.

She stated that she expected to hold another demonstration in the near future. These doughnuts are highly nourishing, have a unique flavor and extremely easy to digest. Just the thing for the kiddies. Mrs. Arant wants the people of Clanton to try her doughnuts, which are cooked by electricity in a most sanitary method. The price is fifteen cents per dozen, for the plain ones. Those with chocolate, cocoanut or any kind of icing, are twenty cents per dozen. Mack's Place is serving these doughnuts at their popular lunch room.

FEBRUARY WAS A GOOD MONTH FOR CHEVROLET

In the first ten days of February Chevrolet dealers reported the sale at retail of 10,544 new cars and trucks, a gain of 9.2 per cent over the comparable period of 1932, H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, announced here today.

Nuemrically, the first ten days of the present month compare with 9,650 units sold in the first ten days of February last year, and with 10,162 in the first ten days of January of this year, Mr. Klingler said.

Last February dealers delivered 32,000 units to consumers in the full month, and with a normal rate of increase in the two remaining reporting periods in February, the total should be considerably ahead of the same month last year, Mr. Klingler stated.

By February 10 there were an average of about four new cars per dealer in the field, although due to color options a shortage existed in certain models. This condition is now largely corrected, and dealers are able to make immediate delivery on practically any desired model, Mr. Klingler said.

Warning

Don't be misled by false statements. Calomel, salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills and drugs have no effect whatever on the liver or its production of bile. The truth of this statement can be proved by consulting the authoritative medical textbooks published during the past five years.

There are only two known substances which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances, and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them.—(adv.)

"WHAT IS A KILOWATT HOUR?"

JUST the other day one of our good customers, who uses eight or ten of the newest electric appliances in her home, asked us this question:

"What IS the meaning of a kilowatt hour?" "It always bothers me when I pay my monthly bill."

As other good customers may also be uncertain, the simple explanation of the term may be interesting:

A "kilowatt hour" is the use of one kilowatt (1000 watts) for one hour. It is a unit of measurement. Just like a QUART of milk, a YARD of cloth, a PECK of potatoes, a POUND of meat.

You can't see electricity at work, but you can measure the work it does just as accurately as you can measure any other article. For example:

One kilowatt hour (or KWH as it appears on your bill) will light your 60 watt lamp for two nights—over 16 hours. It will run a smaller lamp of 40 watts for 25 hours. It will operate your electric refrigerator for 12 hours. It will run an electric fan for 15 hours.

Under Alabama's low electric rates, kilowatt hours for residential use cost 37% less than five years ago and 15% less than the average for the country as a whole.

CHILTON CO. TRAINING SCHOOL

The teacher of Agriculture is still carrying on terracing demonstrations. He has terraced land for Archie Hall, Ralph Oden, Robert Williams, Moses Brown, Obie Collins and Felton Pierson. He has on his schedule, land for N. K. Calloway, Ben Love, George Williams, Bud Wilson, Gentle Barbour, Esau Bethel and Anthony Holyfield. If one wants to see the best system of terraces in the county, he has but to come out in the Training School community.

Part-Time Group

Because of inclement weather on last Wednesday and Friday, the part-time boys were not able to meet. Many of them are eager for instruction. Monroe Gordon, Dock Wilson, Deramus Varner, Abian Williams, Rogers Bryant, Jude Wilson and others are determined to show the way in cotton projects this year.

Look out, everybody. The Training School Community is in line for real Spring gardens.

Board Meets

The Board of Trustees met last Monday night. Most of the time was taken in discussing means of paying the long past due school note, and operating school busses the next school term. Mrs. Emma Benjamin and Mrs. Joshua McDaniel were selected to put on a drive in Clanton to raise funds for the school debt.

The following men were elected to the Board: J. L. McDaniel, A. B. Craig, Roosevelt Varner, and Jim Knight.

Getting Ready

Farmers in the Training School community are busy getting in line for planting. From the road one may see leaves scattered here and there, which is evidence that the farmers are using what they have. Ralph Oden and Felton Pierson have hauled out more than forty loads of leaf mold which has been scattered over their fields. Other farmers are doing the same.

Oat Crop Damaged

Many farmers, heedless of their instruction, planted oats in November. Consequently, our recent cold spell did much damage to the crop. Old Man Winter taught them a good lesson. For best results oats should always be sown before October 20th.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER ANNOUNCES CROP PRICE GUAR'Y

Plan For 1933 Is Much Larger Scope Than During 1932

The International Harvester Company of America, through their thousands of local dealers and representatives over the United States, have just released another crop price guaranty plan on purchases of their equipment, (excepting Motor Trucks and Repairs) that in effect will mean considerable saving to the farmers during 1933.

On a portion of the purchase of any equipment made through their local dealers, their guaranty covers wheat, cotton and corn. Their utmost faith in the future of American Agriculture is shown through their guaranteed prices recently released.

Their plan is to assure the farmer of a fair price for his wheat, cotton and corn. (Where the purchase is less than $150.00, one half of 80% of the price of the equipment he buys) they guarantee 8½c per pound for Cotton Middling Basis, New Orleans Delivery. On Corn it is 45c per bushel for No. 2 Yellow Corn, Chicago Delivery. On purchases of more than $150.00, the same guaranty prevails on 40% of the purchase price. Where cash purchases are made the adjustment is made at the time of the sale, but where purchases are made on the deferred plan, the adjustments are made on the basis of notes maturing this Fall.

Their local dealer, Clanton Tractor & Implement Co., will be glad to go into detail with you and explain this matter more fully, as they have all the figures showing just how to arrive at a net cost of equipment to you

Who Cares About Chilton County's Business Condition?

(AN EDITORIAL)

That old and time-worn statement by Benjamin Franklin — "United We Stand, Divided We Fall," can be applied to the condition of the prevailing inclination of the people of Chilton County to purchase goods out of the county, when these same purchases could and should be made in the county.

Who is supposed to move first on this matter? Is it the place of the merchant to act first, and get some movement on foot whereby buyers of food, clothing and other necessary items can have no excuse for trading away from home? Or, must the buyer come to the merchant and say, "I am going to trade at home from now on."

True, it would be difficult for most people to answer that question correctly. It is perhaps like hot cakes—has two sides. Let's get down to answering that question if possible.

From where does your bread and butter come, that is, your food and clothing? The answer is: From your own work.

From where does your work come? The answer is: From the need of your services, or your products or goods by some other individual or company. Then how is this individual to need your services, your products or goods? He must keep things moving, keep selling. To whom? To you and others so that he may then again need more of your services, products or goods.

That answers the question all right, but what method is to be used in causing this cycle of trade in Chilton County to continue to revolve Our reply is: Stop this unnecessary spending of money for goods away from home when the same goods can be bought here.

The News knows that these editorials on this subject are being read all over Chilton County and in parts of adjoining counties. The reason this is known is the large number of persons who have been commenting on these statements, realizing that the News is not exaggerating. These comments reaching the News are appreciated.

But the usual item is brought up many times—the mail order houses are seeking business by seeing that their timely message is placed in the hands of the farmers and buyers; that the stores in larger towns are sending their messages through the daily newspapers, telling of the bargains they have to offer the public. And can the merchant in Chilton County find a great deal of fault with the buyers of these articles for patronizing those merchants who invite trade to their doors?

Spend all the money you can with your home merchants. Make him come down on his prices if you must. Hold him to the trade—but trade with him. Spend your money at home, where it can be used to support county developments. We need and must have more loyalty to our home county in this respect. The outside world, outside of Chilton County, does not care a rip about Chilton County's business condition. It's up to you and the rest of us to look after Chilton County.

handles a complete line of groceries and meats.

The building formerly occupied by Jesse Baker, which is next door to Calloway Drug Company, is also receiving attention from carpenters and will have a new front and other extensive remodeling inside and out. This building is to be occupied by Ben Margolis and the Sample Shoe Store. This change will give the Sample Shoe Store more floor space and more display space.

It is understood that when the Sample Shoe Store moves, the Calloway Drug Company will move to the building now occupied by the shoe store and which is directly across main street.

This moving of these five business houses not only brings about extensive remodeling and repainting, but is giving considerable work to people now. It is adding greatly to the appearance of the two streets involved.

Attemp Made To Assassinate Roosevelt

prominent Miami society woman, die of the wounds they received when spectators deflected Zangara's aim at Mr. Roosevelt, the State will seek a first degree murder indictment and the death penalty.

Today's sentences were for trying to kill the President-elect, Russell Caldwell, Coconut Grove, Fla., Miss Margaret Kruis, Newark, N. J., and W. J. Sinott, New York policeman and bodyguard to Mr. Roosevelt. The latter three were slightly wounded by the bullets Zangara's pistol sprayed into the crowd which surrounded the car occupied by the President-elect in Bay Front Park.

Taking the witness chair, unconcernedly, Zangara gave stomach pains and hatred of capitalists as the reason for his desire to kill Mr. Roosevelt.

"I suffer all time from my stomach," Zangara told Judge E. C. Collins. "I no like the way capitalists take all money. When I read in paper the President come here, I decide to kill him.

"I decide to kill him and make him suffer. I want to make it 50-50. Since my stomach hurt I get even with capitalists by kill the President. My stomach hurt long time."

Zangara told the court he did not care whether he lived or not. "I seek all time," he said. "I just think maybe cops kill me if I kill President.

"Somebody hit my arm when I try it. "They fools! They should let me kill him."

The zealot turned as he was led from the courtroom, held up eight fingers, and asked Judge Collins how many years he had been sentenced to serve.

The judge nodded at the uplifted fingers.

"Four times 20 is 80," Zangara shouted. "Oh, Judge, don't be stingy. Give me 100 years."

ing to patronize the railroads as much as possible. This step will bring the service of the railroad so far as delivery is concerned up to a par with truck service in Clanton.

Joe W. Franklin, known to Clanton and surroundings as the best drayman in town, will handle this new service of the railroad, it was announced this week. Mr. Franklin has given Clanton very competent service for many years in the drayage business, and his services have met with approval from everyone.

It is with a great deal of pleasure that the News makes this announcement of this added service of the railroad.

Renfro, six-year-old son of the dead man, heard the shot and saw his father's hat fly into the air. He rushed to his side and called to other members of the party that "Daddy has shot himself."

Neighbors declared that for several weeks he had seemed worried and had constantly spoken of his financial condition.

He was a native of Chilton county and resided most of his life in the Providence community.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Lena Horton; two sons, Mytle and Renfro; and two daughters, Sybil and Hilda Horton.

"TRADE AT HOME" MOVE IS PUSHED

Plan To Investigate Cost Of Campaigns

COMMITTEE SELECTED TO INVESTIGATE

Investigation May Involve Four Office Holders Of This County

An investigation by a committee, headed by H. N. Smith, of Cooper, and said to have been selected to represent a group of more than one hundred citizens who held a meeting Friday afternoon, in the law offices of Grady Reynolds, here, may result in Quo Warranto proceedings being filed against four Chilton County office holders, in regard to the expending of campaign funds in the last November election, it is being rumored in Clanton.

Officials involved in the investigation are: County Commissioners C. D. Duke and J. C. Atchison, Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, country treasurer, and S. J. M. Webb, member of the county board of education. These officials composed one ticket in the campaign last fall and the expenses of the group were filed in one report.

The investigation is said to have been

DEMOCRATS ACT TO EX'CT FEALTY OF CITY OFFIC'RS

State Committee Asked To Force Qualifications In Municipal Primaries

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 25.—The State Democratic Executive Committee moved yesterday at a called meeting to strengthen party ties in the cities as in the state and counties when upon request of C. D. Comstock, chairman of the Jefferson County Democratic Executive committee, a subcommittee was named to inquire into the legality of holding a city primary in Birmingham and fixing qualifications of candidates in the primary.

The inquiry was urged, Mr. Comstock explained not as a move to prevent anyone now holding office from holding a city office in the future, but solely to prevent a recurrence of what occurred in 1928, "when many went over to the enemy in Birmingham."

Coming to Clanton and Chilton county, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, formerly of Calera, brings with him the good wishes of all who knew him in his former location.

Dr. Lawrence, a physician of note, comes to Clanton with highest recommendations. In a statement from him, it was learned he will open offices upstairs, above Upchurch Drug Co., in the rooms formerly occupied by Dr. Wood, shortly after March 5th.

He is now in New Orleans taking a special course in an eye, ear, nose and throat hospital. At present, Dr. Lawrence will not move his family to Clanton, he stated, but they will remain in Calera temporarily. A big hand of welcome is awaiting him on his locating in Clanton.

FORTY-TWO CASES DRINKS TAKEN FROM WAREHOUSE

"Oh, how dry I am!" evidently expressed the innermost sentiments of the persons who, Saturday night, burglarized the Cocoa Cola warehouse in Clanton and removed forty-two cases of the beverage.

Also the usual investigation tour of county buildings was conducted, which included the courthouse, the county jail and county alms house. Favorable reports were made on the conditions of each place examined.

Unity-Chilton Joint Rally Will Be Held

joint rally of Chilton and Unity Associations is set for Friday afternoon of this week, according to an announcement from the Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist church, moderator of the Chilton Association, and J. Z Mims, moderator of the Unity Association.

This rally will take place at the Clanton Baptist church beginning at two o'clock. Dr. L. E. Barton, of Montgomery will be present to deliver an address to the assembly. Pastors, Sunday school superintendents, presidents of W. M. U., directors of B. Y. P. U., executive committees of both associations, and other interested, are urged to attend this rally.

Statements Made By News Are Backed By Merchants

For the past three weeks, the News has been making a strong appeal to the people of this county to give their home merchants more consideration when buying goods, to stop their ordering goods from out of town when the same goods can be bought in your own county.

The News has been picturing, and not exaggerating, the detrimental effects of this trading away from home, draining our county of thousands of dollars each year, when the greater portion of this can be kept right in Chilton county.

Backing up the statement by the News that goods can be purchased in Clanton at just as low prices, if not lower, than from mail order houses, merchants of Clanton are taking their hand in this in the News this week. A study of the advertisements in this issue will convince anyone that the News knows what it is talking about. Of course there are no fancy pictures to illustrate the goods advertised, but there are statements and prices from the merchants that cannot be set aside.

Give this some serious thought before you send your money away from Chilton county. Keep in mind these facts: Money spent in Chilton county is re-invested here and means more money in home banks. Money sent away has one chance in a hundred of returning. When you spend your money at home, you see what you are buying before you pay for it. There is no guess work in that. When you spend your money in your home county, you are helping yourself as well as others. When ill luck, misfortune or bereavement comes, your home merchants are here with their kindly greeting, words of cheer and their pocketbooks if needs be. The man you buy from at home, stands back of the goods he sells, ready at all times to please his customers. You can't go wrong by trading with your home merchant in preference to sending your money away to mail order houses or any out of town stores.

Take this issue of the News, read the ads, study them, become better acquainted with the merchants of Clanton and what they have to offer you in the way of goods at low prices.

COMMISSIONERS PROBATE JUDGE HAVE CLASHES

Proposed $50,000 Loan Given Margin Of Ninety Votes In Official Count

That breach between members of the Commissioners' Court and Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, which is said to have had its beginning last week when several changes in the personnel of county employes were made over Judge Reynolds' disapproval, was widened a bit more at a special meeting of the court Thursday afternoon of last week when he lashed the court with accusations of taking advantage of his illness and absence from a meeting to make certain appointments and changes of which they knew he would not approve.

Information to the News from persons attending the meeting, related that Judge Reynolds accused Commissioners Duke and Mims of party infidelity, and questioned Commissioner Atchison's right to spend taxpayers' money when he declared that Atchi-

New Road Machinery Purchased By County

With several thousand dollars worth of new and overhauled machinery ready for use on the roads of Chilton county, the newly appointed road crews, which are to begin work Wednesday, March 1, should make some show.

A new Fifty grader has also just been received to replace a smaller grader that had been in use for some time. Both these machines are to be employed in the Fourth district, under the supervision of Commissioner C. D. Duke.

Several other machines have been overhauled for use in other districts. With the opening of Spring an extensive program of road building and repairing will be put into effect, it has been stated.

FIFTEEN ARRESTS REPORTED BY SHERIFF AND FORCES

They were: eight for violation of the prohibition laws; two on peace proceedings; one for obtaining money under false pretenses; one for receiving and concealing stolen property; one for assault and battery; two for using abusive and obscene language, and one for assault with intent to murder.

Mrs. J. Q. Wade returned Sunday from a visit in Tuscaloosa.

Woman Thinks Boy Is Burglar, Shoots

While spending the night at the home of Mrs. Willie Walker, in the Mt. Pisgah community six miles south of Clanton, as a protector in case of intruders, Ben Knight, a 14-year-old neighbor boy, was shot by the woman when she mistook him for a burglar early Monday morning. The load from a 12-guage shot gun took off a part of the boy's right hand

Mrs. Walker explained to officers who investigated the shooting that she had heard noises and had mistaken young Knight for a burglar. She was arrested and placed in jail in Clanton pending further investigation.

Sheriff Gillespie declared that he believed the woman is demented and in a dangerous state. Her husband is in jail here under indictment for beating her.

Their five small children were turned over to Miss Kitty Claire Austin, county child welfare worker.

A gala event is to take place in Clanton Saturday, adding to the pulling power for trade which is being brought about through hundreds and hundreds of bargains listed by merchants in Clanton for this week. This event is the opening of the Clanton Cash Store in its new and modern store on main street.

The Clanton Cash Store is one of the well-established grocery and meat markets in Clanton. The store they now occupy is adding greatly to appearance of Clanton; having recently been remodeled throughout.

The opening of the Clanton Cash Store, with Mr. O. D. DeLoach as manager is expected to draw a record crowd. Adding to the event will be several all-day demonstrations by well known producers of foods, such as Maxwell House coffee, Ten-E-C Biscuit Co., Wesson Oil people and well known meat houses. Is It the Railroads, or the Public?

Whose fault was it, asks the L & N Employes' Magazine for February, that during the year 1932 there were 231 collisions between L & N trains and vehicles at points where streets and highways cross L & N tracks? The publication goes on to answer its own question with the flat statement that the fault is with the drivers of the vehicles.

In substantiation of this statement it presents an analysis of the 1932 crossing accident records by the L & N Safety Department, in which it is shown that in 38 per cent of the accidents the vehicles ran into the sides of trains occupying crossings; and that in one-third of the remaining 62 per cent of the cases, in which vehicles were struck by trains, the vehicles were stalled on the tracks. Most of the latter cases, it is stated, happened at night in locations where the visibility of the enginemen was limited, and in practically none of them did the drivers of the vehicles make any intelligent attempts to warn the approaching trains of the dangerous obstructions on the tracks. Forty-one per cent of the total of 22 deaths resulting from accidents at L & N crossings in 1932, occurred in such cases.

Fifty-nine per cent of the accidents occurred in broad daylight, the analysis reveals, and 41 per cent at night. Ninety-three per cent of the total cases happened at public crossings, and 79 per cent of them at crossings protected in some way or another; 35 per cent happened at crossings protected by mechanical devices or watchmen.

How can the motoring public be kept from apparently committing, or attempting, suicide at railroad crossings? the L & N publication asks. And again it answers its own question by asserting that if the motoring public would exercise the same degree of care at railroad grade crossings as the railroads exercise toward protecting the public at these crossings, then such accidents will at least be greatly reduced. — L & N Employes' Magazine.

Checkerboard Families

In these days of "confused reading" on world problems and domestic troubles, it is refreshing to come across a new book, "Land of Checkerboard Families," by Arthur J. Burks, a former lieutenant in the marines. Mr. Burks is taking a very active interest in the American Fiction Guild, an organization of writers seeking to improve the American story and sweep from the news stands objectionable material.

In his "Land of Checkerboard Families," he introduces some most intriguing characters. Among others, Alfonso Bustamente, who could neither read nor write, but held the commissions of general and colonel at one and the same time, in opposing armies, drawing pay from both. He was a general of bandits by night and a colonel whose job was to chase bandits, by day.

Burks, in his account of fever, jungles, witchcraft, humor and fighting in Santa Domingo, points out that in his two and one-half years of service there with the marines, he was called upon at various times to make an official map of the islands, keep a presidential candidate from being assassinated, treat natives for itch, leprosy and stomach ache, act as an obstetrician, jump in parachutes, locate missing relatives and investigate gun running. His most exciting adventures were in getting evidence against contrabandists.

Earnest Young People

In spite of all the loose talk and writing about the wild youth of the present day, recent statistics from the Bureau of Education indicate that the percentage of earnest young people is still very high.

These statistics show that one-half of the young men and one fourth of the young women in the colleges and universities of the United States are earning their schooling in whole or in part through working outside of school hours. In one year more than $33,000,000 was earned by the labor of students.

Among the part time jobs held by students are office work, automobile repairing, specialty selling, teaching, hotel and summer resort employment, household service, farm work and other activities.

In the face of such a showing as is being made, it can hardly be maintained that the young generation is as frivolous as its critics would have us believe.

Give Prosperity A Chance

A recent syndicated newspaper article pointed out that present and future Congresses must expect to face an army of irate taxpayers. These "rebellious Americans" believe that the increasing cost of government is the greatest menace now facing the country and that drastic retrenchment is vital to the work of recovery.

They are right. We are coming to the point where we cannot afford to own property—where homes and farms and buildings are liabilities, not assets. Thousands of men are out of work because the weight of taxation was too much for firms they once worked for, to bear. Thousands of farms have gone under the sheriff's hammer for taxes. Thousands of home owners live in constant fear of the next tax statement.

Bring taxes down—and give prosperity a chance to come back.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Well, Mr. Roosevelt will become the President of the Great United States next Saturday when he is sworn into office as such. Boy, that is a great day for the "forgotten man" which of course includes me and you and others. I've just got all the confidence in the world in that man, and wotta man. There will be no more so-called "Hoover Prosperity." In the future it will be known as "Roosevelt Recovery." But you got to give the man time to get things straightened out all right, all right, before you start criticising him. By that I mean that some folks think business will get better just as soon as Roosevelt goes into office. It'll take time.

Dag nabbit and a couple of confoundits. Did you ever see so many real bargains in advertisements before in your life? Naw sir, neither have I. You've been reading what the ed has had to say in the editorials about spending your money away from home and not trading with the home merchant like you should. And you've been reading what he had to say about goods could be bought in Clanton just as cheap as elsewhere and at as low prices as any mail order house could give you. Well, he is proving that he knows what he is talking about, in this issue of the News. So help me.

I'll have to hand it to the Ed and his bunch of boys round at the News office. They are going after this thing in the right way, in my opinion. Just take a look through the pages in this paper this week, don't miss an advertisement, because all these ads were prepared just to show you folks that you can buy goods at home just as cheap as anywhere else. Some of the merchants even tell you in the ads to bring your mail order catalogs to their stores and they will meet the prices, considering quality, of course.

Now I could fill up this column this week with stuff telling you about why it will pay you to stop sending your money to the mail order houses, and start spending all of it you can right at home with home folks. When you buy something at home, you are given the chance of inspecting the article before you buy it. You know the man you bought it from and know that he is your friend. You know that the home merchant is interested in your town, and your county, because this is where he lives. The money you spend in Clanton or in Chilton county is reinvested in your county.

Now this flare-up of mine ain't altogether directed to the people who live in the rural districts of the county. It is directed just as much to the people living right in Clanton or any other town in the county. You folks who think you can't wear the clothes that are sold by your home merchant, better stop this foolishness of going to the cities and spending your money. Don't any of those fellows in the cities care much about what happens to your town and county. Don't any of them help keep up your churches, schools, and are her eif you need them for an emergency.

Of course I know it looks nice and big or something, to motor to the city and go shopping. But let me tell you something. If you live in Chilton county, you certainly should better start giving Chilton county some thought, and quit this looking over the fence at something you think is a little better. Of course you might say that you couldn't find what you wanted at your home merchants. Well, why not ask him how long it will take him to get it here for you. That would be better than the expense of going to the city yourself. Why, I buy all my needs right here in Clanton. Everything from a pair of socks to a good suit of clothes. I don't find it necessary to go to the city to buy my clothes. I ain't got that high-faluting yet, like some folks. Lets stick to our home-town merchants, the men who stick to us when we get in a little tight. Let's boost Chilton county, buy in Chilton county, and get other folks to buy here.

Before I stop woofing about this trade more at home business, I just want to urge you readers to look through this issue of the News and read the ads. There's money to be saved in Clanton this week. Come to Clanton this week and do your shopping. Take advantage of these really low prices because some of them are placed low for this week only.

Too bad. The woman shot the boy because she thought he was a burglar. When the boy was spending the night with the woman to protect her from burglars. Ain't that something—or ain't it.

And our friend Harris Hardy will soon become a groom and take Miss Mary Foshee, another of our friends, to become Mrs. Harris Hardy. I'll bet that is the first time she ever saw that name as hers and in print. Congratulations to them both.

Phew! Did you ever see so much wrangling or something going on in our county offices before? Neither have I. Goodness knows where it will stop.

Take the airplane for instance. I've never seen one yet that soared so high, but that it had to land sometime. If I was some politicians, I'd be hunting me a nice soft place to land somewhere, or something.

* * *

Now they plan to start an investigation into whether some of our county office holders are supposed to hold office or not, so I understand. Now who in the dickens started that. And that is what a lot of fellows would like to know. Don't anybody seem to know who the daddy of the movement is, at least they won't tell, but we got an idea haven't we?

Honey bees certainly won't find anything worthwhile up at the commissioners court room thees days, so they say.

Just a little more about this trading business and I'll declare I'm through for this time. This is to the merchants as a little hint or something. I heard a person say the other day that the merchants are failing to carry sizes in articles an dthat it is a little difficult to secure wanted sizes in things. Might better give that some thought as you go along after business.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

According to the Washington Post we have this rating in modern dishonesty: "If a ham or hen is stolen that means war on society. If a thief pilfers a home and carries away $25.00 that is total depravity. If a thief gets away with $5.00 that is stealing. If a rascal cheats you out of $100.00 that is dishonesty. If you trust a man and he takes $500.00 of your money that is embezzlement. If $1,000.00 has disappeared that is corruption. If $5,000.00 is not accounted for that is defalcation. When $10,000.00 disappears that is a slight irregularity. When $25,000.00 that is insolvency. When the loss is $50,000.00 that is litigation. If there is a deficit of $100,000.00 that is just a shortage. When $1,000,000.00 is taken that is genius and the taker goes away to Paris or Greece to live as one of the outstanding Americans." It does seem that the more a man steals in this country the less he is punished and the more he is lauded.

A prominent citizen related this out of his own experience. Said he, "I sent a check to pay for a Montgomery paper, the amount being $2.17. I had a few dollars deposited in a bank. The bank charged me fifty cents per month to keep my money, and only allowed me five checks each month. The bank charged me ten cents on each check, then it charged me three cents to cash that check on its return. The government charged me two cents for issuing it, and then three cents for carrying it to Montgomery. On a check of $2.17 I had to pay eighteen cents to get it through the charges and back to me." Can you wonder that people are becoming desperate on the question of "Over Head" expenses.

When bills are made, bills must be paid. It looks rather strange to us when a state has money to spend in a lavish way for entertainment, and then has nothing to pay to its teachers who are educating its future citizens. We honor and respect the President-Elect of the United States. It was a distinct honor to have him to visit our state, but who is going to pay the bills of so many bands and potentates who gathered there to pay him honor? We feel that our moral standard is trampled into the dust when public funds are lavishly spent for entertainment in these times of dire need. Let the echo answer, "Who paid the bill."

Mr. Franklin is responsible for this story. He said that a young angel of prominence was sent down to view the races of men, and that he was given an old courier spirit to be his guide. They arrived on the sea where Redney and De Grasse were fighting out their naval battle. The young angel saw the firing of guns, the smoke of battle, the decks covered over with mangled limbs and dying men. He saw the burning ships and ships that were blown into the air. He saw men dealing out death and pain to each other, and in a rage he turned to his guide and said, "You blundering blockhead, you are ignorant of your business; you undertook to conduct me to the earth, and you have brought me into hell." "No, Sir," replied the guide, "I have brought you to the earth and these are men. Devils never treat one another in this manner. They have more sense and more of what men vainly call humanity, to deal with each other in this cruel way." Sherman was right when he said, "War is hell." And yet we are spending billions to prepare ourselves for another fight.

It was just after Christmas and a lad of four was buckling on his skates. By his side lay a golf stick, while the paved street before him was crowded with boys and girls rolling on skates and knocking tin cans for golf balls. The lad was talking of how he was going to knock his can. He had never been on skates before, but he was confident that he would make some star drives. All was ready and the lad arose, expecting to roll away, but he tumbled to the pavement instead. He arose the second time with a like result. A third effort was made, but the pavement was hit with a heavier thud. This time there was a yell, and his father came to him saying, "Why son, you have got to learn how to skate before you will be able to roll after cans on the street." The boy wanted to rush out on skates before he had learned to skate. That is the way of many of our young men today—they want to rush into life before they are trained to meet the testing periods of life. First learn how and then try your hand at skating. Skating looks easy to one who knows how.

Not long since I was in the reception room talking to the lady of the house. Her three year old lad was capering about the room and over and under the furniture. The mother caught him and shook him, giving him instructions to sit down. The lad flung a fit and fell in the floor, yelling like an Indian. I have seen just such fits as that flung in the church because someone interfered with the capering of some man. May the good Lord deliver us from people who fling fits because they can not have their own way.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings that affect the dinner pails, dividend checks and tax bills of every individual. National and International problems inseparable from Local welfare.

Under present business conditions, no news is apt to be good news. While business is showing no particular improvement, the decline has apparently been interrupted and a measure of stability reached. It is hoped that political moves during the next few months will have a helpful effect on business in the future.

Last summer the country underwent a time of financial liquidation with strengthening of our financial structure. This was followed by a similar period of commodity liquidation, which seems now coming to an end. The next step will doubtless be further commercial liquidation and readjustment to put many of our industries on a basis to show earnings in normal times.

Since 1929 there has been a decline in foreign markets for American agricultural products but last year the decline showed a tendency to slacken. It is believed that once the problems of disturbed monetary systems and trade barriers are partially settled, the trend will be reversed and larger quantities of farm products will reach foreign lands.

Domestic demand for products is naturally awaiting industrial recovery. Even a slight change for the better in business generally, should cause marked improvement in farm markets.

Potential bank credit is the equivalent of the money existing in the country. At the moment, this credit supply is unusually large. Member banks of the Federal Reserve have $600,000,000 of excess reserves, and it is stated that these banks could expand their credits by $9,000,000,000 without borrowing from the Federal Treasury. Interest rates on money are at unprecedented low levels.

Latest reports on major industries show:

Motion Picture: A new alignment of the motion picture industry is forecast, with Rockefeller interests a large factor. The industry's principal difficulty is in real estate carrying charges on theatres built during boom years.

Textiles: Future has hopeful appearance, with cloth demand steady.

Oil: Refiners breaking even, despite low gasoline prices.

Cigarettes: December showed gain in consumption, as compared with decline in most other months of 1932.

Tires: Price-cutting has broken out again, with resulting disturbance.

Meat Packing: Outlook good for moderate profit during coming fiscal year.

Automobile: Sales continue to improve, with January well over a year ago. It is interesting to note that price reductions have resulted from improved efficiency, and not by reductions in dealer margins or in quality.

In an effort to check rapidly diminishing passenger revenues, the railroads of the country are planning various classes of rate reductions designed to bring back lost business. February 1, western roads made marked passenger fare cut. The seasonal decline in freight car loadings is showing a tendency to moderate, as compared with the same period a year ago.

With an established $1,500,000,000 at stake in the form of mortgaged debt in nine states, midwest farmers are sticking resolutely to their campaign against foreclosure sales. In a growing number of instances, groups of farmers have prevented open auctions of properties and bought them in at extremely low prices. Various public officials are tending to aid in preventing foreclosures.

The exodus from the city to the farm—in direct opposition to the trend of a few years ago—has swelled the farm population to 32,000,000, close to the 1910 peak. Some farm communities object, as new school facilities and relief funds thus become necessary. However, a compensating factor is that a wider market for farms is provided.

A decidedly better feeling is noticeable in Australia, with government and private finances improved. Chinese industries are active, and a better year is forecast. Wholesale prices rising in Japan. Improvement in several industries is noticed in France, with the crop situation promising. Favorable factors in Norway are improved shipping, better crop returns and firmer prices.

Coleman and Lapsey were best for Uniontown. Selma had won its semi-final test from Clanton in the other championship game Saturday, 49-14.

Jemison, suffering its only defeat at the hands of Plantersville earlier in this round robin tourney, reeled off five straight victories Saturday to win the consolation flight. whipping Uniontown in the night finals, 27-16. A Cobb and T. Cobb, cousins, led Jemison to its sixth victory of this meet. Coleman and Funderburk stood out for the losers.

Oak Grove News

We had a wonderful Sunday school last Sunday and a large attendance. Mr. Will Northcutt, assistant superintendent, made the lesson inspiring. You who are not enlisted, come join us.

There will be preaching services next Saturday evening at seven o'clock, and Sunday morning at eleven o'clock by the pastor.

We are very proud of our prayer meeting. The crowd wasn't very large last Wednesday evening, but the Holy Spirit predominated. We ask everyone to come join us and come praying. Mr. Eddie Little will conduct the services next Wednesday at seven o'clock.

W. M. S. meets on the second and fourth Saturday afternoon of each month at two o'clock. The second Saturday, March the eleventh, we will have with us Mrs. Jones, superintendent of W. M. U. of county, and Mrs. Margie Atkinson, group leader. We urge everybody who has not yet enlisted to come out and join us to help accomplish our great watchword for the year "Launch Out Into the Deep and Let Down Your Nets." Luke 5:4. We realize there is a wide field to be harvested and the laborers are few. In our community there are so many boys and girls who need and really want the training of our missionary organizations.

Our B. Y. P. U. is booming. We had a great crowd Sunday evening and an incredible program. We notice in the audience each Sunday evening young ladies and young men whom the Lord has given wonderful talents. We know if you would yield to the voice that is speaking to you, you would utilize these talents and join us and help to hasten God's Kingdom work. We assure you from our hearts theer is a great welcome awaiting you. We appreciated so much the music rendered by the Mars Hill Quartet Sunday evening. It was an uplift to our program.

Under the leadership of Miss Roberta Satterwhite the Junior B. Y. P. U. is doing a great work. Their program Sunday evening was wonderful. The quartets that were given in behalf of the Junior program were thoroughly enjoyed.

Several of our singers attended the singing Sunday afternoon at Center Hill, which was enjoyed.

Don't forget the singing at our church Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

Miss Pauline Lessley entertained at her home a group of her friends on last Saturday evening.

Miss Lillian Martin, who has been visiting friends here, returned to her home in Wylam Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hison Cobb of Ensley are visiting relatives here.

Miss Rosalie Martin entertained at the school house Saturday afternoon in honor of the pupils of the school. Games and contests were enjoyed by all. Mrs. W. J. Northcutt and Mrs. Moody assisted Miss Martin in serving delicious refreshments.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lassie Northcutt is very sick.

The date of our B. Y. P. U. training school has not yet been stated. But we are planning on a great training school in behalf of our church. We ask earnest prayers in behalf of our Training School.

The farm mortgage debt is concentrated largely in the 12 North Central States, which in 1930 carried 59.5 per cent of the total. Regional distribution of the remaining 40.5 per cent is: North Atlantic, 6.8 per cent; South Atlantic 5.5: South Central 13.7: and Western 14.5

City-issued scrip money, development of man's age-old custom of bartering goods for services, has come into extensive use in many Southern cities, having in some instances attained a greater turnover than cash. For example, Knoxville, Tenn., has been issuing $134,000 worth of scrip monthly to meet payrolls and additional amounts for city supplies. The paper bears 6 per cent interest.

March 4-H Club Suggestions

Relation of Forests to Fish and Game On The Farm

All animals must have food and protection to be able to live. Without food they would perish at once and without protection from their natural enemies and man, in the case of those hunted by him, they cannot survive in large enough numbers to be worth anything. This has proven true in the case of such fine game animals as the deer and wild turkey which were once so abundant in Alabama and of which only a few exist now, with practically all of those only where special protection is given in game preserves and on private property.

The carrier pigeon once so abundant here is entirely gone because no protection was given it. The quail, squirrel and other rather tame birds and animals have been seriously thinned out as a result of man destroying their natural home and not giving them the proper chance to survive. Fish are not nearly so abundant as they once were because the streams have filled up and the water constantly filled with eroded material harmful to them.

The natural home of practically all of our animals and bird life is the woods. Larger animals like the deer eat young trees themselves while nearly all other animals eat bark, roots, nuts, berries, leaves and depend on the woods to afford hiding places to protect them from their enemies. Most birds are to be found in or near the woods. Quail, which is a bird living on the ground and thought to stay mostly in fields, will be found largely in the woods now where they get better protection. Nearly all this wild life as deer, turkey, 'possum, coon, squirrel, rabbit and even quail and others depend on the woods for this food and protection and the only answer to preserve their kind and having them multiply into sufficient numbers to be very useful to man is to prevent the needless destruction of woods and give them a natural woodland home. Fish are dependent upon streams and lakes. Poor woodlands mean lots of soil washed into these streams and lakes to muddy and fill them up. Experiments have shown water running off 40 times as fast from abandoned land as from natural woods, and carrying with it 300 times as much eroded material. Where woods are burned the ashes go into this water and millions of small fish are killed by this material in the water. This rapid runoff after rains means floods when rains come and drought when water is needed. Trees prevent this by causing a slow, steady runoff of clear water.

Our woodlands and game go together. Game cannot survive unless the woods are cared for. Fires burn their food and protective cover, kill their young and destroy nests. Be a conservationist. Protect the woods and use them sensibly and game will make it home.

LYLE BROWN,
Extension Forester.

Scouts Enjoy Hike

By Scout Reporter

Troop 47 went on a hike Friday night February 24th. About 4:30 we left town for Popwell Woods in which it took us 40 minutes to walk it. After we arrived we all built fires to cook supper and after we had finished we chose side for a game of "Capture the Flag" in which John Ezell's side won. After we had all said the Scout Oath we began our march home. I think six of us walked all the way, the rest rode on the Scout Master's car. On Friday night, March 3, we have another Scout meeting, and we want all boys over 11½ years of age to join us.

Dealers In Clanton Have Full Stocks Of All Kinds Of Building Materials

It is found that so often persons in the rural sections of the county are prone to order building materials, wire fencing, roofing and light hardware from mail order houses. This practice is unnecessary because all this can be found right in your home county.

In Clanton there are two dealers in hardware of all kinds, farming implements and building materials. These dealers are the Farmers Hardware Company and the Clanton Building Supply Company.

Both these stores are large and carry a complete stock of these items. The managers of these stores take pride in telling the people of this section that their prices are as low if not lower than the prices quoted by mail order houses, when quality and quantity of goods are considered by the buyer.

Not only do these stores offer the people extremely low prices on these items, but they stand ready to deliver goods to your home, provided you live within a reasonable distance from their store. Not only that, but, these stores stand behind the goods they sell. They are here to make adjustments at all times. They are here to give you prompt service at all times. Gardens Planned For Unemployed

Montgomery, Ala.—Fifty to one hundred thousand home gardens for the unemployed and destitute are to be planted as the results of efforts made by the Alabama Relief Administration in cooperation with Julian Brown, extension horticulturist of Auburn, stated Thad Holt, director of the relief administration. A special committee on subsistence gardens has been set up with Charles F. DeBardeleben of Birmingham, chairman; Lawrence M. Weil of Montgomery, vice-chairman; and Mr. Brown.

Under the direction of Mr. Brown a special assortment of seed has been prepared by a leading Alabama seed house for distribution through county relief organizations to unemployed citizens in return for extra work.

This assortment includes: 2 pints of Bush Snap Beans; 2 pints Pole Snap Beans (Kentucky Wonder); 1 pint Pole Lima Beans (Sieva); 1 ounce turnips (Purple Top Globe); 1 ounce Beets (Crosby Egyptian); 1-8 ounce Tomatoes (Marglobe); 1 ounce Mustard (Giant Curled); ½ ounce Okra (White velvet); 1 ounce collards (Georgia); 1 ounce Squash (White Bush).

The seed will be paid for by the local relief organization out of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds and all counties who have received these funds will participate in the distribution.

Mr. Brown has prepared planting instructions for the different sections in Alabama and a copy of these instructions will accompany each package of seed.

County Red Cross chapters and county and home demonstration agents are cooperating. Mr. Holt stated that the relief administration will insist on those receiving help from Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds having a home garden.

IN MEMORY OF MISS BERTEEN DeLOACH

Our hearts were saddened and broken indeed when we received the message that our dear baby sister, Berteen, had passed to her reward on February 10, 1933. News of her death came as a great shock to her friends and relatives

Berteen was a brave sufferer and had been since early childhood. She bore her afflictions and suffering with patience bravely to the end of her short life of nineteen years.

Until the extraordinary and untimely passing away of her dear father and mother almost three years ago, Berteen knew no lack of parental care, love and affection. They were ever devoted to the interest of her health and no effort was spared that any of us could put forth for her comfort and well being.

The double grief in giving up both father and mother at the same time was such a shock to her nervous system that her already delicate health was almost totally impaired. Only a few months then were we privileged to have her in our homes until it was necessary for her to be placed in the Bryce Hospital, Tuscaloosa, Ala.,—that wonderful memorial institution for suffering humanity She remained in this institution, under the care of the skilled physicians and nurses until God wafted her sweet spirit away to be with Him in that Great Celestial City beyond where all is peace and rest. We did what we could to alleviate her pain, but now we must meet her where there is no sickness, pain, sorrow or weeping. She is now with father and mother, and the greatest of all physicians, God.

Berteen had learned to love and appreciate the beauty of nature, so that it seemed when her death came the birds must needs cease their caroling, the pretty flowers droop their gentle heads and the beautiful sun shine less brightly at the passing of one so dear.

We cannot fathom the mysteries of life, and know that our great loss is heaven's eternal gain.

She lies sleeping in beautiful Bethany cemetery beside our mother and father where she was gently laid to rest on Sunday afternoon, February 12, 1933. She leaves to mourn her loss four brothers, two sisters, besides their families and a host of relatives and friends.

Over yonder in the graveyard,
Where the flowers gently wave
Lies one we loved so dearly
In her cold and silent grave.
As her loved one, broken-hearted,
Stood aside to weep,
Safely in the arms of Jesus
She gently fell asleep.
Earth has lost its look of gladness,
Heaven seems to us more bright
Since the spirit of our darling
Took its homeward flight.
Those eyes so dear to us
Are closed to us below,
But in heaven the wonderful things they see
No mortal here can ever know.
Now her voice is hushed forever
She will speak to us no more—
But she'll be waiting up in heaven
To greet us at the door
Where the daisies nod their pretty heads
As the breezes gently blow,
Where the roses bloom forever
And the morning glories grow,
God needed one more precious flower
To grace His garden fair,
He plucked it from earth below
And gently placed it there.
He needed one more dear angel
To join the happy band,
So He bent with a loving smile
And clasped her darling hand.
Some day we will meet her
In that sinless, summer land,
Where we will be with her forever
When we join the happy band
There in sweet eternal union
In mansions bright on high
Where we will be free from pain and parting
And we'll never say good-bye.
The paths we tread are sometimes rough
And flowerless is the sod
But God doeth His will, we must be still—
And know that He is God.

—Written by Mr. and Mrs. Otis DeLoach.

Warning

Don't be misled by false statements. Calomel, salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills and drugs have no effect whatever on the liver or its production of bile. The truth of this statement can be proved by consulting the authoritative medical textbooks published during the past five years.

There are only two known substances which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft [illegible] Pills contain both of these substances, and no other advertised medicine on the American market [illegible]

LOCAL THEATRE IS BRINGING OUTSTANDING PICTURES HERE

An appeal to the people of Clanton and surroundings is sent out by the Wadesonian Theatre of Clanton, to watch the program of their showings each week in the papers. The Wadesonian Theatre is making all effort possible to bring to the people of this section the most up-to-date all-talking motion pictures.

As an illustration that your local theatre is on the job and giving its patrons the opportunity to see the newest pictures, it is pointed out that several times recently, there have been big pictures shown in Clanton at the Wadesonian Theatre, several days before they are shown in the larger towns.

On the program of pictures coming to Clanton next week are two that have attracted wide attention over the country. These are "Emma" and "The Past of Mary Holmes." The latter picture has just been released and has not been shown in the larger cities.

The people of Clanton and surroundings will be aiding themselves and their local theatre by patronizing it. An advertisement from the Wadesonian Theatre in this issue of the News asks the question, "Why Go To The Cities To See Good Pictures?" Each week there appears in the News, the program for the following week, of the Wadesonian Theatre. Watch for it.

One of the most delightful and outstanding social events in Clanton last week was the pretty miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Bama Cox at the charming home of Mrs. J. B. Atkinson, honoring Miss Mary Foshee, who was married Tuesday night to Mr. Harris Hardy.

For this occasion, the home was beautifully decorated with vari-colored cut flowers and pretty ferns. The dining room was effectively arranged with baskets of pink snapdragons and ferns placed appropriately. The dining table was covered with a beautiful Italian cut-work cloth, centered with a silvery basket of pink radiance roses and snapdragons.

In the drawing room, which was also attractively decorated, tables were laden with beautiful and useful gifts for the honoree from her coutless friends. A large table, occupying a place of prominence, had as a centerpiece, a miniature bride and groom and minister, standing before a miniature improvised altar of ferns, on which were five tiny candles. The gift room was presided over by Mrs. S. J. Ezell.

The bride's book which was appropriately and conveniently arranged was presided over by Miss Mary Lee Pyron. An impressive musical program was arranged with Mrs. L. C. Ross rendering several vocal numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Barney Roberts at the piano. Little Miss Joan Atkinson dressed as a bride, charmed the guests in singing "I Love You Truly."

A STATEMENT FROM THE HILL GROCERY COMPANY

"Hill" offers you the advantages of quantity buying, as a glance at their ad in this paper will show. They are Home Owned and operated by home folks, insofar as it is possible to be. We cannot live within ourselves and still have everything that people are accustomed to having. We all have to send money away for things that are not raised in our county and our state, just as people from other states have to send their money here for things they do not have and cannot produce. Hill buys over one million dollars worth of farm produce every year from Alabama farmers. Is that a help?

Central Alabama Hospital Is An Asset To Chilton County

Tornadoes Of Last March Bring Out Importance Of Hospital To This Section; Local Institution Eleven Years Old

In connection with the program being sponsored in this issue of the Chilton County News in behalf of Chilton County and Chilton County institutions, one is reminded of a noble institution that is rendering a real service to Chilton and surrounding communities—the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton.

It is almost a year now since this institution was reopened, after having been closed one day because of lack of funds and inability to collect for services rendered, by one of those peculiar twists of Fate.

The winds that swept the northern sections of the county on the night of March 21st forced the issue. Sixty-seven injured and homeless sufferers were treated and more than forty remained for several days in this hospital. This was all without one penny from any individual or organization for the physicians or the hospital.

For more than a decade the major portion of the services of this hospital and its physicians has been in the name of Charity. It has never been a money making instituton. Conceived with the purpose and aim of promoting a better civilization in Chilton County by promoting better health, it has been ever its objective to work toward this goal.

Besides the many minor operations, emergency cases, automobile accidents and the like, there have been scores of hyterectonies and more than one thousand operations for appendicitis with perhaps an unparalleled record of recoveries. One of the outstanding accomplishments of the institution is a one hundred per cent recovery in Cesarian section for both the mother and child.

This hospital with its outstanding record of service is the dream of Dr. V. J. Gragg, who was responsible for its conception, and who still remains at the helm to guide its activities. Back in 1920 or '21 Dr. Gragg dreamed of such an institution where medical and surgical relief could be meted to a territory within a fifty-mile radius of Clanton which did not have the services of a hospital within its confines.

On March 15, 1922, came the realization of the dream, with the opening of the Central Alabama Hospital at its present site. Dr. Gragg and G. E. Plier, architect, visited and studied all the hospital buildings in Birmingham, Montgomery, Selma, and New Orleans, with the result that many of the more advanced features of all were incorporated into one.

Another feature of the organization is the school of nursing. Records reveal that all nurses who have graduated here have passed the state board examinations with high averages.

Dr. Gragg began the study of medicine at Louisville, Ky., and later graduated from Tulane University, in New Orleans, in 1908, and has been active in the field of medicine and surgery since that time. He has also served as city councilman and mayor of Clanton.

Through the annals of the past—and in the years of the future its services have been and will be indispensable to Clanton—to Chilton county and surrounding territory.

The cotton acreage in Egypt in 1932 decreased 35 per cent as compared with 1931 a considerable part of which was no doubt due to the law restricting acreage. Since the restrictions have virtually been removed so far as the 1933-34 acreage is concerned some increase may be expected.

Business has been rather dull for Daniel Cupid in Chilton county during February in spite of the Valentine season, judging from the drop in the number of marriage licenses issued by the Probate office during the month.

Only nine applications for licenses were recorded at the office. The monthly average is about twenty-five, it was stated. Licenses were issued to the following:

SEED STORES CARRY LARGE FAMOUS LINES

Say They Can Meet Prices Of Mail Order Houses On All Varieties

The stores in Chilton county carrying a line of garden and field seeds are awakening to the great amount of business going out of the county to mail order houses for these items, judging from comments from the dealers in Clanton.

In commenting on this condition one of Clanton's well known seed dealers stated that he stands ready to meet prices of mail order houses, with his line of nationally known seeds. Not only that, but he also stated that the line of seeds carried by him are highly tested and have been proved to be of the best over a long period of time.

It is not necessary to order seeds of any kind from mail order houses when you can come to Clanton and see the seeds you buy before you buy them. Not only that, but the local seed dealers are ready to offer any advice as to the planting of any particular kind of seeds or plants. Ask him for this information.

AUTO TIRES ARE SOLD AT LOWER PRICES

Local Tire Dealers Offer Economical Prices With A Guarantee

A good picture of an automobile tire or tube, and a statement that it is guaranteed, looks good in most any catalog from a mail order house. But, when you can go to the dealer in your home town, see the tire, get the guarantee straight from his own mouth, get your tire put on and serviced, at the same low price,—there is a defference.

This is exactly what you can do in Chilton county at service stations, garages and other tire dealers. In this issue of the News will be found ads from tire dealers, giving prices, sizes and descriptions and life-time guarantees on the tires.

Bring your car to either of these dealers and they will put the tire on for you, guarantee it, give you a low price and stand ready to make the tire good if it goes bad. Isn't that much better than trading with some mail order house a great distance away who cares little or nothing about you or your town or county?

When you need an automobile tire or tube, go to your home dealer and get his prices, see the tire, before you buy. Nine times out of ten you will find that you can't beat his prices and service. Stick to your home merchants. They stick to you.

How To Prepare Orchard Sprays

Auburn, Ala.—Directions for preparing important spray solutions for orchards are given by Julian Brown, extension horticulturist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"In preparing self boiled lime sulphur use 8 lbs. of sulphur and 8 lbs. of rock lime," he said. "Sift the sulphur and wet with enough water to make it pour. Start the lime to slaking and add sulphur gradually, stirring vigorously as the sulphur is added. Stirring should continue until the slaking ceases. Add water during the process to avoid burning. When slaking ceases, or at the end of five minutes, add enough cold water to bring the total up to 50 gallons. The solution is then ready for use. The presence of dark red streaks denotes too much boiling and this should be checked immediately by adding more cold water."

He gave directions for making hydrated lime-sulphur as follows: "Use 10 2-3 lbs. hydrated lime, 8 lbs. sulphur. Mix the lime and sulphur and pass through a sieve. Add 8 gallons of boiling water. Stir slowly for five minutes and add enough water to cool it. Strain the mixture into spray tank and add enough water to bring total to 50 gallons."

To make bordeaux mixture, he said: "If 50 gallons are to be made, take 4 lbs. of bluestone in a sack and suspend in a barrel containing 25 gallons of water. This will dissolve in about 2 hours. Take 4 lbs. of rock lime, slake gradually and then add 25 gallons of water. With two buckets strain the lime and bluestone solutions into the spray tank at the same time. If rock lime is not available, substitute 6 lbs. of slaked lime. A smaller quantity may be prepared by reducing these amounts in proportion."

Mr. Brown emphasizes the importance of spraying, saying that those growers who fail to spray may expect poor quality fruit. County agents can give a spraying schedule that will result in the production of fruits relatively free from worms and rot, he said

MR. ROOSEVELT'S PLAN TO AID UNEMPLOYMENT

President-elect Roosevelt, although three days remain before he assumes office, has by a simple decision and an equally simple announcement made a contribution to business and economic recovery which has thrilled the country.

His plan for the development of the Tennessee River watershed has in it the true ring of grasp, leadership and clearly defined program.

His purpose is to combine the great and related developments of water-power, flood-control, reforestation, agriculture and industry in one vast undertaking.

It is confidently believed the plan will prove self-sustaining and will put 200,000 men to work in the Tennessee River watershed alone.

The basin on the Tennessee River has an area of 640,000 square miles. It includes parts of Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Kentucky.

The benefit from flood-control will extend to parts of Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The plan will further mean the development of a great output of electric energy for power and lighting, which will be supplied to consumers at a record low figure.

It will reclaim vast and now wasted areas to profitable use.

It will stimulate industry throughout an extensive territory, invite a growing population, promote navigation and cheap transportation and convert a region, embracing many states in the heart of the country, into a rich source of material and social strength for the entire nation.

"The development," says Mr. Roosevelt, "will be the forerunner of similar projects in other parts of the country, such as in the watersheds of the Ohio, Missouri and Arkansas Rivers and in the Columbia River in the Northwest."

Here speaks a man who thinks in terms commensurate with the nation's problems and on a scale in keeping with its great potentialities.

As outlined by Mr. Roosevelt, the Tennessee River project will include:

The reforestation of the hillsides of the watershed, which alone would employ from 50,000 to 75,000 men.

The creation of flood control basins in the upper valleys of the Tennessee River watershed.

Water-power development, beginning with full utilization of the plant at Muscle Shoals, to provide cheaper power for residents of cities, states and farms.

Reclamation of the fertile bottomlands of the river, in which farming is now prevented by frequent floods.

Elimination of unprofitable agricultural lands by reforestation; improvement of navigation and stimulation of decentralized industry in the region of supply of cheap power.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement has been received throughout the country with justified enthusiasm.

Its psychological effect—and perhaps this is not one of its lesser merits—has been instantaneous. It sounds a note that is constructive and confident amid an all-encompassing discouragement and may prove the turning point in the long battle against industrial depression and unemployment.

It expresses the economic judgment of the people long set at naught by the organized opposition of selfish and exploiting interests.

His proposals are sound Doctrine. They are in line with his party's pledges and his own promises and oft-stated convictions.

Let us hope his administration will conserve the popularity and influence which it is sure to win by sound domestic policies such as are reflected in this plan, and not dissipate in futile foreign adventures the useful power thus won to serve the American people.

In the Tennessee development project, Mr. Roosevelt has done a fine thing, and the people of the United States acclaim it.

Cooperating In Worthy Movement Local Food Dealers List Wide Variety Of Articles At Exceedingly Low Prices

Ever cognizant of the welfare of Chilton County and Chilton County citizens the News for the past several issues has devoted considerable space to the promotion of a "Trade at Home" movement. It has been estimated that thousands of dollars leave Chilton County annually and are spent in other trade centers, when equally as good merchandise is obtainable in the county and for just as reasonable prices.

Your county dealer has your interest at heart, for your interest is his interest, and when you prosper—he prospers. Whenever you unnecessarily send a dollar out of your town or county, you are lending just that much support to its pauperization—and indirectly injuring yourself.

That this matter of trading away from home is unnecessary is clearly shown by some of the attractive grocery bargains that may be had in Clanton, and listed in advertisements on this page and in this issue. Compare these articles, look at the goods, notice how clean and fresh they are—you'll find many items that are produced right here in Chilton County—consider the service your home dealer renders to you and your community, and be convinced that it not only pays, but is pleasanter all around to "Trade at Home."

During one of the recitations of the World History Class one day last week the Civil War was made vivid by the reading of a letter written by a Confederate soldier during the war. By permission of Mr. Little, who has the letter, it is published below:

Camp near Morristown, Jan. 20, 1864.

To Caroline Kelley:

Dear sister it is through the mercy of God that I am permitted to write you a few lines which will inform you that I am wel lat present, hoping these few lines may find you and your little children well.

Dear sister, I have the painful task o finforming you that Marion is dead. He was killed on Saturday the 16th inst., in a skirmish with the enemy about 8 miles below here. He was shot thru the bowels. He only lived about 25 or 30 minutes. The only words he spoke were, "Go ahead, boys, give it to them." The doctor came up, and had him taken off. He told them to lay him down and let him die. These were the only words he spoke that I have heard of. Caroline, we buried him decently as we could. He was buried at a church in a grave, and we made him a rough box It was the very best we could do.

We left here on the 15th inst., and went down near Dandridge, a little town on French Broad River, and camped for the night. I was from there sent out on picket with 30 men from our regiment. We were attacked about 12 o'clock by the Yankees, and we fought one of the hardest fights I have ever been in almost.

I was not with the regiment when Marion was killed. While I was fighting with the pickets, our brigade moved around on our rght to keep the Yankees from cutting us off while marching along. They ran into a squad of Yankees which fired into them, and one ball struck Marion. He was the only man that was hit in our regiment.

Caroline, we taken care of Marion's money and papers The doctor taken care of them and gave them to me. I have 71 dollars of his money and some notes. I will collect them and send you the money as soon as I can. Caroline, I can't describe to you my feelings when I found Marion lying cold, and I feel so lonesome. He has been with me ever since he came back. Dolphus stayed with him when he was shot, a few minutes, and then weut to let James know that Marion was hit, and did not get a chance to go until he was dead. I suppose he went off without a pain. Caroline, weep not after him for I trust that he is a great deal better off than we are. He is done with this troublesome world. I must close by subscribing myself your brother until death

Strike A Body Blow At The Depression

Investment and Employment Cheaper and Better Than Charity

From where does your bread and butter come? From your own work.

From where does your work come? From the need for your services by some other individual or company.

We have all been complaining about business being bad because our labor or products are not in sufficient demand. The chances are that those of us who complain loudest, have done the most to create unemployment.

There are millions of Americans who have money to spend—and they aren't spending it. They are waiting for prosperity to come back, for an "act of God" to drop dollars in their laps, for a good fairy to shower them with gold, for a "cure-all" law to be passed.

Those things won't happen. Prosperity will return in proportion as our initiative, courage and determination revive.

Millions of our homes need improvement. Millions of heating plants should be overhauled, millions of pieces of household equipment should be replaced, millions of buildings should be repainted and repaired. Improvements of this nature can be made at a lower cost now than at any time in decades.

Those spending money would get more for their investment than in many years. The laboring man gets a job. The storekeeper sells his wares and orders more. Factories begin to operate and orders go in for raw material, transportation revives and the business circle is complete.

Visualize the result that would follow the doing of needed and necessary work by millions of people who could afford it in 10,000 towns and cities in this country.

No town is too small, no city too large. You have your chance to help now.

It's up to you.

Prompt Service Plus High Quality And Reasonable Prices Combine To Make Home-Bought Goods Desirable

Business men in all lines are making an extra special effort to show their spirit of loyalty to home interests. Their concern for their customers, their town and county is very real. In this issue of the News many of them are listing bargains which demand the attention of everyone, to show their appreciation for the patronage of their friends.

Without attacking anyone, a careful reading of the messages of merchants in this issue, it will readily be seen that not only is it more convenient to trade at home, where you can see the goods bought, and where the local man will stand back of the goods sold, but that it will save you money.

The advertisements carried in this issue are not those of a sale or sales in the usual sense, but carry a much broader and more significant thought. Together it is an effort to make effective a real step toward better business conditions for all of us—producer, business man and consumer.

THE PASSING VETERANS

According to the adjutant-general's office in Washington, 2,128,948 Union soldiers served in the Civil War, while the best estimates place the number of Confederates at between 800,000 and 900,000, no accurate record being available.

The government pension roll shows only 27,673 Union veterans, while a recent survey places the number of living Confederates at no more than 10,406. This, it will be seen, shows a fairly equal percentage of survivors of the two armies.

Considering that it will be 68 years on April 9 since Lee's surrender, it seems remarkable that even the numbers mentioned are still alive, as one who was a boy soldier only 15 years old at the close of the war would now be 83. However, when it is remembered that the last survivor of the Mexican War lived more than 80 years after the end of that struggle, it may be expected that a good many Civil War veterans have several more years ahead of them.

SENATORS IMMUNE

In a Washington news letter a correspondent comments on the violence with which presidential nominees for appointive offices are frequently attacked by Senators who oppose their confirmation, and says: "Senators are immune from civil damages for their comments in the Senate regardless of how far it approaches blackguardism."

In other words, a Senator may make the most reckless and untruthful statements concerning anyone without being held to account, no matter how much these utterances may unjustly reflect and injure the persons so attacked.

Scarcely a day passes while Congress is in session that some member does not indulge in unrestrained and unwarranted attacks on citizens against whom he holds enmity. These remarks are broadcast to the country through the Congressional Record and by sensational newspapers, and the victims are powerless to protect themselves.

While members of Congress should have reasonable latitude in criticising persons or policies which they oppose, the wholesale immunity which legislators enjoy works a grave injustice to many honorable citizens. And, unfortunately, it appears that some Senators who make a specialty of reckless talk find no difficulty in securing re-election.

"Trade At Home" Move Is Being Pushed Here

become better acquainted with what the merchants of Canton have to offer them in the way of quality goods and lowest prices.

Many of the stores are inviting the people to bring their mail order house catalogs with them and compare prices. Some even going so far as to unhesitatingly state they will meet mail order house prices on goods, considering quality.

In commenting on this movement to become better acquainted with your home merchants, one merchant in Clanton had the following points to make in this issue: "Your money spent here is re-invested in Chilton county. Money sent off has one chance in a hundred of ever returning. And when you spend money here at home you see what you are buying before you pay for it."

Another business man had the following comments to make: "When you spend your money in your home town and county, you are helping yourself as well as others. When you buy from a sample picture, you are trusting to the other man's judgment and not your own."

The News is very anxious that the people of this trade territory take time to read all the advertisements in this issue. They are not only full of unheard of bargains, but will give you much information regarding the service you can receive from home merchants merely for the asking.

Court House Receiving Real Spring Cleaning

A general program of renovation and repair of the Chilton County Courthouse is being conducted under the supervision of Commissioner Jim Mims.

Numerous badly broken places in the plaster in the walls and ceilings are being repaired and a program of painting is contemplated for all the rooms, offices and corridors in the entire building, Mr. Mims said. J. H. Honeycutt, a builder well-versed in this type of work, is in charge.

The program also calls for the installation of new and more modern lights throughout the building, it was stated. Several men have been engaged for several days in cleaning some of the less used rooms that had become dumping places for sundry discarded articles.

More than two hundred bolts have been used in repairing the seats in the court room. Some of the seats had become thoroughly unreliable. Mr. Mims stated that the stairs leading to the second floor will be repaired, too.

Plan To Investigate Cost Of Campaigns

instigated after it is alleged to have been found that an expense account filed in the office of Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, does not conform with the requirements of the Corrupt Practice Act. The law requires that all sums in amounts above $5 expended in a campaign for office must be itemized. Reports are that this phase of the Act was violated along with others.

Should the accusations be substantiated, charges may be brought in Circuit Court to have the officials accused from office, it is understood. Vacancies created through the Quo Warranto proceedings are filled in this manner: New commissioners are appointed by the governor; the circuit judge fills the vacancy in the board of education, and the commissioners' court appoints the county treasurer.

A meeting of the committee is to be held this week, it is understood, to determine steps to be taken in continuing the investigation.

Friends of the officials who are being investigated charge that it is merely political backfire by Judge Reynolds, evolving out of drastic changes made recently by the commissioners' court in the personnel of county employes over his disapproval. Commissioners Duke and Atchison are said to have taken the lead in making these changes.

A rift in the Republican party, which has been in power in Chilton county for more than 25 years, has been evident for the past three years, and an open breach between members of the commissioners' court and Judge Reynolds, who is the leader of one faction, is thought by some to be responsible for bringing on the present crisis in the party.

The sub-committee is composed of Edmund W. Pettus, chairman; J. F. Aldridge, Eutaw; L. A. Farmer, Dothan; and John D. McQueen, Tuscaloosa. They were instructed to report at the next meeting of the committee, which probably will be in April.

Julian Hall for Senator

The committee nominated Julian Hall, editor of The Dothan Eagle, as the Democratic candidate to succeed Hubert Farmer of Dothan, who resigned recently as senator from the thirty-fifth senatorial district. The nomination is tantamount to election.

Senator Farmer resigned following his appointment as solicitor of the twenty-first judicial circuit to succeed J. Norton Mullins, resigned.

Robert Blount, of Tallassee, chairman of the drive to raise Alabama's $10,000 quota of the national Democratic executive committee's deficit, urged cooperation of the members in his campaign.

Mr. Pettus, chairman of the state executive committee, said that a "dime a Democrat" in Alabama would pay the quota and leave $5,000 surplus. Smiling, he reminded the members that Mr. Farley is handling the patronage and it wouldn't hurt for Alabama to be paid up in full."

VOLUME XI CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1933 EIGHT PAGES NUMBER 24

REPORTS STATE BERRY OUTLOOK VERY PROMISING

One of Largest Crops Coming This Year If Everything Is Favorable

Preparations are underway throughout Chilton County for harvesting and marketing the county's largest crop of strawberries, according to information from L. E. Diefenderfer, business manager of the Clanton Berry Growers Association.

Although shipping will not become active until the latter part of April or early May, Mr. Diefenderfer declared the outlook promises the largest crop since berry growing became of county-wide interest. Strawberries have been grown for market in Chilton county for the past twenty-five years, but only three years have elapsed since berries took a prominent place as a staple crop in the county.

The present outlook, he declared, indicates that approximately two hundred cars, consisting of three hundred and fifteen crates per car, or a total of sixty-three-thousand crates, will be produced in Chilton county this year. This is said to be about thirty per cent increase over the 1932 crop.

Even with an average of one dollar per crate, which is said to be an unusually low estimate, approximately sixty-three-thousand dollars will be realized from this one crop in Chilton county this year.

Plans have been completed for the construction of a more ample shed, by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, for grading and loading berries in Clanton. During past years Thorsby has led other sections of the county in the production of berries and fruits, but it seems that the Clanton territory will run a close second this year.

The following are officials of the Clanton Berry Growers Association: W. T. Bean, president; J. N. Dennis, secretary; and L. E. Diefenderfer, business manager.

It was estimated that picking berries will make available work for several hundred persons for more than a month later in the season.

4-H CLUB RALLY SET TO BE HELD HERE MARCH 16

Over 400 Boys Expected To Be Present at Annual Rally Of County Clubs

County Agent Stapp announces on Thursday, March 16th, the 4-H Club boys of Chilton county will hold their annual club rally at the court house at Clanton. Mr. Stapp states a very interesting program is being worked out to begin promptly at ten o'clock. He is expecting more than 400 boys to attend the rally this year. Those who remember the rally last year recall the boys had a big time hunting Easter eggs. The eggs were provided by the Kiwanis club of Clanton.

This year the members of the Kiwanis club are going to eat lunch with the boys. Mr. Stapp is arranging to provide sandwiches for lunch.

One interesting feature of the program this year will be the awarding of the silver loving cup offered last year by the Kiwanis club to the 4-H club making the best record in 1932. This cup was won last year by the Concord club. If Concord club wins the cup again in 1933 it becomes theirs, but we understand Maplesville and Jackson Chapel clubs and possibly some others say they are going to win the cup for 1933 and take it away from Concord. All 4-H Club members are urged to attend the rally. Boys who have not done 4-H club work heretofore, but wish to carry project in 1933 are urged to attend also.

While here the day of the rally each club will be asked to assemble and elect officers for 1933. James Dennis, President of the county-wide 4-H Club is especially anxious for a large attendance on the 16th.

THERE IS NO CAUSE TO FEAR

Few times in the history of our nation has there been such dire need of faith—in ourselves, our leaders and our final conquest of the ills which beset us. We need this faith that it may instill in us a courage great enough to counteract and overcome the panic of fear which threatens our people.

The spectacle of fear is a devastating thing—spreading itself like flames in dry leaves—destroying everything in its path, and finally, if unchecked, tearing itself to pieces in a last furor of terror. It is an ugly picture, but we all know examples: The hare, terrified by the barking of the hounds and the shouts of the hunters, is paralyzed by fear and helplessly gives up when a few jumps more would have taken him to safety. The bird, suddenly finding itself in a trap beats its life away in a futile attempt to break the bars, when calmness might show it the path out to freedom. After the terrible storm last year terror would grip our people when clouds darkened the sky, causing untold mental anguish, and even the loss of life—when there was no storm.

No intelligent man would try to disregard or to minimize the seriousness of the economic ills which beset us. Yet there is nothing to be gained and everything to be lost if we allow ourselves to be swept from our feet in an unreasoning and panicky spasm of fear which will cause us to destroy the very things which we most want to preserve. Fear is so powerful that it can, unaided, throw our financial and business system off balance and into a veritable inferno of chaos.

Happily, those things are not likely to happen to us. Our heritage is one of faith and courage—not fear. The founders of our country in the 1770's—facing the powerful British Empire, with a mere handful of poorly equipped men, were sustained by a faith in the future which could not be shaken—by a courage that would not give up—though death and poverty be the penalty. Faith in the years ahead has sustained us and nourished our growth until now. It will carry us through the trials of today and yet others which are ahead. We have no choice in the matter—with fear we are already doomed. With faith and courage we have a chance—and if history is a true indicator—a positive certainty that we shall overcome and go forward to a brighter future.

Fortunately, we now have at the head of our government a President who is a living, daily example of faith and courage. With promptness and decisiveness he is leading on. His words and his actions pronounce him a leader whom we may safely follow. He will determine the point of attack, and he will lead the charge. Success depends upon our support and cooperation, our determination to help and to save our institutions. We have a wonderful country, with billions of dollars in resources, a system of business, which must not be destroyed, though perhaps altered, and a leader equal to the occasion. With these things, and faith and courage, we have no need to fear.

IT IS A GLOOMY MOMENT IN HISTORY

It is a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension. . In our own country there is universal commercial prostration, and thousands of our poorest fellow-citizens are turned out against the approaching Winter without employment.

In France the political caldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty. Russia hangs like a cloud dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies, resources and influences of the British Empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly Indian situation, and with disturbed relations in China.

Of our own troubles no man can see the end. If we are only to lose money, and thus by painful poverty to be taught wisdom, no man need seriously despair. Yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this widespread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity. —Reprinted from Harper's Weekly, October 10, 1857.

At last, one morning this week, his efforts were rewarded. Someone had tampered with the hen-house door. But closer investigation revealed that the prowlers instead of making off with a part of his flock had kindly donated a big, fat hen.

ALL BANKS IN UNITED STATES TAKE HOLIDAY

Roosevelt Issues Order To Halt Hoarding: Local Banks Closed

Beginning with the State of Michigan whose banks have been closed for some time, the tide of bank holidays has included every bank in the United States, following an order from President Roosevelt.

The Banks in Chilton county have been suspended from doing any active business since last Thursday morning, and last Monday morning were closed completely, with possible intentions of reopening Friday morning of this week, subject to orders from the Secretary of the Treasury

Press reports at the time of this writing stated that the situation was beginning to ease up considerably over the entire country, as President Roosevelt takes a hand in straightening the matter out. There is a possibility of scrip being used for awhile, but at the time of this writing, there was no definite statement to that effect. Unless otherwise ordered, local banks plan to open their doors Friday morning, it is understood, but for limited amount of business.

Following are paragraphs telling of activities in the banking situation during the past few days:

President Roosevelt and advisers talked far into the night last Friday night, talking over the bank situation. Every bank, clearing house, building and loan association, Federal Reserve Banks, national banking associations, trust companies, savings banks, credit unions were ordered to suspend all transactions from Monday, March 6, through Thursday, March 9th.

CALMNESS IS NOTED AMONG COMMISSIONERS

Court Has Busy Session Here During A Three-Day Session

Apparent calm has been restored among members of the County Commissioners' Court. Indications during a three-days meeting of the court this week are that difficulties, which have caused an open breach between members of the court and the Probate Judge, have been smoothed over.

Among numerous minor projects that were discussed and acted upon during the three-day session was a donation of eight hundred and fifty dollars to the Isabella School, to be paid on a seventeen hundred dollar note held by one of the local banks, and bearing the endorsement of fifteen citizens of that community.

Speaking in behalf of the donation were: D. O. Manning, Howard Oden, both of the Isabella community, and J. C. Page, of Clanton. Commissioners Duke, Atchison and Mims voted to make the donation; it was opposed by Commissioner Cobb.

Plans were also discussed for the rebuilding of a bridge across Chestnut Creek, near the Turn-Around. It was explained that the bridge has become dangerous. The entire court planned to spend a part of Wednesday in making a tour of inspection of several roads in the county.

Sheriff W. H. Gillespie filed a petition with the Commissioners' Court asking for the retransferring of fifteen hundred dollars from the general fund back to the fine and forfeiture fund, from which he said it was taken sometime ago. He explained that with the present financial crisis it is impossible for him to operate.

Several persons appeared before the court requesting aid, or admittance into the county institutions. Temporary relief was administered in most of the cases, and it was explained that if the county's application for fifty thousand dollars from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to be used for relief purposes in the county, meets with favorable approval extensive work will be begun on various roads throughout all the districts in the county.

Banks And a State of Mind

Legislative action in various states to afford banks protection against panic "runs" of depositors has now become too familiar a thing to alarm the level-headed. All business men have realized for months past the existence of the situation which calls for such expedients; they should have no difficulty in recognizing that, inconvenient as bank holidays and accompanying restrictions upon withdrawals of deposits are, they actually serve the interests of depositors and promise to maintain something like normal business processes in communities which would presumably fare worse without them.

All these emergency measures of state governors and Legislatures have two main purposes; first, to keep available liquid bank resources in circulation through check payments and release of limited amounts of currency; second, to put all depositors on an equal footing as contrasted with the preference enjoyed in the typical "run on the bank" by those having early knowledge of the imminence of a run or otherwise infected with the virus of fear. The point to be remembered is that these expedients themselves are not the heart of the prevailing bank situation but only the means of temporarily controlling it until such time as depositors in general regain their composure.

Actually, the tap root of the difficulty which banks in numerous communities are experiencing is their constant exposure to unreasoning attack by their creditors, the depositors, and their inability heretofore to command any effective means of defense therefrom. In ordinary times, when the confidence of depositors in the bank position is what may be called normal, that exposure is no serious matter; even today it would be nullified by a universal disposition among all depositors to govern themselves with reason and self-control. Bank holidays are intended to prompt such sanity to assert itself.

Essentially, this bank situation and its immediate outcome depends upon a popular state of mind. It happens that our long period of political drifting since the November elections, together with the chapter of accidents, has affected the public mind adversely and cumulatively. Any distinctly favorable change in the trend of popular thinking, even if based upon mere incident or circumstance, would in all probability mean a successful outcome of these temporary expedients and fairly rapid disappearance of the conditions which occasion them.

Women Drivers Safer Than Men

If you want to start something in any kind of a gathering ask this question: "Are women safe motor car drivers?"

The statisticians point out that there are at least 3 operators to every two cars in the United States, and there were 22,347,800 passenger automobiles registered in the United States in 1931. That means that there are something like 33,500,000 operators. Surveys made in many cities and estimates of the Federal authorities indicate that women constitute approximately 25 per cent of the total number of these drivers.

The National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, which strives constantly to persuade motorists to reduce driving accidents as one of the means of reducing automobile insurance rates, conducted a survey on the subject. Their results were checked with similar investigations made by other agencies. Figures thus obtained show that of the 1,281,400 drivers involved in accidents in 1931, women numbered 97,800 or 7.63 per cent. There were 2,460 women in fatal and 95,340 in non-fatal accidents.

In observance of traffic rules and regulations women also stand out. Full statistics are unavailable but reports from a dozen large cities show that women constitute only about 2.53 per cent of those who have to "tell it to the judge."

The other side insists that soft-hearted traffic officers give her the benefit of every doubt and show mercy where there is no doubt at all. Admitting that feminine wiles do count in some instances, it still leaves a margin in favor of the woman.

Traffic officers, inspectors, insurance commissioners, police chiefs, magistrates, and others in a position to know, were circularized on the question, "Are women safe drivers?" In replies received 77.8 per cent considered the woman a more careful driver than the man; 11.1 thought she exercised at least as much driving care as a man, and 11.1 considered the woman as careless in handling a car.

Men still prefer to think of women as the helpless sex. They like to dismiss them with: "Well, what can you expect of a woman driver?" But in face of the annual automobile accident records, many believe that conditions would improve if some husbands were to climb out from behind the steering wheel and let their wives do the driving.

Peace And Taxes

The friends of world peace are the best friends of tax reduction as well.

The cost of war—past, present and future—is the major item in the operating cost of every great power. In this country, 72 per cent of all federal funds go for war debts, war veterans and the army and navy.

Organized destruction hits every pocketbook.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

This swapping things is on the go again this week. I have received several letters from readers of this column who have articles they want to trade for something else.

Here's the first one. C. R. Glenn, of West End, Clanton, says that he has a two-horse wagon to trade for something. Also a good oil burning range will trade for a wood burning cook stove. These are two good trades, seems to me like.

* * *

Mr. W. B. Cox of Clanton, Ala., Route 2, writes in stating that he has a good fresh milk cow for trade. He also has a riding cultivator and a disc harrow he wants to trade for something.

Out on Clanton, Ala., Route 7, Mr. C. C. Ward says he has a first class cream separator and wants to trade it for a good fresh cow. Mr. Ward says this separator is in good condition and will accommodate about seven cows. If you are in need of a good separator get in touch with Mr. Ward.

I received two other letters but they were for something for sale. I am sorry, but I can't use anything in this column to be advertised for sale, and I hope the two persons who wrote in will not take offense at this. I am running these trade items without cost, so if any of you readers have anything you want to trade for something else, just send it to this column.

Could somebody tell me how many presidents the United States has had, including Roosevelt? In some papers I read that Mr. Roosevelt is the thirty-second, and in other papers I read that he is the thirty-first president. I see that the News said last week that he was the thirty-first. Now somebody has got that thing down all wrong, but which is right is somewhat beyond me. So, I'm asking you—is Roosevelt the 31st or 32nd president of the United States. I know the answer to that, and will give it to you later. But you count 'em up and see if you can find out.

There is one thing I do know and you know too, that Roosevelt is a Democratic president, and what a president he is going to be. He is going into office with similar conditions when Teddy Roosevelt went into office. Teddy whipped 'em down too, and so will Franklin. He even got started with the whipping last Sunday.

* * *

Somebody has had the nerve or something to blame the bank closings on Roosevelt. That is kind of wrong, because the banks closed last Thursday, before Roosevelt went into office. Dig into this matter and you will no doubt find that it will come out that up yonder in Detroit where a certain automobile manufacturer lives, he refused to grant a favor and with his money, started this closing, so I am informed.

* * *

They also tell me that when you play with fire you are liable to get burned. Maybe Henry had better wear some asbestos clothes or something after this.

I'll write a little about this bank closing business. It is my opinion it is serious right now, but nothing to be worried about. Just keep faith in your banks and they will weather this storm without much trouble. Give them your cooperation and help. Dr. Ezell delivered a good sermon Sunday on this. It was right to the point and clear.

* * *

Every bank in the United States has been closed, so don't think your own bank is the only one that is tied up for awhile. So far as the banks in Chilton County are concerned, they are as safe as ever, if not a little safer. The only place where the rub comes in right now, is that we can't get our money out of the banks for awhile. The thinking men will tell you that this thing should have happened three years ago, and some will tell you that it should stay in effect for six months. That will give us time to get back to living like we should.

In my opinion, there will be something done about it before the week is out. I'm not worried—just a little inconvenienced. There's one thing about it—it kind of places everybody on the same level financially for a while.

* * *

The Commissioners Court was in session Monday. Haven't heard whether they have turned anything else over for a new start or not. I guess the News will give you the inside on this.

I heard a little story that a certain man is said to have told another. It was like this—when you let a boy grow up for eighteen or twenty years and kind of run things like he wants to for that length of time, he thinks he can keep on running them.

* * *

This banking situation looks like a bad spot on the Democrats right now, but wait awhile. There might be a lot of folks who would like to see the Democrats fail in their government with Roosevelt as president. Knocking Roosevelt will not help this country one bit.

I heard the editor say the other day that he would like to get two or three loads of wood and pine, or kindling in exchange for subscriptions to the News. Any of you folks who might owe on your subscription can pay up on this offer. And the editor also said that he could use some syrup, potatoes or corn, on subscriptions.

This Ben Margolis is undoubtedly one of the most optimistic persons in Clanton. Work on his new building for his store is going right along, and he said that he hoped to move into it before the week is out. I got an idea that Ben will have a real announcement to make when he moves into that new building.

Folks, let's keep this trading at home spirit moving even in spite of the fact that we can't do so much trading right now. My idea is to keep things moving as usual, so that when business gets a little relief, we will have a darn good running start.

I see that Harrison Smith has resigned as chairman of the investigating committee in this county. Can't say that I blame Harrison for that move. There was no use in him doing something that somebody else should be doing if they wanted it done. Congratulations Harrison, I think you made a good decision there.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

The deck of the vessel was crowded with passengers. The swells of the sea caused the ship to make a sudden lurch, and a lady passenger stumbled as tho she was going overboard. A man grabbed her by the hair and that came off, he next grabbed her by one arm and that came off, he then grabbed her by her foot and her leg came off. In desperation he shouted to her, "My God woman, give me some co-operation." Much of the distress in these distressing times could be relieved if we had co-operation. We help a family and they sit down. We help them again and they sit the harder. We help them the third time and they sit down to rise no more. When you visit a family in need and see no signs of self preservation, you have located a "Dead Head." When those in need will give co-operation to the charity funds by planting a garden and in other ways taking care of themselves, they show themselves worthy to be helped. This is a good time for some folks to learn how to swim. Charity funds may give out and then they will have to sink or swim.

That little spider that weaves his web in the corners of your home is a wise guy. He will throw out his entanglements and then sit down to wait. Along comes the fly and strikes the web and is stuck. The fly is much larger than the spider, and has much more strength, and Mr. Spider sits still while the fly exhausts himself and while he becomes more entangled. When the fly ceases to struggle then the spider slips down to him and injects some poison into his body and then winds him about more securely, and carts him away to the butcher's table. The devil observed the wisdom of the spider and he adopted a like method to capture men and women. He has thrown his entanglements all through human society, and he sits down to wait for men and women to strike his snares. When any one strikes the devil's entanglements he usually sticks. He flounders about and becomes more and more entangled. He exhausts himself in the ways of sin, and then the devil slips up to him and sends the dart of death through him, winds him in the togs of the grave and carts him off to his table of fire. Beware of the devil's entanglements.

While I was standing on the deck of a vessel that was making its way thru the storm and the waves of an angry ocean, I saw many little sea gulls flying about the ship. They did not seem to notice the storm. When they grew tired on their wings they would drop down on the peak of a wave and be rocked to and fro. They were far from the shore but they were happy and did not seem to care if cape Hatteras was a hundred miles away. Being happy where you are is a great virtue. Often we find ourselves far from the shore and in the midst of a storm, but we should not lose our balance. We should learn to be happy in spite of the storms of life. Let me beg that you be happy where you are.

I walked out on the City Dock and witnessed four lads as they were engaged in the sport of catching crab. They had no hooks and yet they were filling a croker sack with the crabs from the water below. They had a fishing line and a hunk of beef. All they had to do in order to bring in the crabs was to tie a small piece of beef to the end of the line and lower it into the water, and the crabs would grab it and be drawn in. They could have let go the bait on reaching the surface of the water, but the bait tasted so good until they would not let it go, but clung to it until they were well in the sack. The devil is doing a lot of fishing along the same method. He ties his bait to the line of wrong living and lowers it into the sea of human society. Men and women seize the bait and cling to it until they are drawn into eternal darkness. They could let go the bait at any moment, but it tastes so good that they had rather cling to it than to have life and liberty. The devil is a great sportsman and he is fishing for human hearts.

I visited a family who lived on a bayou and the man of the house related to me the habits of the alligator. He said that an alligator never went out in search of food. He always would wait for it to come to him. He was seen to crawl to the shore and place his head just above the water and then open wide his jaws. When this was done he would act as if he were dead. Soon flies, gnats, lizzards, beetles, frogs, etc. would gather into his open mouth. Then all of a sudden there would be an earthquake as the upper jaw came down on the menagerie of food within. The old rusty monster would blink one eye as he sent his food down to his empty maw, and then he would lift his jaw and set the trap for other food that might be tempted to enter. I am wondering if we do not have many people who are not acting the part of the alligator in these times of depression. They refuse to go after their food supply. They quietly settle down and open their mouths. They are not so careful about what they have to eat—just so it is something that will kill hunger. When we find a human alligator sitting still with nothing but an open mouth, we do that individual a great injury to fill it, and let him gobble it down. I believe in placing food in the open mouths of helpless children, but not in grown up alligators.

30 PER CENT ACREAGE CUT REQUIRED FOR CROP LOANS

Reduction of 30 per cent in the acreage planted to cash crops will be required this year of farmers who procure crop production loans, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde announced today in making public the regulations governing the 1933 loans.

In making available for crop production loans this year $90,000,000 of Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds Congress specified that the Secretary of Agriculture might require, as a condition of any loan, "that the borrower agree to reduce his acreage or production program on such basis, not to exceed 30 per centum, as may be determined by the Secretary." The Secretary's regulations, however, stipulate that acreage reduction will not be required of farmers who, in 1933, plant no more than 8 acres of cotton; 2½ acres of tobacco; 40 acres of wheat; 20 acres of corn; 2½ acres of truck crops; 12 acres of sugar beets; 8 acres of potatoes; 30 acres of rice; 8 acres of peanuts.

Farmers seeking crop production loans this year are advised to obtain application blanks and copies of the regulations in their home counties, rather than from Washington. Field agents of the Crop Production Loan Office are now designating representatives in each farming county to inform prospective borrowers of the requirements governing loans and to distribute application blanks and other necessary forms. These agents will assist farmers in filling out applications, without charge.

Accompanying the required 30 per cent reduction in acreage planted to cash crops, above the established minimum, the 1933 regulations limit the amount available to any farmer to $300. In 1932, crop production loans were made to 507,632 farmers, averaging $126 each. No loan in excess of $100 will be made to any applicant who is in arrears on as many as two previous loans made by the Secretary of Agriculture. As last year, interest is fixed at 5½ per cent, to be deducted when the dvance is made. All notes are due October 31, 1933. Advances to borrowers may be made in installments, the regulations state, inasmuch as expenditures for crop production are usually made over a considerable period.

One million dollars of the $90,000,000 funds is available for livestock feed in drought or storm stricken areas.

Charging a fee for the preparation of a borrower's application is expressly forbidden this year in Section 3 of the Act of Congress authorizing the crop production loans. Congress further declared these loan funds "to be impressed with a trust to accomplish the purposes provided for by this resolution—and it shall be unlawful for any person to make any material false representation for the purpose of obtaining any loan or to assist in obtaining such loan or to dispose of or assist in disposing of any crops given as security for any loan made under authority of this resolution, execpt for the account of the Secretary of Agriculture, and for the purpose of carrying out the prvisions of this resolution.

Teeth for Section 3 are provided in a clause which orders a fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both, for any person found guilty of violating the above provisions.

The remaining regulations announced by Secretary Hyde are similar to those in force last year. An absolute first lien on all of the crops grown by the borrower in 1933 is required by the act. In counties where fertilizer is not commonly used, the rate of loans must not exceed $3 an acre for general field crops and $12 an acre for truck crops, including potatoes. In counties where fertilizer is commonly used, according to the testimony of representatives of the Department of Agriculture, the rate must not exceed $6 an acre for general field crops, $10 an acre for tobacco, and $20 an acre for truck crops, including potatoes. Not to exceed $1 an acre of loans made at any of these rates may be used for repairs and miscellaneous expenses of crop production other than seed, fertilizer, feed for workstock, and fuel and oil for tractors.

In adidtion to the reduction required this year in acreage of cash crops, borrowers must agree to plant a garden for home use and a sufficient acreage of feed crops to supply feed for their livestock. Acreage taken out of cash crop production may be planted to any soil-building crop.

Loans will be made, the regulations further declare, "to farmers who are unable to obtain loans for crop production during the year 1933 from other sources. These loans may be made to such individuals as are found by the Secretary of Agriculture to have acreage fit for seeding and who are without means to purchase the supplies necessary for crop production during the year 1933. . . . No loans will be made fo any applicant who has a means of livelihood other than farming. . . . Loans will not be made for the purchase of machinery or livestock, or for the payment of taxes, debts, or interest on debts. Loans will not be made for the feeding of livestock other than workstock used in crop production."

An application for a loan, accompanied by the necessary crop lien, will be passed on first by county advisory committees. If the county committee and the field inspector certify the application, it will be forwarded to one of the several regional field offices for final approval and disbursement.

The County Agent is required to interview each applicant and sign the application. Mr. Stapp states that farmers who have security that they can offer in addition to their crops, may come to his office and apply for loans thru the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation.

We read of a "Renovize Philadelphia" campaign. It might be well to do a little "renovizing" on the city's political machines as a starter.

What Others Say

Following are editorial comments from various newspapers including Democratic and Republican papers, on President Roosevelt, his views, actions, etc.:

Cleveland Plain Dealer (Ind., Dem.): "These (the president's) are fighting words, fit for a time that calls for militant action. No evasion of duty. No saber rattling. No empty heroics. Millions will say as they read the inaugural this morning: Here is the man we have been waiting for.

Washington Post (Ind.): President Roosevelt, facing "the dark realities of the moment," reassures the country by declaring his support of sound money and for strict regulation of banking, credit and investments. His announcement that Congress will be called immediately evokes universal approval.

* * *

C. V. Gregory, Chicago, editor of Prairie Farmer: The principles of agricultural relief which Mr. Roosevelt laid down are very satisfactory. I assume that he will amplify later about his plans for mortgage adjustments and increasing farm prices. All in all, it was a fine speech.

Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock, (Democrat): Unfaltering leadership that looks conditions squarely in the face, will bring America back to normal strength and stability. In Mr. Roosevelt's own words "the only thing we have to fear is fear itself." The unreasoning and unjusitfied terror, or fatalism that might hold us paralyzed and inactive on our own behalf. There is no trace of that in the words he spoke to the American people.

Baltimore Sun (Ind.-Dem.): It is the mood, the spirit of President Roosevelt's inaugural address that counts, and the spirit is good. It is fine. . . . . What could be expected or asked was a president with a mind untrammeled by fear or slavish obedience to old forms, and with a will to act. Such a president is revealed in this address.

Louisville Courier - Journal (Ind.-Dem.): We have the assurance of this man of action, this leader, that if Congress fails to do what it should do, he will seek, and if necessary fight for, the power to do it himself. And it is history that what Franklin Roosevelt has fought for, he has always won.

* * *

St. Louis Post-Dispatch (Ind.): If we may judge by Mr. Roosevet's inaugural address, his resolution is firm. He even goes so far as to say that he will if needs be ask Congress for wartime powers. We agree with him that war itself could scarcely precipitate a greater emergency than that by which the country is faced, nor do we doubt that it may become necessary to so treat it.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat (Ind.): There is much that is reassuring in the brief inaugural address of President Roosevelt, although it raises many questions and leaves them unanswered. The program which he outlines is disappointingly vague. The course he intends to pursue is not made clear. We have, therefore, no means of intelligently judging the policies he has in mind and must continue to rely upon faith until they are disclosed.

Commercial-Appeal, Memphis (Democrat): Master strategist that he (Roosevelt) is with a liberal philosophy of government and the social welfare, not unlike Woodrow Wilson, Mr. Roosevelt approaches his task much as Wilson did. Mr. Roosevelt correctly diagnoses the ills of America. He is prepared to prescribe the remedy.

The Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal, Republican: The unbeaten spirit of America rallies to the courage and confidence of the new president's inaugural address. Of the part that he himself must play in his great plan of rehabilitation and renewal, Roosevelt makes no self-conscious apology, or denial. By the very oath he has taken, it is his to assume unhesitatingly the leadership of the 'great army of people dedicated to a disciplined attack upon their common problem.'"

Washington Star (Independent): President Roosevelt has accepted the leadership to which the people have called him fearlessly and with dedication to the principles of government upon which this nation is founded. . . . He accepts his responsibility without qualification and with courage.

Cincinnati Enquirer (Ind.): There will be, it appears, no abdication in the White House, no lethargy, no watchful waiting for a sign from heaven. The president has spoken bold and strong words. Their translation into action—immediate action—is the need of the hour.

The Kansas City Star (Independent): Two passages in the address stand out —his denunciation of unreasoning fear as the country's chief danger; his declaration for prompt action. The leadership the president proposes, backed as it is by a strong majority in both houses of Congress, should help allay this fear.

Los Angeles Times (Republican): The address was one well fitted to the occasion and well calculated to inspire confidence. There can be no question of the energy and determination of the new executive. . . . If President Roosevelt finds himself impeded by congressional fiddling and shuffling his best course will be to make a prompt appeal to the American people.

Seattle Times (Independent): Courage, confidence and constructive planning were evident in his message. . . . There is no paritsanship among the masses in the support they are tendering Mr. Roosevelt today. They will follow him in every constitutional campaign he may undertake against the common foe of economic unrest.

* * *

Denver Post (Independent) The new deal has been started, but the American people don't know yet whether the cards which are being dealt them are aces or deuces, and the bankers won't sell them any chips. The one reassuring circumstance in the chaotic situation is the revelation that the new dealer is determined to run the game on an entirely different basis than has been used in the past.

Rat Control Work

To County Agents, Vocational Agriculture Teachers and Others:

This is to advise you that it is very important that RAT CONTROL work planned for this spring be completed as soon as possible. There are several reasons why this work should be done during the month of March. Rats begin to move out of winter quarters into more unprotected places as soon as the weather gets warm; they feed more in the fields and this makes it much more difficult to reach them with the poisoned bait. Reproduction will start soon. Every adult killed now will mean many less rats in a few weeks. The poisoned baits keep longer in cold weather and are much more effective than during warm weather. Thousands of baby chicks are being brooded at the present time. A few rats can destroy many hundreds of dollars worth of young chickens in one night. Now is the time to poison rats in your community.

Money is scarce but one hen, a bushel of corn, potatoes or peas, or a gallon of syrup can be sold for enough to pay for sufficient bait for a small farm. Others have financed campaigns in this way. Why not give it a trail.

I still have a limited amount of travel money available for this work. Let me know if you need assistance and I will be glad to help.

Very truly yours,
WINFORD A. RUFFIN,
Collaborator, Extension Entomologist.

Farmers interested are requested to get in touch with County Agent C. E. Stapp or their vocational teacher.

NATURE AND BILLBOARDS

"To him who in love of nature holds communion with her visible forms, she speaks a various language."

So wrote William Cullen Bryant in his famed poem "Thanatopsis," published in 1817. Cargill, the cartoonist, takes this quotation as the caption for a cartoon depicting a motorist wending his way through a maze of billboards, which also "speak a various language," ranging from praise of El Punko cigars to an invitation to patronize the Rowdie Dow dance hall.

In terms more eloquent than pages of text, the cartoonist characterizes the present disgraceful marring of natural scenery by blatant and offensive billboards, which not only obscure the beauties of nature, but are in many instances a menace to traffic.

What would Bryant, poet and nature lover, say if he were to come back seeking inspiration for a modern "Thanatopsis?"

Warning

Don't be misled by false statements. Calomel, salts mineral waters, oils, laxative pills and drugs have no effect whatever on the liver or its production of bile. The truth of this statement can be proved by consulting the authoritative medical textbooks published during the past five years.

There are only two known substances which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances, and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them.—(adv.)

As the result of this achievement several interesting and strong debates have been given. Wednesday a debate between the Senior One class and the Senior Three class was given in chapel. The question was: Resolved, That Men of Thought Have Been More Beneficial to Mankind Than Men of Action. The negative side was argued by Helen Roberts and Dixie Johnson who represented the Senior One class and the affirmative side was debated by Pearl Vinson and Louise Knox of the Senior Three class. At the time of this writing the results were not available.

Last week the biology class began the interesting study of bird life. Not only were facts about birds studied, but several poems on birds and bird lore were written by the students after reading poems written by famous authors. After careful selection and grading Mr. Varnell chose two of the best poems. They were written by Helen Roberts and Dewey Williams.

I Wonder

Dewey Williams

I wonder if birds up in the sky
Have feelings like humans do,
If they sit and ponder over trouble
I've often wondered, haven't you?

And when they fly above—
I wonder if they think it through
Of the future and someone they love
I've often wondered, haven't you?

I wonder if they have novel thoughts
As same as people do
Of life, after death—
I've often wondered, haven't you?

And when they perch for sleep at night
I wonder if they say a prayer,too.
They should, they have the right.
I've often wondered, haven't you?

And I've wondered if the humming bird and owl—
The kildee, dove and wren
Have thoughts the same as men.
I've often wondered, haven't you?

A Bird Riddle

Helen Roberts

My throat is of red,
While my feathers are brownish black
I'm of medium size
And of friends I don't lack.

I'm found in the woodlands,
My nest's in the trees,
My song, which is cheery,
Can be heard with the breeze.

I'm found almost always
Especially in this state,
And when flowers bloom in springtime
I'm calling my mate.

Now all that I've told you
About me's no lie,
So answer this question
I ask you: Who am I?

Several interesting facts about birds were learned. For instance, did you know that the humming bird, the smallest of all birds, could whip a blue heron and many other birds larger than itself? Did you know that the wings of a humming birds move 200 times per minute; that the eagles nests sometimes are 12 feet deep, 8 feet across and weigh almost two tons? And did you know that the humming bird had a wing spread of from two to four inches while the eagle's wings are from 8 to 10 feet? It is very interesting to study the contrast between the humming bird, the smallest, and the eagle, the largest of the bird group.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. H. D. DURBIN

—o—

On last Wednesday morning, March 1st, God called one that we loved dearly, to come home with Him. Inez had gone through four years of the most intense suffering. So God in His love and mercy said, "It is enough. Come up higher," and heeding the call, the beautiful soul went to its Maker. She was just in the full bloom of womanhood, only thirty-nine years old, but when we in our garden have flowers some are tiny buds, some just opened, yet some are just in their prime, full blown, still others have withered, and the petals nearly all blown away. So it is with God. He has to take the beautiful open flowers to go in His garden up there. Our hearts are bowed down with grief at the loss of our dear one, but our loss is Heaven's gain, and one sweet day we will all try to meet Inez in a home where there will be no more tears and heartaches; no more pain or death.

Inez leaves behind a husband, Rev. H. D. Durbin, two daughters, Delene and Irma, her aged father, one brother and one sister, and a host of friends and relatives.

Her remains were carried to Liberty Hill Thursday afternoon for interment. Dr. S. J. Ezell and Rev. Homer Carroll conducted the funeral services, with Martin in charge.

"Soft as the voice of an angel
Breathing a lesson unheard
Hope with a gentle persuasion
Whispers her comforting word,
Wait 'til the darkness is over,
Wait 'til the tempest is done.
Hope for the sunshine tomorrow,
After the sunshine is gone.
If in the dusk of the twi-light
Dim be the region afar,
Will not the deepening of darkness
Brighten the glimmering star.
Then when the night is upon us
Why should the heart sink away?
When the dark midnight is over
Watch for the breaking of day.
Hope as an anchor, so steadfast,
Rends the dark veil for the soul
Whither the Master has entered
Robbing the grave of its goal.
Come then, O come, glad fruition,
Come to our sad weary hearts,
Come thou, O blest hope of glory,
Never, O never depart.

MACK AND ETTA,
Two Who Loved Her.

News from Thorsby

Miss EDITH JOHNSON, Correspondent

One of the notable events of the season was the marriage of Miss Doris Freeman of Thorsby and Hubert Reinhardt of Thorsby which was solemnized at eight o'clock Saturday evening in the Baptist church.

The decorations were beautiful and impressive in their simplicity. Ivy was festooned over the altar which made a delicate tracery with pink and white candles placed at intervals among the ivy. Ferns and potted plants were placed to form a banked semi-circle about the altar and baskets of pink and white carnations accentuated the effect. The ushers for the occasion were Mr. Kendall Franklin, Mr. Brady Billingsley and Mr. L. C. Lowery.

Before the bridal procession entered the lovely song, "I Love You Truly," was rendered as a violin duet by Miss Mary Louise Reinhardt and Mr. Grantland Davis. Following this Miss Lois Thompson sang very sweetly, "Oh, Promise Me."

Miss Dorothy Vaughn Franklin and Robert Johnson and Linnie Bell Reinhardt and Ralph Pate composed the maids and groomsmen group.

The bridesmaids wore pretty frocks of white organdy and carried arm bouquets of shaded pink snap-dragon blossons. She carried a fan bouquet of pink brides' roses tied with embossed tulle.

The bride of Mr. Reinhardt is a member of a well known Thorsby family. She completed her high school work at Thorsby Institute, attended Piedmont College in Demorest, Ga., and received her A. B. degree from the college with her class graduating in June, 1932.

Mr. Reinhardt belongs to a prominent Wilsonville family. He completed his high school work in Columbiana. At present he is employed at the Wyatt Drug Store.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Reinhardt are at home to their friends in Thorsby.

Plan To Collect Old Gold To Help Furnish Funds For Work Of Missions

—o—

Last Friday, March 3rd. the Executive committees of the Unity and Chilton County Associations met in joint meeting at the Clanton Baptist church. After a fine devotional by Rev. J. W. Jones. Thorsby, Dr. L. E. Barton, State Secretary of Missions, delivered a wonderful inspirational address in which he called upon us to trust God and go ahead. Several matters were discussed, and it was agreed to urge upon all our churches to push the Misson offerings in all our Sunday Schools March 26th. This is very important to give some pressing relief to our Mission agencies just now. It is hoped that every Sunday School will talk this matter and also make best possible offering on the above date. It was also agreed to cooperate in raising some cash for our work by cooperating in the Southwide movement to gather up all the old gold and silver articles now in discard and sell them to help our mission causes. This campaign closes last of March. Any churches or individuals who have old watch cases, spectacle frames, spoons, etc. and wish to give them to the cause of our mission work, may send them direct to Dr. Barton, Montgomery, or to Rev. S. J. Ezell, Clanton, Ala., and he will send them in for you. Much good could be done if each church community would appoint a committee to solicit this useless stuff to us, and give it to our misisonary work.

The two committees also went on record unanimously opposing repeal of the eighteenth amendment against liquors, and urged upon our people to be on guard against false promises of no saloons.

Central Singing Society

—o—

With Prof. O. L. Devaughn presiding the Central Singing Society met at Concord last Sunday afternoon. A very good singing was held. A long line of directors were present, and the class enjoyed about two hours of splendid singing.

The society will meet at Providence next Sunday afternoon. All singers and lovers of music have a cordial invitation to attend. The society has plenty of new books; so all may come with the assurance of having a book to use. But if you have a book bring it along.

Easter, The Fifth Sunday, Etc.

The singing dates around Easter and the fifth Sunday in April are just a little complicated. A recent letter from Mr. Stanley Gulledge in Birmingham urges a delegation of Chilton county singers to attend the Jefferson County convention at Five Points the fifth Sunday. This is the day we are supposed to sing in the afternoon at the courthouse. There will be an all-day singing at Poplar Springs Easter Sunday, and then the society is supposed to meet back there the next Sunday afternoon.

In view of the above irregularities, I am going to suggest the following: That there be singing at the courthouse on the afternoon of the fourth Sunday in April, instead of Poplar Springs; and that we have no singing on the fifth Sunday but that as many of our singers as possible accept the invitation of Mr. Gulledge and go to Birmingham. Then, too, there will be no conflicting gathering around here to interfere with the annual old folks and ministers meeting at Friendship the fifth Sunday.

The above is ony a suggestion by the secretary of the Central Society. If there is any objection, we will have plenty of time to straighten it out. If there is no objection, then the definite announcement of same will be made in a week or so.

What Negroes Are Doing

Chilton County Training School

Worthy Hughes spent a busy day in the County Training School community last Wednesday. Terracing was the order of the day. Old terraces were changed and a few new ones were laid off for Ralph Oden and Ben Love. Instruction was given on the method of eliminating deep ditches. Those present at the demonstration were Felton Pierson, A. G. Gordon, Otho McKinney, A. B. Craig, Ralph Oden and Benjamin Anderson. The teacher of agriculture assisted in the demonstration.

The shop was a busy place during the entire week. The articles brought in for repair were as follows: wagons, fire dogs, saws, singletrees, axes, scrapes, scooters, and single stocks.

Quite a bit of interest was manifested in our first day's work. A number of persons who have been farming for many years made attempts to sharpen their first scooter. It is anticipated that a larger number will be out each week.

My Cotton Plan, by Clinton Calloway. I have decided to grow and market four acres of D.P.L. 4-8 cotton with the intention of growing more next year if possible.

1. Selecting Land. I will select my land in good sandy loam soil. It is the best I have for cotton.

2. Selecting Seed. I will select D. P. L. 4-8 seed because the lint from these seed sells better.

3. Laying off Rows. I will lay off rows 3 feet wide with a Georgia stock. I shall make the long rows near the terraces.

4. Planting. I shall use my father's planter, setting it so that it will put out not less than 1 bushel per acre.

5. Fertilizing. I shall use the Auburn minimum, which is as follows: 200 lbs. acid phosphate, 100 lbs. soda and 25 lbs. potash per acre. This will amount to 800 lbs. acid, 400 lbs. soda and 100 lbs. potash for the four acres. I shall mix all of the acid, potash and 100 lbs. of soda, and put it out with a distributor at planting time. I shall side dress my cotton with soda, at the rate of 75 lbs. per acre immediately after chopping.

6. Cultivating. I will cultivate with a scrape and scooter, and a Georgia stock, because they are good implements for that purpose.

7. Chopping. I shall do as much of the chopping as possible so as to kee down cost.

8. Harvesting. I shall pick as much of my cotton as possible. Anything I can do will save money for me.

9. Hauling. I shall haul cotton with my father's two-horse wagon.

10. Ginning. I will gin my cotton where local farmers gin.

11. Selling. I will sell my cotton to the one who offers the best price.

Plans of My Poultry Project, By Clinton Calloway. I have decided to try the business of poultry raising.

1. Selecting Breed. I will select the Rhode Island Red because it is a general purpose breed and is best for my use.

2. Building House. I will build a house out of lumber picked up on the farm. I see lots of tin and old lumber around home I can use.

3. Securing Chickens. I shall buy some baby chicks for an early start. Then I will hatch as many as possible. I would buy all, but I don't have the money.

4. Feeding Chickens. I will feed my baby chicks starting mash. I will feed my hens laying mash and corn, because that is all I have on hand.

5. Making Nests. I will make nes out of scrap lumber and pine straw, because they can be secured cheap and make fine nests.

6. Culling the Laying Flock. I shall cull my hens by the Purina method

Yet, no one can tell what March will bring to us. So get re for planting and wait for the right season. Don't plant your seed in the moon but in the soil for the moon has other duties to perform.

VERSATILE MR. REVERE

Paul Revere is known to fame chiefly because of his historic ride from Boston to arouse the "minute men" on the night of April 18, 1775, before the engagement with the British at Lexington and Concord. But, aside from this notable exploit, he was an uncommonly active and versatile citizen.

He had taken part in the Boston Tea Party, and became a lieutenant-colonel during the Revolution, after serving as a lieutenant of artillery in the Crown Point expedition of 1756, during the French and Indian War.

In civil life he displayed a variety of talents which a recent biographer thinks entitles him to be known as America's first "jack of all trades." He was a goldsmith, a copper roller, a dentist, an engraver, a powder manufacturer, a maker of picture frames, a hardware merchant, and deplorable as it may seem, a seller of hard liquor.

Documents recently made public by his great-grandson include bills of lading showing that Paul Revere sold a consignment of rum at 60 cents a gal-northern white oat seed is being shipped into the South. It warns southern farmers that the sowing of these northern varieties results in low yields and grain of poor quality and urges them to sow the red oats commonly grown in the South.

The will of Mrs. J. C. Forster of Cork, Ireland, bequeathed $25,000 to her cook.

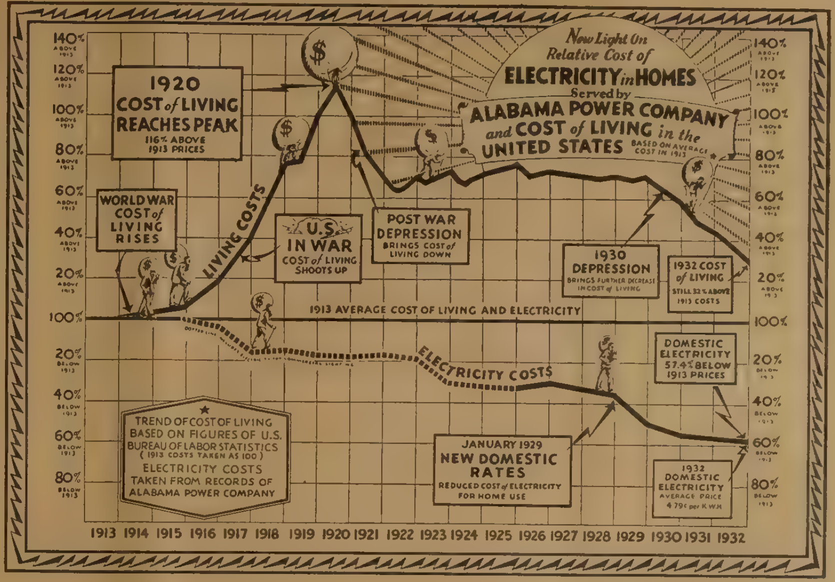
Here's the Answer to the Question:

"Why Doesn't the Cost of Electricity In Alabama Homes Come Down Like the Cost of Living?"



The Answer Is "IT HAS"

This graphic chart gives the true picture of what has been happening to both Living Costs and Costs of Electricity in Alabama since this company began its service to the people of this state, and particularly in the homes served by the Company since 1925.

It reveals these interesting and indisputable facts:

General Living Costs in the United States, despite recent reductions, are still 32% ABOVE 1913 levels.

The average cost of DOMESTIC ELECTRICITY in Alabama has steadily gone DOWNWARDS and it is now 57.4% BELOW what it was in 1913.

Alabama's average rate for home electric service has declined over 37% in the past five years alone, and is today 14% BELOW the national average.

In The Hunting Circles Of Ala.

Coon hunting is a science with Rep. R. J. "Bob" Goode of Gastonburg, president of the Alabama Coon Hunters Association.

With many sport loves, there is no other one that he gives as close study or as much attention.

"The sport of coon hunting is like any other game or sport," explained Rep. Goode. "It is necesarry that there be a fair understanding of the purposes, technique and fine points to be properly appreciated.

"The primary requisites are coons and coon hounds, given which, the sport may be pursued with that degree of satisfaction and success as the ability of the hound and the endurance of the hunter justifies.

"There is no kind of hunting in which the dog is used for pursuit of game which requires a higher degree of ability, skill and training than is demanded of the coon hound.

"To yield the maximum of sport, the hound must have the appearance of a hound; he must have a good tongue on the trail and especially at the tree; he must have the courage and endurance to take the hardest kind of going, such as briars, brush and icy water; he must have nose enough to follow the trail under the most adverse conditions, and must have sufficient experience and intelligence to fathom the wiles of the quarry so that the tree to which the final retreat is made, is accurately and correctly pointed out."

The raccoon has put up a brave fight for existence, eluding traps, dogs and guns. Few animals are more widely known or excite more popular interest than the raccoon.

Hunters are cautioned by the Alabama Game and Fisheries Department to be careful of fires. Fires not only destroy timber, but also destroy game. Forest fires are the most destructive forces faced by wild life.

The hunter should be careful to cover his campfire before leaving it, and extinguish matches and cigarets before tossing them away. Help preserve game by preventing fires.

Warden C. F. Hull of Montgomery, is a Sherlock Holmes with his ears. He can almost tell by the popping of the guns whether the game laws are being violated.

Several days ago he heard shooting a distance of 14 miles away and landed four game law violators. On another occasion shots he heard a distance of five miles away led to the arrest of four more persons for violating the game laws.

Miss Mary Foshee Weds Harris Hardy

A wedding that is of interest thruout this section took place in Clanton on Wednesday night of last week, when Miss Mary Foshee became the bride of Mr. Harris Hardy. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foshee.

The spacious living and dining rooms were thrown together for this event, and were artistically decorated with ferns, snapdragons and carnations. An improvised altar was appropriately arranged for the ceremony, which was simple and yet impressive, attended by relatives and a few friends of the couple.

The bride who was charmingly attired in pink lace, entered on the arm of the groom, approached the altar where Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist church awaited to perform the ceremony.

Mrs. Hardy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foshee, and a popular member of the young social set of Clanton. She is a graduate of the local high school.

The groom is the son of Chief of Police J. R. Hardy and one of the promising young business men of Clanton, being in business himself in Clanton.

Following the ceremony, the couple made a short wedding trip, after which they returned to Clanton where they will make their home. They have been receiving the congratulations of their many friends since their return. Mrs. Hardy has been the recipient of several social affairs in her honor.

to bring an end to the depression.

Wartime powers of the president are to be exercised to put a speedy end to the hysteria of fear that has seized some of the people of the country, and restore within a few days the normal flow of finance.

President Roosevelt in his inaugural address Saturday spoke of asking Congress "for the one remaining instrument to meet the crisis—broad executive powers to wage a war against the emergency, as great as the power that would be given to me if we were in fact invaded by a foreign foe."

The chief executive will be given this authority promptly by a Democratic-controlled Congress which Sunday he summoned to meet in extraordinary session Thursday.

New York, March 5—Banking authorities Sunday night described President Roosevelt's proclamation as a constructive move, permitting the issue of a large amount of clearing house certificates to augment currency in circulation to finance business transactions during the period of the emergency.

Some banking authorities said the suspension of gold and currency exports could be considered as "technically" removing the United States from the gold standard, but only for the period of the banking holiday terminating Thursday, although Treasury Secretary Woodin denied in Washington that the United States was off the gold standard. In any case, banking authorities in New York felt it was idle to speculate as to whether the country was on or off gold, since the measure was to be effective only for a few days.

Washington, March 5 — Secretary Woodin, in amplifying the president's proclamation, said emphatically that the United States was not off the gold standard.

"Any such interpretation upon the president's pronouncement is a grave mistake," he said, adding that it was in a state of "managed currency." In this connection he called attention to Switzerland, which he said is on the gold standard, but forbids the exportations of gold.

Washington, March 5 — President Roosevelt Sunday molded an emergency program to restore the nation's system of money exchange and called the new Congress into session for Thursday to enact it.

The promise of the president for action and his unrevealed talks with financial and government leaders brought distinct signs of relief from them. Their smiles as they left the White House portico spread to the inaugural crowds which stood about the grounds during much of the day. There was a note of optimism in the capital Sunday.

The call for the special session came from Mr. Roosevelt after he had conferred for an hour and a half with his cabinet early Sunday afternoon and later talked with congressional leaders.

Leaders Confident

In his brief proclamation he said: "An extraordinary occasion requires the Congress of the United States to convene in extra session at the Capitol in the City of Washington on the ninth day of March, 1933."

Want A Place On A Farm?

Miss Austin, the Child Welfare Worker, tells the News that since the article last week in the paper telling of boys who want places on farms, she has had a tremendous amount of places to put them.

So this week she is asking for the names of boys who want to secure a place to work on farms in the county. Boys who are interested in securing a good place on a farm are asked to call at her office on Saturdays or Mondays.

Thorsby Defeats Enterprise for Championship

The Score At The End Of The Game Was 28 To 28. The Play-Off Gave Thorsby Victory

Thorsby went home with the County Championship last Saturday when they played Enterprise in the final game. The last game was a game that didn't anyone know until the whistle blew who was going to win. At the end of the first quarter Thorsby was leading by one point, 9 and 8. At half the score was 15 and 15. Then at the end of the third quarter Enterprise was in the lead 24 to 20. And at the end of the game they tied again. After playing an extra period Thorsby gained one point when Enterprise called time out the fourth time. This being a penalty on Enterprise gave Thorsby a free shot which Bull Littleton made count.

The line up for Thorsby was: Forwards, Cleckler (8), B. Littleton (5), center, Peterson (11), guards, Nix (2), Littleton (3), sub., Lowery.

The line up for Enterprise was: Forwards, Yeargan (4), Martin; center, Broadhead (12); guards, Tucker (9), Cagle (1), Silas (2).

There were seven teams that entered: Thorsby, Enterprise, Pleasant Valley, Thomas Jr., Verbena, Mt. Pleasant and Collins Chapel.

The first game started with Pleasant Valley and Thomas Jr. Pleasant Valley won 18 to 9. The next game was Thorsby and Collins Chapel. Thorsby 37 and Collins Chapel 10. The third game was Enterprise and Verbena. Enterprise won 19 to 12. The fourth game with with Mt. Pleasant and Collins Chapel. Collins Chapel won 29 to 13. The fifth game was Enterprise and Pleasant Valley. Enterprise won 18 to 11. The sixth game was Thorsby and Collins Chapel. Thorsby won 56 to 28. The last game was Thorsby 29, Enterprise 28.

Mr. Hiten, coach of Verbena High School, called all the games except one. He certainly kept everything moving nicely and we thank him for that. The day showed a large crowd, some good basket ball games, and everyone went home with a good spirit to keep.

Strong Wind Does Damage In County

damages to buildings in the Jemison and Mt. Pleasant communities. The roofs were blown off the barns on the farms of John Cooper and Jack Robinson, near Jemison. It was reported that the roof was also blown from the home of Tom Collins, at Lomax, and unverified stories were told of two homes being blown down in the Mt. Pleasant community.

A check-up of the Central Alabama Hospital and leading county physicians' offices have failed to reveal any injuries. It was estimated in most of the communities that the velocity of the wind was between fifty and sixty miles per hour—and was only in straight hard puffs. Straight winds are said not to usually do much damage with a velocity of less than seventy-five miles per hour.

But reminicences of the winds that swept the county last Spring, killing sixty-eight persons, injuring hundreds of others and destroying thousands of dollars worth of property, will continue to fill the storm pits with each rising cloud during the spring months.

LAWRENCE EXPLAINS CREDIT TO BE GIVEN CHILDREN IN SCHOOLS HERE

Following is a statement from B. Lawrence, superintendent of education, relative to the credits to be given children in local schools:

There is much talk about the credit children are to receive in the private schools which are being operated in the county at this time. I am unable to make any definite statement at this time as to just what will be done. Everyone will readily recognize the fact that it is going to be a problem as to just what to do because some of the children are going to be ready for promotion to the next grade and most of them will have completed the first half grade. Of course our program next year will have to be built around the regular term work.

I understand that some teachers are guaranteeing that if the children are sent to them they will be promoted. This is impossible even in a regular school. I would say without hesitation that a child would have better chances for promotion in those regularly operated private schools than in some which are being operated in a private home. To illustrate what I am attempting to say I will mention one school. The Clanton community has a private school which is being operated in the school building with the same teachers who taught in the public school. They have the same equipment and the same program they operated on the first half of the year. To say that just as good work could be done in a private home where the necessary equipment is not available is the same thing as saying to a surgeon that as good operation could be performed in my home as in the hospital. It is just as necessary to have equipment to teach with as it is to do some other things.

I think now that an entrance examination will be given all pupils next fall to determine which pupils are ready for the next grade. We wish to be fair to all children and I know of no other plan at this time than to give an entrance examination. However, I am not willing to make any definite statement at this time as to just what plan will be followed but we will try to do something about it to give every child a square deal in as far as it is possible.

B. LAWRENCE,
Superintendent.

Notice To Cream Shippers

Below will be found a statement from Evan Parrish, manager of the Southern Seed & Plant Co., and operator of the Farm Bureau Cream Station in Clanton:

Conditions have come up that leave the Butter Industry without any guiding market. The Chicago Mercantile Exchange has closed and like Exchanges in other cities, so there will be no Butter Market available for the time being. As a result, no one knows what the butter made today will be sold for. This makes it absolutely necessary that we reduce our paying price for cream and effective AT ONCE we instruct you to pay 8c per pound for Butterfat, effective until further notice.

In view of the above prices and due to the fact that we are unable to get Cash from Swift & Co. to pay for cream coming in, I think it advisable to discontinue operation of cream station until further notice. I hope to resume operation within a few days and will give notice to papers.

Local Banks Open For Usual Business

ROOSEVELT IS FAST WORKING OUT SOLUTION

Banks Started Opening Over Country Last Monday By President's Order

Both Clanton banks, the First National Bank and the Peoples Savings Bank, the Bank of Maplesville and the Bank of Thorsby, were given authority by the government to open yesterday morning for regular business. This authority came after a complete check-up . . to the soundness of these banks.

The full text of the radio address of President Roosevelt made last Sunday night can be found elsewhere in this issue. Every citizen should read it carefully.

That ringing note of optimism thru President Roosevelt's address to the citizenship of the United States, Sunday night, has instilled into the minds of the people a new hope. Reckoning from accounts in the daily press, of every section of the country, his address—explaining the banking situation and the steps that have been made—and are being made—for its solution, lifted a burden from the minds of citizens throughout the Nation.

Although only one week has elapsed since the inauguration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt as the thirty-second President of these United States, the accomplishments resulting from his initiative have perhaps surpassed any period of such brief duration in the history of the Nation. A complete reorganization of the entire banking system of the country has been effected and set into motion in one brief week. But far more important to the future of the country and its civilization is the fact that a renewed hope and courage has resulted from the example set by the new President.

Under the system that has been effected, as explained by President Roosevelt in his address Sunday night, it was provided that the twelve Federal Reserve Banks should be reopened Monday. Through these banks more than $2,000,000,000 in new currency will be put into circulation—not for the purpose of just inflating currency, but to put unbankable assets, accumulated by banks over the whole country during the past few years, into operation again. The plan outlined called for other sound banks in cities where clearing houses are maintained to begin to function

Crop Loan Blanks Ready To Be Filled

County Agent Stapp started Monday morning of this week taking applications for crop production loans through both the crop production loan office at Memphis and the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation Bank at Montgomery. For this purpose Mr. Stapp will remain at his office every day for the next two or three weeks, aiding farmers in making their applications.

Mr. Stapp urges all farmers who can possibly do so to make their own individual arrangements fo[illegible] the object of the plan of the credit corporation and the crop production loan system is to help those farmers who can not obtain the necessary aid elsewhere.

PRICES SHOOT UPW'RD DURING PAST FEW DAYS

Merchants Believe That This Jump Will Prevail For Sometime

Talks among merchants in Chilton county is now buzzing about the recent sharp upturn in prices on all staple foods such as meats, flour, sugar, lard, corn, wheat and other items. This shoot upward began to show up during the past several days and has continued to a certain extent.

Statements from merchants in Clanton indicate that they are of the opinion that these new prices are here to stay for awhile, and many are very optimistic over the sudden change, which was evident shortly after President Roosevelt took office.

Prices on some of these items took such a skyward jump that it was astonishing. While at this time, retail prices are still low on goods that are already in stock in stores, before the rise came, it is very evident that new goods will bring with them, the higher prices.

The daily newspapers are giving data every day in regard to the upward trend of prices on staple goods and the wise person will make purchases now as large as possible on necessary food items, while the low prices are still prevailing in local stores.

New Standard Chevrolet Six Which Is On Display Here Is Attracting Attention

One of the latest models in automobiles is being shown here on the showrooms of the Polk Brothers Motor Co., Inc. It is the new Chevrolet Standard Six, a product of General Motors, and is priced considerably lower than the larger six.

The new "Standard Six" is built for business use and for that group of private owners who want a car without the deluxe features and extra long wheelbase of the present Chevrolet Master Six, according to Polk Bros. They emphasized that the new line would offer the lowest-priced, full-size, six-cylinder enclosed models the industry has yet seen—and would be ideal for severe utility use.

A new and slightly smaller Chevrolet has been rumored in trade circles periodically since April of 1932, a circumstance which was attributed to the fact that the new line of cars has been under development for two years. It will be a quality line throughout, machined to the same close limits as the present Chevrolet and built of the same raw materials, although it will have a slightly shorter wheelbase and will lack some of the features and improvements of the present Master Six line.

EDITORIAL

Throughout the nation a deep and sincere feeling of confidence is showing plainly like so much encouragement for President Roosevelt in his most heroic efforts to bring this country of ours back to a sound basis after having been unmercifully handled with its treasury drained.

The News is extremely jubilant over the expressions of confidence heard in this county. The interest of our people today is centered on our banks, and rightly so, beacuse our banks are the backbone of the country surrounding them. President Roosevelt in his message last Sunday night over the air, told in a brief way, of the system he is using to help his people. We urge every citizen of this county to read carefully the President's message in this issue.

The officials of the banks in Chilton county have been eagerly awaiting orders from the government to open their doors and start business. This order came Wednesday morning when their doors swung open to do business again. They have been thoroughly examined by the State and National authorities and found worthy of the confidence and trust of the people. There need be no doubt in anyone's mind. Our banks are good banks, and fully capable of handling all legitimate business transactions.

Reports from all sections of the country where banks have reopened, bring cheery indications that we are back on the right track. People are bringing their money to the banks instead of doing the opposite which would be most unnecessary. The President stated no bank would open unless it was safe for the people's money. That alone is assurance enough for any thinking citizen.

Hoarders of gold and other money have been warned that this practice must be stopped, and this hoarded money be brought back and placed in banks. This warning from the government has already brought back into use millions of heretofore idle dollars, and is enabling the government to issue new currency for distribution to the people.

Whether there is hoarded money in this county, we are hesitant to say, but we will say that every dollar that is being buried, tucked in the mattress or other places must be brought out and put into use, in order that the wheels of progress will turn faster.

We call on every citizen of Chilton county to make it his or her duty to give all cooperation possible to this end, so that our county will be ranking among those doing their duty toward aiding our country.

KIWANIS CLUB IS BRINGING PICTURE HERE

"Smiling Through" Is Main Attraction At Local Theatre Soon

A picture that will come at the most opportune time to be presented to the people of this section is "Smiling Through," listed as one of the best all-talking motion pictures of the season.

"Smiling Through" will be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton on Wednesday and Thursday nights, March 22 and 23, and is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton. Norma Shearer, one of the screen's most beautiful women, takes the leading part in this big picture hit.

Several members of the Kiwanis Club have seen this picture and it was unanimously decided to bring it to Clanton and give the theatre-goers here an opportunity to see it. It is truly a picture worth seeing, a picture worth bringing the children to see, and especially will grown folks enjoy it. It is very touching throughout, leaving one to wonder from where it derived its title, and yet it will leave one in a clearer frame of mind, touching the heart strings of all.

Proceeds that go to the Kiwanis Club are to be used to continue the work of this organization in Chilton county. In connection with "Smiling Through" next Wednesday and Thursday nights, there will be short subjects on the screen.

COUNTY AGENT CALLS ATTENTION TO PERMANENT PASTURES

Mr. Stapp states that every farmer should have a good permanent pasture. Mr. Stapp does not mean a thicket with three strands of barbed wire around it, but some low land cleaned off so the sun can shine on the ground. After the land is cleaned off Mr. Stapp points out the fact that the ground should be seeded to Dallis grass, carpet grass and lespedeza. Mr. Stapp states that it is now time to sow pasture grass seed and that farmers who haven't already talked to him or some of the farmers of the county who have good pastures should attend to this important matter at an early date

Mr. Stapp advises us that he will be in his office practically every day and night for the next month helping farmers make applications for money for crop production, but that he will be glad to talk over any farm problems with those who may call at the office.

Several of the stores in Clanton declined to accept it, it is understood, while many were taking it in as if it was cash. The scrip is redeemable at the mill office as soon as the banks are opened.

The President's Radio Address

Those who were fortunate enough to hear the address by President Roosevelt last Sunday night over the radio, now have a full view of the plans and workings of this Democratic leader to cure the economic ills of our country.

The President's address was short, and yet it left no doubt in anyone's mind as to how the reopening of our banks would be done, and why the banks were closed by his order. The whole thing seems to be a matter of stopping for awhile and getting a new start, a fresh start on a much sounder basis and assuring the people of safety in banks hereafter.

People have been crying for something to be done. It is being done, and while it might have hurt for several days, it had to be done in order to put our people back on their feet and on the road to business recovery. The News has the utmost confidence in the actions of our Democratic leader. We have no fear of anything going wrong through the workings of the President. His record as Governor of New York, the record that made him President, is enough to satisfy us that he knows what he is doing and that it is to the best interest of every person in the United States, even down to the farmer and the little man. We all will do well to stand by our President, give him all the encouragement and cooperation possible. It is as he said Sunday night, "* * * friends, it is your problem as well as mine, and we must solve it together."

Chilton's County Administration

The News has been beseiged for comments on the actions of the commissioners of the county since the two new members, Mr. Duke and Mr. Atchison, went into office.

These two men with their colleagues, Mr. Mims and Mr Cobb, are all citizens of our county, elected by the people to serve the people to their best interest. The News has no comment to make on recent actions of the court. Their actions during the past weeks have been eventful and fruitful. so we understand. If these men can work in harmony, overcome obstacles, refuse to be bluffed or intimidated, save money for our county and keep in mind the interest of the people who elected them, then we will congratulate them, while at the same time we do not affiliate ourselves with their political beliefs. If they deserve credit, the News is broad enough to recognize it.

Shame On Disloyal Democrats

The Congress, composed largely of Democrats, is showing every indication of giving its cooperation to President Roosevelt and his measures to effect economies and give the national treasury more income. But, regretting it as much as we do, we will have to say we are somewhat disappointed, and might go so far as to say ashamed of, actions of some of the Democratic congressmen, and especially from Alabama

In the President's measure to cut veterans' compensations, which has been something of a drain on our nation's treasury, one Democratic congressman, Lamar Jeffers saw fit to bring criticism upon himself by voting against the measure. Mr. Jeffers is not the congressman from this district, but has served as such in the past. We learned that he had been to the World War and is drawing government compensation himself, and his marked refusal to endorse this bill to reduce compensations causes us to cast an inquisitive look on his judgment, which we have usually never questioned. While the bill passed, we do not understand just why Congressman Jeffers took this stand against the president and his plans for curing the nation's economic ills. It is inexcusable.

We note with pleasure that our Congressman, W. B. Oliver, who was traded to us for Jeffers, takes his stand and is going down the line with the majority of the Democrats in their fight in behalf of the interest of the people of our country. Congressman Oliver is seeking no outstanding publicity, but is staying with the guns and showing his true statesmanship, sticking with the Alabama delegation to give the president all aid possible. We are proud to know that the congressman from our district is shooting square with his people.

Facts About Fire

During 1931 fire destroyed approximately 10,000 lives.

Nearly one-third of these were children under ten years of age.

Two-thirds of the total were burned to death in homes.

The total economic loss was $464,633,265.

In order to visualize these facts, compare them with the following:

The annual fire bill is about equal to 75 per cent of the interest on our national debt.

The new excise and miscellaneous taxes recently imposed on us will produce, in a year, very little more than the annual fire bill.

Over 80 per cent of all fires are easily preventable.

Fire is the great destroyer—not only of lives and property, but of employment, business opportunities, community and industrial progress. Of every hundred industrial establishments burned in the last five years, 43 were not rebuilt. The waste was complete and absolute.

The conquest of fire is simply the conquest of public ignorance, laxness and indifference. Each of us owes the community a duty—to eliminate the hazards on our property. We cannot afford the "luxury" of a fire.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Now that President Roosevelt, that real Democratic leader of the nation, has made it plain as to how he is working this business of banks, I am all pepped up and ready to go forward. That man has really got the goods on working government to the interest of his people, and there's one thing about it that looks awfully good. It is the fact that he has in mind the little fellow, which class includes you and me. In fact I believe he is thinking more of the little man than he is of the big one. You see he used to be a little fellow, working hard and trying to get along, and knows how it feels.

But all's well now and we are on the road to recovery. When a bank opens you can rest assured that the bank is sound as the Rock of Gibraltar or something. Mr. Roosevelt said they would not let a bank open unless that bank is worthy of doing business. He also said that when a bank opened now, it would have enough cash to pay every depositor if it was necessary, but asked the people not to be afraid of any bank that would open soon. It is his idea to make banks safer for the people, stop this bank failure business, and create stronger and safe banks. Now you ask, "That maybe a good idea, but will it work?" Well, our answer to that is simply this, it is a good idea and it is working, so don't worry. Better times are coming.

Seems to me like that when this bank scare gets over, our banks ought to loosen up a bit and lend some money so that the wheels of progress can keep well oiled and moving. If the bankers do the right thing by sound business concerns, they will loosen up a bit now, instead of hoarding.

Heard a fellow say the other day that the banks are going to reopen and ruin a lot of us. He meant that most of us have been getting by fine since the banks were closed. We didn't have to pay any bills, notes or anything. But now when the banks open, we won't have any excuse for not paying them. Yes, it might not be so good for some fellows, when the banks are all open.

* * *

What is this I hear about a certain lawyer who is between the devil and the deep blue sea? Seems that he has kind of got his business in a jam, or something. In other words, has two jobs and they won't fit any too good. One seems to be representing a group of men and the other job is pushing a case against them. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, but it looks like he has two in the hand and don't know which one to turn loose. And now I hear that someone proposes to divide the job of county attorney between three lawyers. The job pays only fifty dollars per month.

It seems that another one of the political tricks of one well known and heretofore strong politcian, has come to light and been disclosed to the public. So far, this stunt hasn't worked and may people are doubting it will ever work like it was originally planned. Here's the story:

Four office holders don't act like this politician wants them to do, so a committee is organized to investigate whether or not these office holders should be in office according to the law. This committee was organized in the offices of a Republican lawyer, with Republicans taking the lead in organizing it. It was pointed out by these Republicans that it would look better for a Democrat or Democrats to push the idea, so a Democrat was made chairman. Later this Democrat resigned as chairman which threw a monkey wrench into the play house, causing said play house to become somewhat dismantled for a time.

Now, whether said political play house is being rebuilt from the scraps is not known to me, but the latest inside dope I have on it, is that it is rumored that someone has approached one or more of the commissioners, and is reported to have agreed to drop this investigation provided a certain Republican lawyer is reinstated as county attorney, pro his bono, or something. Now that puts the commissioners in a bad spot, so to speak. So it looks like that if they reinstate the attorney, they will bring on their heads the criticism of the people, and if they don't reinstate him, they might be investigated or something by the fellows who might have reason to be kind of sore about something or other. The question seems to be now—can the commissioners stand to be investigated, or had they rather have the criticism of the people. My, but that is rather a hot spot to be in, ain't it. I'm standing by to see what is going to happen.

I understand that the editor has a new nephew who was born Tuesday night of last week in Birmingham, the son of the oldest brother of the editor. The new nephew is named Paul Clifford Smith, III. The ed went up there last week to see about the youngster and appears highly pleased with the outcome.

Horse shoe pitching is taking the day in Clanton. For the past several days, the vacant lot adjoining the Dixie Cafe has been crowded with pitchers and spectators. Whether this was merely to pass off time during the bank holidays, is not known, but I did see some of our bankers and prominent merchants up there taking a great deal of interest in the games.

Does anybody know the answer to the question, "Why did Harrison Smith resign as chairman of the investigating committee?" Harrison is a Democrat and probably didn't want to get mixed up in something that belonged to some other party.

Perhaps those who are asking that question should have took advantage of the presence of the man at the theatre last week who was so good at answering questions.

I might mention that the Mystic man at the theatre last week said that sometime beween August 10th and 15th, there would be a very serious fire in Clanton. I don't believe in such predictions, but will make a note of that, anyway. What about you.

* * *

The day I am writing this column is not today—that is it is not Thursday. But, today, when you read this column there is supposed to be several hundred 4-H Club boys of the county having a good time in Clanton. I'm for these boys and their work.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was walking along in front of a grocery store and saw the owner unpacking a box of goods. He was piling the cans high in the arms of his little boy. I remarked to the lad, "Son, it seems to me that you are being overloaded." The little fellow smiled into my face saying, "Daddy knows how much I can carry." The faith of that little boy in his father was beautiful. He knew that his father would not pile into his arms more than he could carry. I have often wondered if we have that much faith in our Father in heaven. I fear that we observe the load that is piled into our arms, and that we begin to complain long before our arms are full. Let me assure you that God knows how much you can carry, and He is not going to over load you. He will not pile burdens upon you that you can not carry.

My boat was gliding along among water lilies. All about me there were large leaves resting on the surface of the water, while in every direction I could see the open lily buds. The water was clear beneath the boat and far down in the water below I saw stems that were reaching upward. On the end of those stems there were balls, and I knew that they were other lily bulbs struggling up from the darkness below that they too might bloom in the glory of a Spring morning. What a picture of human life. In the business. the social and the political world we see men and women who have reached their glory. They are now blooming in a beautiful world. and they are making it more beautiful because they are blooming, but soon they will fade away and be no more. In our schools and colleges we see other lives struggling upward that they may bloom also. Some day they will reach their zenith, and then they will bloom only to die. Only those who struggle upward through the darkness will ever be able to bloom in the light.

I was making a pastoral call and while waiting at the front door I observed a little box attached to the wall. It was a weather-forecast of some kind. Suspended in the box were two forms—one dressed like a soldier, the other dressed like a witch. The instructions that I read on the box informed me that if the sun was going to shine that the soldier would come out of the box and the witch would scurry back into the dark, but if it was going to be a dark, stormy day the witch would come out, and the soldier would hide. It occurred to me that the little box was not only a prophet of the weather, but that it was also a prophet of the way the religious life of that home acted. I knew that the family acted just as the soldier boy. When the sun was shining and the day was beautiful they came to church, but when the weather was cold or gloomy they hid away in their own rooms. I started to write this sentence on the box, "The weather and the religious forecast of this home," but the front door opened and I failed to write what should have been written.

I saw a cluster of men standing around the counter of a country store. They were testing out a fifty-cent coin. It looked like a coin of real value, but it had no ring. They would toss it into the air and let it fall on the counter, but no silver ring could be heard. After much investigation it was found to be genuine money, but somehow the coin had been cracked. It had the stamp of value on its face but the crack had taken the ring out of the coin. Many a human life has the appearance of real value, but somehow they fail to have the right ring. I have seen them singing in the choir, working on the official board, teaching a Sunday school class, and yet the crack that was known to be in their lives, would discredit them as Christians of real value. We can never be too careful in our efforts to keep sin from cracking our character. It takes a life time to live down the thing that we did in less than an hours time. Any church is under a curse when it has a company of "Cracked Coins" as leaders.

The last year of my college course I spent much time in the study of the Sciences. We had many interesting things to observe. Among them was the tests made by electricity. One day we placed a student in a chair and placed the chair on a glass table. He was given a wire in his hnd and the the current was turned on. The electricity poured into his body until he was on fire with an invisible flame and every hair on his head stood on ends. He had enough volts in his body to have shattered his nerves and muscles and killed him instantly, but he was unharmed. The cause was that glass is a non-conductor and he had no connection with the world. He could receive the current because there was no contact. The Divine command is "Come out from among them and be ye separate saith the Lord." In other words, the Christian church should be clear of the world. When we have no contact with the world, then the Holy Spirit can come into our organization and fill us with power. Sin has "Short-Circuited" the church, and we have lost our power. When we do away with the world in the church then we can be set in fire with an invisible flame and every member will stand at attention to hear and know the commands of God. It is the worldly contacts that drain the church of her needed power.

Text Of Roosevelt's Speech On The Banking Situation

The text of President Roosevelt's address Sunday night follows:

I want to talk for a few minutes with the people of the United States about banking—with the comparatively few who understand the mechanics of banking but more particularly with the overwhelming majority who use banks for the making of deposits and the drawing of checks. I want to tell you what has been done in the last few days, why it was done, and what the next steps are going to be. I recognize that the many proclamations from state capitols and from Washington, the legislation, the treasury regulations, etc. couched for the most part in banking and legal terms should be explained for the benefit of the average citizen.

I owe this in particular because of the fortitude and good temper with which everybody has accepted the inconvenience and hardships of the banking holiday. I know that when you understand what we in Washington have been about I shall continue to have your cooperation as fully as I have had your sympathy and help during the past week.

First of all let me state the simple fact that when you deposit money in a bank the bank does not put the money into a safe deposit vault. It invests your money in many different forms of credit—bonds, commercial paper, mortgages and many other kinds of loans. In other words, the bank puts your money to work to keep the wheels of industry turning around. A comparatively small part of the money you put into the bank is kept in currency—an amount which in normal times is wholly sufficient to cover the cash needs of the average citizen. In other words, the total amount of all the currency in the country is only a small fraction of the total deposits in all of the banks.

Undermined Confidence

What, then, happened during the last few days of February and the first few days of March? Because of undermined confidence on the part of the public, there was a general rush by a large portion of our population to turn bank deposits into currency or gold—a rush so great that the soundest banks could not get enough currency to meet the demand. The reason for this was that on the spur of the moment it was, of course, impossible to sell perfectly sound assets of a bank and convert them into cash except at panic prices far below their real value.

By the afternoon of March 3 scarcely a bank in the country was open to do business. Proclamations temporarily closing them in whole or in part had been issued by the governors in almost all the states.

It was then that I issued the proclamation providing for the nation-wide bank holiday, and this was the first step in the government's reconstruction of our financial and economic fabric.

The second step was the legislation promptly and patriotically passed by the Congress confirming my proclamation and broadening my powers so that it became possible in view of the requirement of time to extend the holiday and lift the ban of that holiday gradually. This law also gave authority to develop a program of rehabilitation of our banking facilities. I want to tell our citizens in every part of the nation that the National Congress—Republicans and Democrats alike—showed by this action a devotion to public welfare and a realization of the emergency and the necessity for speed that it is difficult to match in our history.

Series of Regulations

The third stage has been the series of regulations permitting the banks to continue their functions to take care of the distribution of food and household necessities and the payment of pay rolls.

This bank holiday while resulting in many cases in great inconvenience is affording us the opportunity to supply the currency necessary to meet the situation. No sound bank is a dollar worse off than it was when it closed its doors last Monday. Neither is any bank which may turn out not to be in a position for immediate opening. The new law allows the 12 Federal Reserve banks to issue additional currency on good assets and thus the banks which reopen will be able to meet every legitimate call. The new currency is being sent out by the bureau of engraving and printing in large volume to every part of the country. It is sound currency because it is backed by actual good assets.

A question you will ask is this—why are all the banks not to be reopened at the same time? The answer is simple. Your government does not intend that the history of the past few years shall be repeated. We do not want and will not have another epidemic of bank failures.

Opening of Banks

As a result we start Monday with the opening of banks in the 12 Federal Reserve bank cities—those banks which on first examination by the treasury have already been found to be all right. This will be followed on Tuesday by the resumption of all their functions by banks already found to be sound in cities where there are recognized clearing houses. That means about 250 cities of the United States.

On Wednesday and succeeding days banks in smaller places all through the country will resume business, subject of course, to the government's physical ability to complete its survey. It is necessary that the reopening of banks be extended over a period in order to permit the banks to make applications for necessary loans, to obtain currency needed to meet their requirements and to enable the government to make common sense check-ups.

Let me make it clear to you that if your bank does not open the first day you are by no means justified in believing that it will not open. A bank that opens on one of the subsequent days is in exactly the same status as the bank that opens Monday.

I know that many people are worrying about state banks not members of the Federal Reserve System. These banks can and will receive assistance from member banks and from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. These state banks are following the same course as the national banks except that they get their licenses to resume business from the state authorities and these authorities have been asked by the secretary of the treasury to permit their good banks to open up on the same schedule as the national banks. I am confident that the state banking departments will be as careful as the national government in the policy relating to the opening of banks and will follow the same broad policy.

It is possible that when the banks resume a very few people who have not recovered from their fear may again begin withdrawals. Let me make it clear that the banks will take care of all needs — and it is my belief that hoarding during the past week has become an exceedingly unfashionable pastime. It needs no prophet to tell you that when the people find that they can get it when they want it for all legitimate purposes—the phantom of fear will soon be laid. People will again be glad to have their money where it will be safely taken care of and where they can use it conveniently at any time. I can assure you that it is safer to keep your money in a reopened bank than under the mattress.

The success of our whole great national program depends, of course, upon the cooperation of the public—on its intelligent support and use of a reliable system.

Convert Assets

Remember that the essential accomplishment of the new legislation is that it makes it possible for banks more readily to convert their assets into cash than was the case before. More liberal provision had been made for banks to borrow on these assets at the reserve banks and more liberal provision has also been made for issuing currency on the security of these good assets. This currency is not fiat currency. It is issued only on adequate security—and every good bank has an abundance of such security.

One more point before I close. There will be, of course, some banks unable to reopen without being reorganized. The new law allows the government to assist in making these reorganizations quickly and effectively and even allows the government to subscribe to at least a part of new capital which may be required.

I hope you can see from this elemental recital of what your government is doing that there is nothing complex, or radical in the process.

Bad Situation

We had a bad banking situation. Some of our bankers had shown themselves either incompetent or dishonest in their handling of the people's funds. They had used the money entrusted to them in speculations and unwise loans. This was, of course, not true in the vast majority of our banks but it was true in enough of them to shock the people for a time into a sense of insecurity and to put them into a frame of mind where they did not differentiate, but seemed to assume that the acts of a comparative few had tainted them all. It was the government's job to straighten out this situation and do it as quickly as possible—and the job is being performed.

I do not promise you that every bank will be reopened or that individual losses will not be suffered, but there will be no losses that possibly could be avoided; and there would have been more and greater losses had we continued to drift. I can even promise you salvation for some at least of the sorely pressed banks. We shall be engaged not merely in reopening banks but in the creation of sound banks through reorganization.

It has been wonderful to me to catch the note of confidence from all over the country. I can never be sufficiently grateful to the people for the loyal support they have given me in their acceptance of the judgment that has dictated our course, even though all our processes may not have seemed clear to them.

Confidence Urged

After all there is an element in the readjustment of our financial system more important than currency, more important than gold, and that is the confidence of the people. Confidence and courage are the essentials of success in carrying out our plan. You people must have faith; you must not be stampeded by rumors or guesses. Let us unite in banishing fear. We have provided the machinery to restore our financial system; it is up to you to support and make it work.

It is your problem no less than it is mine. Together we can not fail.

LOCAL INSPECTOR READY TO HELP FARMERS APPLY FOR CROP LOANS

Regulations for 1933 governing crop production loans have been issued by the Secretary of Agriculture and are now available to farmers in this county upon request to U. H. Prickett, Field Inspector of the Crop Production Loan Office. Mr. Prickett's office is in the County Agent's office, Clanton, Ala.

Instead of writing to Washington or to one of the regional loan offices, Mr. Prickett announced, farmers can obtain the necessary application blanks for loans, and detailed information about the requirements, direct from him. Applications will then be reviewed by the county advisory committee, then certified and forwarded to the regional office at Memphis, Tenn., for final approval and action.

The regulations this year specify that only those who cannot get loans elsewhere are eligible for loans from the $90,000,000 fund authorized by Congress. Loans can be used only for crop production, and require the borrower to reduce his acreage of cash crops 30 per cent under last year, unless he does not intend to plant more than 8 acres of cotton, 2½ acres of tobacco, 8 acres of peanuts, 20 acres of corn, 12 acres of sugar beets, 2½ acres of truck crops, 8 acres of potatoes, 30 acres of rice, or 40 acres of wheat

The maximum permitted to any one borrower this year is $300; or, in the case of tenants, the total of all loans to tenants of any one landlord within a single county cannot exceed $1200. The actual amount advanced by the authorities will depend upon the borrower's requirements. A first lien or mortgage on the crop will be required. The regulations require that loans be repaid on or before October 31, 1933. Interest at 5½ per cent, deducted in advance, will be charged.

Since the loans call for a first lien on the crop as security, the borrower frequently has to procure waivers from prior mortgages or rights. If the applicant is a tenant, or is farming land under contract for deed or so-called crop contract, or has given a prior mortgage on his 1933 crops, the regulations state he must secure the waivers of the actual owners of the land, and—or all prior mortgage holders. If the applican is the owner of the land and farms it with tenants or share croppers, waivers of such tenants or share croppers must be secured. The regulations further specify that the person waiving his prior rights must agree not to dispose of his rent note, mortgage, or other security without first having obtained the written consent of a duly authorized agent of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The regulations make it unlawful for any person to dispose of or assist in disposing of any crops given as security for any crop loan, except for the account of the Secretary of Agriculture and provide for fine and imprisonment for violation of such regulatian. The regulations also require that each borrower agree to plant a garden for his home use and sufficient acreage to furnish feed for his livestock

To Our Friends and Customers

Acting under license granted by the Alabama State Banking Department, The Peoples Savings Bank is again open for regular business.

This most unusual emergency has necessarily created serious hardships. Officers and directors of this bank wish to express appreciation for the patience and wholehearted co-operated shown by their many friends and customers during the national moratorium called by the President of the United States.

We have now passed through the most severe financial emergency ever confronting the people of America, and only the highest praise is due the residents of Chilton County for the courageous and patriotic way in which they met it.

EXPERT LAUDS WEEKLIES

One of the highest compliments ever paid the weekly newspapers of the country comes from James O'Shaughnessy, formerly executive secretary of Advertising Agencies, who declared in a Boston address that "country weeklies are the cornerstone of American journalism."

"The weekly in a small town talks to its readers more intimately and confidentially than any other medium," Mr. O'Shaughnessy said.

Such a tribute from one of America's leading advertising authorities is gratifying to the thousands of country publishers, many of wnom are struggling under adverse conditions to faithfully serve their communities.

It should also impress town and small city merchants with the fact that the weekly newspaper offers the most effective medium for placing his store message before the people upon whom he must depend for his business existence.

Miss EDITH JOHNSON, Correspondent

Another of Thorsby's early settlers, Mr. John A. Lindquist passed away last Sunday, March 12, at the County Alms House, after being there six days. Mr. Lindquist was buried at the Lutheran Cemetery Monday afternoon, with Rev. J. E. Each in charge of the funeral services.

How Cardui Helps Women

"Mal-nutrition" means that your body is not getting enough to keep it up, so that what it has to do is not done well. You may not be eating enough to keep up the work of the body, or there may be something wrong that keeps you from getting full value from the food you eat.

Because of mal-nutrition, some women have aches and pains every month. Such pains should not be neglected.

Take Cardui to give you a better appetite, to give you more strength from the food you eat — to build up and increase your feeling of well-being. Aches and pains go away as you build up with the help of Cardui.

Jemison Basket Ball Boys Entertained

The boys basket ball team of Jemison High School was entertained with a banquet by the school in the Home Economics Department Wednesday night.

The tables were beautifully decorated with school colors, black and gold streamers and center pieces of yellow butter cups. The meal was prepared and served by the students of the Home Economics Department.

Mr. J. A. Peterson gave an inspiring toast to the team and coach. Mr. J. T. Cobb, captain of the team, responded in a most grateful manner. Miss Mabel Grissom of the music department rendered several selection on the piano. This was followed by a clever reading by Miss Margaret Turnbloom. The young ladies of the party were asked to write words of encouragement in telegram form to the team. The young men replied to these missives. Two surprise quartets were rendered.

In addition to the team the following were guests: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Zane Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Seamore Reynolds, Mr. J. P. Montgomery, Miss Miriam Harvey, Mr. J. A. Ekblad, Miss Mabel Grissom, Mr. Bob Reynolds, Miss Vonzelle Atkinson, Miss Marion Adams, Miss Josephine Adams, Miss Charles Frances Glass.

The meal was efficiently served by the following girls: Misses Margaret Turnbloom, Ruth Glass, Virginia Price, Mary Allison Sims, Winnie Bee Davis and Gladys Cobb.

Now the mysterious Mr. Bullitt admits he isn't the big shot he was thought to be.

Give your Order to any Telephone worker

. . . . IT is easy to have telephone service in your home. And it is not necessary to visit the Telephone Office to arrange for the installation.

You probably have a friend, perhaps a neighbor, who is a telephone worker. You need not hesitate to talk with him about your telephone requirements. After all, he and the many other men and women like him compose what is known as the Telephone Company.

Remember that telephone service costs only a few cents a day; a small sum compared to the convenience and protection it offers to every member of your family.

Any telephone worker—operator, lineman, clerk or other employe, will quote rates and give you information about the service. They will be glad to take your order, too. Talk it over with your telephone friend today.

It Takes More Than Salts, Calomel, Mineral Waters, Oils, or Laxative Pills to Arouse a Sluggish Liver

They Give Only Temporary Relief From Constipation and Biliousness, Because They Have No Effect Whatever on the Liver or Its Production of Bile

Bile is nature's own laxative and your stomach and bowels require at least one quart of fresh bile every day to keep them clean, pure, free from fermentation, putrefaction, gas and disease germs.

When your liver becomes torpid or sluggish the bile stagnates and stops flowing freely. The contents of your bowels become the breeding place for germs and poisons; your food does not digest—it just ferments and decays in the bowels. The blood absorbs these poisons and you suffer from constipation, gas, sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness and sour stomach.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills will remove the cause of this condition and purify your entire system in nature's way. They are not like any other medicine you have ever taken. They are so gentle, thorough and natural in their action that there is nothing about them to remind you that you have ever taken a medicine, and most remarkable of all you gradually reduce the dose until you no longer require a laxative at all.

Five years ago it was generally believed that calomel and laxative drugs stimulated the liver, but modern science has proved that calomel, salts, mineral waters, oils and other laxatives have no effect whatever on the liver.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills act directly on the liver because they contain two amazing substances which highest medical authorities agree are the only effective stimulants to the bile-producng activity of the liver known to modern science. These substances stimulate and invigorate the liver to cleanse and purify itself through increasing its production of bile. This fresh bile immediately starts to work neutralizing acids and poisons, stopping fermentation and decay, cleansing and purifying the bowels and sweeping out accumulated poisons.

Unless you have tried Sargon Soft Mass Pills you can have no idea of the effects produced by this natural cleansing of your liver and bowels. It makes you feel years younger, stronger, healthier and happier. It brings back life and color to faded eyes and cheeks, restores the appetite and sound digestion—gives you a new outlook on life itself.

Insist on genuine Sargon Soft Mass Pills. Don't be misled. There are only two known substances which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them.

Only 60c for a full 30-day treatment. At your druggist, or write G. F. Willis, Inc., Atlanta, Ga.

BEN MARGOLIS OPENS NEW STORE WITH A LARGER STOCK OF GOODS

Modern Appearance Of Store Adds To Clanton; Is Named "Ben's"

One of the most modern shoe and ready-to-wear stores in Clanton has recently opened on main street in a building properly arranged to suit every need of such a store.

This store is not exactly a new place of business, and yet it is quite new to the people of this section. The reason it is not exactly a new place of business is because it is an expansion of the place formerly known as the Sample Shoe Store and has as its proprietor Mr. Ben Margolis, who also operated the Sample Shoe Store. It is new because Mr. Margolis has added greatly to the line of goods handled and because it occupies one of the most up-to-date equipped stores in town with many new fixtures and features.

BEN MARGOLIS

The new name of this store will be "Ben's" and appropriately named, due to the popularity of its owner, who is one of Clanton's prominent young business men. Mr. Margolis is to be congratulated on the step of enlarging his stock and spreading out, having first opened business in Clanton in a place less than half the size of his new location, and with a stock of goods even smaller than that.

Connected with Mr. Margolis and having charge of the millinery and dress making depts., are Mrs. Clara Mullins and Mrs. Ludie Lenoir. Mrs. Mullins is widely known for her experience as a milliner and an authority on dresses and ladies wearing apparel. Mrs. Lenoir will take care of the dress making department, and her services as a dressmaker are sought by many who are famaliar with her work. These well known ladies invite their friends in to see them at "Ben's".

"Ben's" will carry a new and complete stock of dry goods and notions catering of course to the wants of the ladies and young ladies, featuring shoes, hose, dresses, hats and dress material. A most attractive front has been placed in the building, which adds greatly to the appearance of main street. "Ben's" is located in the building formerly occupied by Jesse Baker's store. The News congratulates Mr. Margolis on this progressive step.

Alabama now has 413,000 dairy cows. This is an increase of 6 per cent over the number we had in 1932.

A delicious honey spread can be made by combining 40 per cent honey with 60 per cent heavy sweet cream testing 70 to 75 per cent.

Corn 60 per cent, wheat shorts 30 per cent, tankage 10 per cent, is an excellent grain mixture for brood sows with litters.

If you need additional information on pork production write to Alabama Extension Service, Auburn, Ala., for Circular 101, "Pork Production in Alabama." This publication is distributed free.

Remember that each pig farrowed dead costs 140 pounds of feed while a pig dying at any time from farrowing until weaning represents a loss of 1¾ pounds of feed for each day it lived.

Milk should not be used for 15 days before calving and for 5 days after calving, or such longer period as may be necessary to render the milk practically free of colostrum.

The five essential factors for economical pork production are (1) well-bred hogs, (2) large litters, (3) proper management, (4) plenty of well-balanced home-grown feed, and (5) a succession of pasture crops.

When Thomas Paizon was arrested in Chicago he had two revolvers in his pockets and fifteen more in a small suitcase.

Arrested for watering milk, Samuel White of Chicago pleaded that his cows had failed to produce the supply his customers needed.

INK DROPS FROM C. C. H. S.

According to the result of the debate in chapel last Wednesday men of action are more beneficial to mankind than me of thought. The question, Resolved That Men of Thought Are More Beneficial to Mankind Than Men of Action, was a fifty-fifty question; but the negative side presented by Dixie Johnson and Helen Roberts of the Senior I Class won the decision of the judges, Miss Josephine Martin, Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin and Mr. Walker.

It seemed as if the days of the Wild West with their whoopin' cowboys and painted redskins were revived here Friday. But there was no cause for any alarm whatsoever, because the four painted students with their grotesque decorations were only the new members that the Science Club was initiating. Very interesting and lengthy speeches were made in chapel by these Baby Utopians. The four students thus honored by a membership in the Science Club were Roberta Cochran, Helen Moore, Frances Rasberry and Virgil Robinson.

Last Thursday afternoon a very educational and interesting trip was made by the Junior Two and the Senior One Agriculture Classes under the direction of Coach Walker. These fifteen boys motored to the Kilby Prison Dairy Farm near Kilby Prison. This is a model dairy and the most complete and sanitary in Alabama. Here the boys saw the modern methods of dairying and stock raising. A descriptive account was given of this trip by several members of the party at chapel period Monday of this week. The outline of the program as presented was: Sanitation, Kelly Gillespie; Milking Time, Bill Hodges; The Feed, Earl Gray; Training the Cows, John Thomas Marlar; The Hogs, Wade Alford; The Trip, Phillip Nelson. This trip was arranged by Coach Walker so that the boys could get a concrete example of this phase of agriculture. The students going on this trip were John Thomas Marlar, Wade Alford, Sidney Reynolds, Owen Deal, Irby Wood, Earl Gray, Kelly Gillespie, Phillip Nelson, Bill Hodges, Horace Vinson, Ted Reynolds, Crayton Taylor, Rollie Sharp, Julius Martin, and Searcy Martin and Mr. Walker.

The school is proud of the fact that Omar Reynolds, Buster Foshee and Dewey Rockett are among its list graduates. Mr. Reynolds was graduated from C. C. H. S. in 1916 with high honors. He ranked highest in the studies of Civics, Chemistry, Latin, History and Economics.

Mr. Foshee was the Valedictorian of the graduating class of 1928. His records show that he received high grades in all his studies, making the highest in Bookkeeping, English, Economics, Geometry and History. The fact that he was the valedictorian speaks well of his academic abilities. Mr. Foshee received his B. A. degree from the University of Alabama and is now the junior partner of the law firm of Atkinson and Foshee.

Dewey Rockett, one of Clanton's leading merchants and business men, was a graduate of this school of 1917. He finished with high marks in Chemistry and English. He was secretary of his class, captain of the baseball tea President of the Websterian Soci and a member of the varsity football team. The following is copied verbatum from the annual published by the school in 1917:

"Rockett" is very fond of the ladies and likes to argue. He is very good natured and always wears a smile. He is also very independent."

PRINT DEVICE INVENTED BY MAN OF SELMA

Machine Will Print Merchants' Name On Wrapping Paper As It Is Used

The following clipping was taken from the Selma Times-Journal of a recent date. Mr. Binford who is mentioned in the article, and the inventor, is well known in this section, visiting here at various times.

Selma, Ala., March 2.—A paper roll printer on which patent is pending, and which is expected to fill a big need in the merchandising world, has been invented by H. L. Binford and a model made by O. W. Putnam, associated with Mr. Binford. The two plan now to have the paper roll printer manufactured and placed on sale as speedily as possible.

The new invention has been viewed with interest by numbers of persons who have been tremendously impressed with the simplicity and practical working plan of the paper roll printer which prints the advertising slogan of a merchant, the name of his business or any other printing desired on the back of the paper roll as it is being unwound at the package counter.

Paper bags also can be run thru the roller in the same manner as the wrapping paper rolls.

The effectiveness of the new paper roll printer and its expected low cost will make it appeal to all grocers and merchandisers, as the saving in display printing will be great.

The new invention is known as the B and P Paper Roll Printer. It is sturdily built, with a rubber die vulcanized on metal and carried on a wooden roller printing the merchant's name and other advertising matter as the wrapping paper is unrolled and passes rapidly through a feeder roll.

The rubber die or roller is inked by a cleverly controlled cylinder through which the ink passes, so that the inking never becomes too heavy. The printed wrapping paper as it emerges from the rollers is ready for immediate use, and will not discolor gloves or wearing apparel of shoppers who are given parcels wrapped in the newly printed sheets.

County Training School News

Part-Time Group

The part-time boys met last Wednesday night. Two weeks had passed since their last meeting. The beautiful spring-like weather brought a large number out. Most of them have already started on their projects. They were given instruction on different mixtures of fertilizers. Most of our farmers today buy fertilizer by the market or manufacturer's name because they do not understand how to read the analysis found on each tag. They base their buying mostly upon such names as "Big Crop" cotton special or "Sea Fowl," etc. when they should look for the mixtures, 15-5-5, 12-4-4, 10-3-3 (meaning, respectfully, the percentage of super-phosphate, nitrate of soda, and muriate of potash or its equivalent) and even lower grades. More of our farmers would buy fertilizer at home if they understood the proper methods of mixing. Rather than go to the trouble of learning they just buy it ready mixed.

It is hoped that after a few more special lessons these future farmers will be able to intelligently buy fertilizer. Those present in the last meeting were Ben Wilson Dock Wilson, Jude Wilson, Curtis Wilson, Hubbard Wilson, Wilson Bryant, Rogers Bryant, Alvin Bryant, Fred Jones, Booker T. Anderson and Monroe Gordon.

It Does Hurt

One person said the other day that the closing of the banks didn't hurt him. Don't worry, he was corrected at once. Get this in mind, anything that hurts the business and professional people of any community, materially affects all the other people.

Why Not Take This Paper?

One of the most important habits in one's life when correctly used, is reading. If you would be intelligent as to what is going on in your community, county, town or state, just read this paper. It is worth $1.50 to any man, each year to know the weekly happenings. So why not subscribe for this paper and cultivate the habit of reading?

The Country Boy's Creed

I believe that the country which God made is more beautiful than the city which man made; the life out of doors and in touch with the earth is the natural life of man. I believe that work is work wherever I find it ,but that work with nature is more inspiring than work with the most intricate machinery. I believe that the dignity of labor depends not on what you do, but on how you do it; that opportunity comes to a boy on the farm as often as to a boy in the city, that life is longer, freer and happier in the country than in the city, that my success depends not upon my location but upon myself—not upon my dreams, upon what I actually do; in working when you work, and playing when you play, and in giving and demanding a square deal in every act of life."—Groover.

More and more Vocational boys are realizing the truthfulness of the country boy's creed.

Farmers Growing Own Soybean Seed

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers have made a remarkable success in their efforts to produce and save home-grown soybean seed, according to J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Reports of county agents show that 22,585 bushels of Alabama-grown soybean seed were saved last season, Mr Lowery said. These seed will be used by farmers for planting their own crops and in addition many of them will have a surplus for sale.

"County agents began about 1929 to encourage farmers to save seed of the soybean," Mr. Lowery said. "In this effort we have had mainly two aims. The first was to provide a home-grown source of seed, thereby preventing sending money out of the state; and the second was to enable the grower to protect himself against seed of poor quality and off varieties."

Counties taking the lead in this work include Clay, Baldwin, Chambers, Etowah, Lauderdale and others. In all, 24 counties report having saved a considerable quantity of seed.

The soybean is one of Alabama's leading hay crops. It is also excellent as a grazing crop and is often used for interplanting with corn as a soil builder. All kinds of livestock relish it as a hay, and it is said to be especially good as hay for chickens.

Experiments conducted here by the Auburn Experiment Station showed that the Ototan is the leading variety for hay. This variety has been satisfactory in Alabama for more than 10 years. The Laredo is said to be safest when soybeans are panted on land infected with cotton wilt.

CENTRAL SINGING SOCIETY

The Central Singing Society met at Providence last Sunday afternoon, and enjoyed a good singing. Prof. O. L. Devaughn presided and the opening prayer was offered by Rev. Joe Thomas. The following directed: J. W. Clackler, S. V. Miller, W. M. Devaughn, C. H. Robinson, T. E. Wyatt, R. T. Grant, Chester Wyatt, A. O. Boswell and Emmett Wilson. Two were excused from singing—I. D. Huett and R. M. Robinson. Two quartets were arranged by W. M. Devaughn.

A collection on the new song books was taken, leaving a balance of about one dollar yet due.

The society will meet next Sunday afternoon at Thomas Junior school building. It will be time to meet at Maple Springs, but since that building was burned last Sunday morning the singing has been moved over to the school house.

The plan as suggested by the secretary in last week's paper regarding the singings on Easter and the following Sunday afternoon was adopted by the society. So there will be singing at the courthouse on the afternoon of the fourth Sunday in April. Then the fifth Sunday we will have no singing, giving our people a chance to attend the big convention in Birmingham if they choose. The regular Easter singing will be held at Poplar Springs the third Sunday in April.

Work Weary "NERVES"

Do they make you Restless, Cranky, Tired, Sleepless, Dyspeptic, Headachy? Do they spoil your pleasure and interfere with your work?

Tens of thousands have found a way to get relief from overworked nerves—a way so simple, so pleasant, so low in cost, that we are constantly receiving letters that say, "If I had only found Effervescent Nervine Tablets sooner." Simon Brandt writes:

"I was very nervous from over-work. I couldn't sleep well, appetite was poor, and I felt weak for a long time.

"Used Dr. Miles' Nervine and now feel fifteen years younger and I am working the same as I did before—fourteen to fifteen hours daily.

"Sorry I did not learn about this wonderful medicine sooner as I had tried everything I could hear of, without results, until Dr. Miles' Nervine put me back on my feet."

When you are nervous, try this—put a Dr. Miles' Effervescent Nervine Tablet into a glass of water. Watch it bubble up like sparkling spring water—drink it—enjoy the feeling of calm and relaxation that follows.

In Dr. Miles' Effervescent Nervine Tablets a splendid formula for soothing overwrought nerves is combined with bicarbonate of soda and citric acid which tend to correct hyper-acidity—a frequent cause of nervousness.

Tuesday; other banks in smaller towns and communities would be opened as soon as their soundness can be determined, it was explained.

One of the most effective steps in breaking through the walls of reserve and stopping hoarding was made when it was decreed that all gold, or gold certificates are subject to registry and must be deposited in banking institutions. Failure to comply with these regulations are likely to result in fine and imprisonment. Already much hoarded gold has been brought from its hiding places, by this proclamation, and is now ready to be put back into circulation.

President Roosevelt has shown himself to possess the unconquerable courage and indomitable spirit of his predecessor and kinsman—Teddy Roosevelt. Entirely unmindful of political criticism that may result, he has mapped an economy program that calls for drastic slashes in bonus appropriations. Favoring, however, payment of pensions to soldiers who were actually disabled in service, but opposed to the payment of more than a billion dollars annually to persons who were not injured.

With the assurance that banks will again function in most places by the end of this week, moves are being made to withdraw scrip and other forms of emergency money from circulation in nearly every city in the United States. Many companies paid their employes last week with scrip, redeemable by the corporations when currency is available again. The Alabama Cotton Mills, in Clanton, made its payroll in scrip last Saturday.

The present crisis was caused immediately by the heavy withdrawals of funds due to an unreasonable fear on the part of depositors and the loss of confidence in banks as a result of an epidemic of bank failures that have swept the country during the past three years.

Periodically through the annals of the history of this country, and the world, prosperous times have been interspersed by periods of depression. However, during most of the gloomy financial crisis in this country work has been available at some price. In 1907 a similar banking situation, but not so vast, was solved by President Teddy Roosevelt in much the same manner in which this one is being combatted by Franklin D.

PEOPLE TO VOTE SOON ON PROHIBITION REPEAL ACT

Drys Are Voted Down By 69 To 27 When Repeal Bill Passes Through The House And To Senate And Governor

Montgomery, Ala., March 14—Voters of Alabama were assured Tuesday that the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment will be placed squarely before them in an election this Summer when the House, after a turbulent session, passed the Mullins-Sossaman prohibition repeal convention bill by a vote of 69 to 27.

Final vote on the bill, substituted in the House with the approval of Senator Mullins and other leading advocates, came shortly after 2 p.m. Tuesday and climaxed a debate in which militant drys sought unsuccessfully to weaken the proposal by heading off an out and out vote.

In all there were four roll calls taken during the fight, two in defeating amendments which sought to weaken the effectiveness of the repeal test, one in adopting a House substitute for the original Senate measure by Senator Mullins, and finally the passage of the bill as amended.

When the last roll call was completed the Senate was not in session and as a consequence the will will not reach the upper chamber for concurrence until Thursday. Senator Mullins, Tallapoosa, sponsor of the original proposal, let it be known, however, that he would move concurrence.

Go To Governor

After the bill makes the final grade in the Senate it will go to the governor's desk for approval, but in event of an executive veto, there is a majority in both houses sufficient to pass it over the veto.

As finally passed, the bill calls for the election of 106 delegates to the proposed convention at which time the question of repeal or reaffirmation of the eighteenth amendment will be the only question involved. The 106 members would be elected in the same proportion as members of the House of Representatives are elected. Each county would elect the same number of delegates as members of the House from the respective counties.

4-H CLUB BOYS ENJOY ANNUAL RALLY THURSD'Y

New Officers Elected; Boys Take Big Hand Running Own Business

The annual rally of the 4-H Club Boys of Chilton County, held at the courthouse in Clanton last Thursday, was a very spirited and highly interesting event. About 300 club boys were in attendance, representing clubs from all parts of Chilton County.

The meeting was opened at ten o'clock by singing "America." Invocation by Rev. Presley Cochran, pastor of Clanton Methodist Church. The boys joined heartily in singing "The More We Get Together."

The program was under the direction of County Agent C. E. Stapp, assisted by Prof. J. P. Montgomery. The business session was presided over by Clyde Popwell, who has been president of the County 4-H Club organization for the past year.

Mr. Stapp made an explanation of the club work, outlining plans for the coming year and distributing club supplies.

Election of county club officers evoked a great deal of interest and enthusiasm. Particularly impressive were the nominating speeches which were made in true convention form placing the names of different boys in the race for county president.

After about an hour of balloting the following new officers were declared duly elected: Clifford Manning, of the Isabella Club, president; James Dennis, of the Calf Club, vice president; Clyde Popwell, of the Calf Club, secretary; Harry Parker, of the Jackson Chapel Club, reporter; Floy Devaughn, of Thomas Club, song leader.

Cleveland Driver, president of the Concord Club, made a very interesting talk of a few minutes, impressing the boys with a few of the important things that make for successful club

OLD BOOTLEG RING IS SCRATCHED BY SHERIFF

Indications are that law violators in Chilton County are still unaware of the fact that the moratorium is no longer in effect. Only four persons were lodged behind "cold-prison walls" by the Sheriff's force during this week.

However, officers seemed jubilant. For they declared that they had succeeded in breaking into one of the oldest bootleg rings in the county, when a raid early last Saturday morning, near Stanton, netted a one hundred gallon outfit, together with sixty gallons of beer and several gallons of liquor. One arrest was made.

Other arrests during the week were: two for petit larceny and one for assault.

GOLD TRICKLES INTO BANKS OF CHILT'N COUNTY

Local Banks Report That No Withdrawals Have Been Made; Deposits Grow

Approximately fifteen thousand golden dollars trickled back into circulation in Chilton County during last week as a result of the prohibitive measures against hoarding gold, according to reports from the several banks in the County. A stream of more than four hundred million dollars flowed back into the Federal Reserve Banks throughout the Nation.

The decree, authorizing the immediate disposition of all gold, or gold certificates, formulated one phase of the drastic reorganization program set into motion by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, to place the banking and monetary systems of the country on a sound basis. Each hoarded dollars in gold takes two and one-half dollars out of circulation.

Confidence in banking institutions seems to have been increased, instead of lessened, as a result of the banking moratorium which kept all the banks in the United States closed for more than a week. Restoration of the public's confidence by a complete reorganization program indicates a new era in business.

Both local banks report that no withdrawals have been made since the reopening of the banks last week, but several new accounts have been opened.

PASTORS OF ASSOCIATIONS TO MEET MONDAY, APRIL 3

There will be a meeting of all pastors of the Chilton and Unity Baptist Associations on Monday, April 3rd, according to an announcement from the Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby.

UNUSUAL EXHIBIT BEING PLANNED FOR PRESENTATION IN VERBENA

Loaned Exhibit Of Rare Articles From Homes In Verbena And A Talk By Mrs. B. B. Comer On India Are Set For Friday Night

A most unusual form of entertainment is being planned in Verbena, and will be presented at the high school auditorium in Verbena Friday night of this week, beginning at six o'clock.

This entertainment will be a loan exhibit of interesting and beautiful articles, old and new articles, domestic and foreign articles, and all from the homes of Verbena residents.

The beautiful homes in Verbena, with backgrounds of aristocracy, contain many articles that have been handed down from one generation to the other through many years. Quilts, spreads, rugs, crocheted and knitted articles, embroidery and handwork of all kinds, china and glass, war relics, dolls and antique weapons, all gathered and attractively displayed for this event.

At eight o'clock a feature of the evening will be a talk by Mrs. B. B. Comer, one of Alabama's prominent women, and a resident of Verbena, on a recent trip into India, which promises to be most interesting.

This affair has been arranged to raise funds for the painting of the parsonage at Verbena, and while those attending will receive a real treat, the admission price is only ten and five cents.

ROOSEVELT DRIVES ON WITH HIS PROGRAM WHILE STOCKS GO UP

Record Of Accomplishments During The Period Since His Inauguration Rivals Any In Many Years With More Action Still In View

Indications are that we have finally reached that longed for corner—around which able financiers have been telling us for the past three years lingers prosperity. Since the reopening of the banks last week and the restoration of the public's confidence, an upward trend in business has been apparent.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, "the man of action"— with his drastic reorganization of the banking institutions and the Government's monetary system, set into motion a restoration of confidence that has been lacking since the stock market crash of '29.

Today there's more than six million dollars more money in circulation than there was before the declaration of the bank moratorium; and this is gradually being increased. Over two billion dollars in currency have been issued, and is being placed in circulation through the Federal Reserve Banks, setting unbankable assets held by institutions over the entire country, to work. A stream of $327,238,000 in gold flowed into the Federal Reserve Banks during last week as a result of the decree banning the hoarding of gold. Each hoarded gold dollar takes two and one-half dollars out of circulation.

Cotton has advanced approximately five dollars per bale within the past week and the stock market had a flurry that has not been equaled since during the World War. United States Steel preferred jumped from $11 to $67; Norfolk and Western Railway $14 to $128; J. I. Case $9.25 to $46; Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe Railway $6 to $44; Allied Chemical $8.50 to $86; American Telephone, ex-dividend, more than $7 to $105; U. S. Steel common about $.50 to $31.50, and Union Pacific $9.50 to $78.50. Three million shares changed hands in one day.

Washington has seen more action during the past two weeks than it has experienced in many a day. Under Roosevelt's supervision the entire banking system was reorganized and placed on a sound basis in less than a week. Since then he has mapped out and submitted an economy program, providing for more than a billion dollar saving each year to the Government; in a seventy-two word message requested Congress to take immediate action on legalizing beer, and a farm relief program. President Roosevelt declared that he believes it is possible to balance the Government's budget in one year.

SATURDAY WAS A BUSY DAY FOR MERCHANTS

Streets In Clanton Scene Of Many Friendly Greetings Last Saturday

Merchants in Clanton will remember last Saturday for a long time. It was a red letter day so far as trade was concerned, as every business house in Clanton was kept busy practically all day, with clerks on the job to handle the trade.

Many stores here state that it was one of the best days they have had in some time. Confidence seemed to be written on the face of every person in town. Friends from different sections of the county were seen to shake hands give friendly slaps on the back and everybody in high spirits. Clanton was truly a meeting place for old friends last Saturday like old times.

Clanton merchants are jubilant over the spirit shown by the hundreds of people who came to town the past week. The banks report a most pleasing business, steady throughout the day, with deposits increasing.

Many people from adjoining counties were also seen among those from over Chilton county. They too were making the most of this splendid day of trading and meeting of old friends. Reports from other towns in the county were as full of good trading as those evident in Clanton.

Endorse Local Bill Providing For Election By People Of Superintendent

The Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton county met in a called session last Saturday afternoon at the New Wilson Hotel in Clanton.

One of the main topics of discussion was the local Bill providing for the election by the people, of the county superintendent of education of this county. After several were heard to express their opinions on the matter it was put to a vote, and endorsed by the committee.

Senator J. G. Duncan was advised of this action by the Executive Committee, and it is understood steps are being made to pass the Bill through the Senate, following which it will go to the House of Representatives, where Percy M. Pitts, representative from this county is expected to handle it.

The Bill provides for the election of the county superintendent of education of Chilton county in the same manner as other officials are elected, and if passed, provides for this office to come before the voters in the next general election.

A motion was also made and adopted at the meeting Saturday, calling on members of the committee not to give their individual endorsement to those seeking appointments for government jobs in this county, but to allow the Executive Committee to allow the committee in session to make such recommendations and endorsements as they think advisable.

Mr. N. K. Blankenship of Route Four was among the visitors to Clanton last Monday. While in town Mr. Blankenship was a pleasant caller at the News office.

'SMILIN' THROUGH' IS SHOWING AT WADESONIAN THEATRE TONIGHT

Picture Sponsored By Kiwanis Club Of Clanton Is One Which Is Acclaimed Among The Best; Many Express Wish To See It Again

"Smilin' Through" the picture showing at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton tonight has brought theatregoers of this section to place praise on its selection. It is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, and showed last night also, to a large crowd.

Norma Shearer, one of the screen's popular actresses, stars in this picture with Frederic March and Leslie Howard, the latter playing a most difficult role of an aging man. "Smilin' Through" is a picture out-of-the-ordinary, in that it is decidedly different from the usual run of motion pictures.

A story of deep love, carried on amid numerous hardships, family hatred, war and its ravages. Wonderful acting of the stars will make you forget everyone else except the picture. The story abounds in pathos. Miss Shearer and Mr. March have two roles in the picture, playing the parts of characters in the early stage of the picture and then coming in throughout the remainder.

It is a picture that many who have seen it before when shown in larger cities have expressed the desire to see it again. It is especially appealing to the ladies. Admission will be fifteen and thirty cents. The Kiwanis Club receives proceeds from this picture to carry on its work. Show starts at seven-thirty.

Democrats And The Local Bill

Following President Roosevelt, one of the greatest men this country has known, the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton County is attempting to bring to the people of Chilton county a bigger hand in controlling the selection of men to head departments of local government.

Chilton county showed in the recent election that they wanted that "new deal" this Democratic leader promised them, and it is apparently on the way now. In office for only a little over three weeks, President Roosevelt has wrought more changes in behalf of the farmer and little man than has been done in many years. His idea of democracy "of the people, for the people and by the people" is pleasing the world, and those voters in Chilton county who cast their ballot last November for Roosevelt are proud to tell it now.

In session last Saturday afternoon, the Democratic Executive Committee endorsed the local bill providing for the election by the people of the county superintendent of education of this county. This is nothing more nor less than another step by the Democratic party of this county to back up our Democratic president in bringing on this "new deal," and giving the "forgotten man" another chance.

Nothing could be more fitting than for the Democratic party of Chilton county to lay the cards on the table and say "Folks, let's get our heads together in this county and help our president in his noble efforts to bring us back to normal times." We all, as citizens of the United States owe it to the President to go down the line with him and do our bit.

Preacher-Editor Tenders Services To Help Repeal

Like a bolt from a clear sky comes the open and public announcement from our friend J. L. Kimbro, editor of The Opp Weekly News, Opp, Ala., that he is offering his services to help repeal the Prohibition law.

We respect Editor Kimbro's opinions, judgment and might mention that in the front page editorial in his paper last week, he called attention to the fact that he is also a minister. Editor Kimbro's statement through his newspaper gave all the reasons he was for repeal, and we might add that he gave some excellent reasons.

The Local Newspaper

No community places the proper estimate upon its local newspaper. Its accomplishments in the way of progress and human betterment are of interminable worth and there are no other sources of good comparable to them.

Did you ever see a birth announcement on a billboard or on a hand bill?

Do you use such sources of information to tell about the going away and virtues of your departed loved ones?

Do these record the marriages of your children, or the happy parties that young and old are blessed with?

Do these tell about the prosperity of your city, state or nation, and of the innumerable incidents of home and international life?

No. But you find them all faithfully recorded in your family newspaper.

If you want to meet the people where they live there is only one medium, the local newspaper.

Back To The Farm

From time to time the American Fiction Guild, whose efforts are directed to ferreting out the best in contemporary American literature, will make selections from the current books which it feels best depict the American scene.

Such a book is "The Root and the Bough," by Francine Findley, called by the New York Sun a "Brave First Novel." It is a story of upstate New York, the story of Adam Burdett, God-fearing and set in his ways, and has particular appeal to everyone interested in back-to-the-farm movements. Says G. D. Ritchie in the Sun, "There is power here — power of characterization amazing in a first novel—and none of the pitiful little embroiderings that make the usual first novel amusing and brilliant but unimportant. It is not a novel for a casual afternoon's reading. It is all meat and must be digested as such."

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Heigh-ho. Ho-hum, and other such expressions. Did you ever hear the story about "The Man, The Boy and The Donkey." Well, sometime, if you haven't heard about it, get some youngster to tell it to you. There's a moral to it, or something.

And another thing, have you seen this picture "Smiling Through." Well, if you haven't or have, you should see it. It is at the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton tonight, and is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton. The people who have seen it say that it is one more good picture, and worth the time and money to see. Give the Kiwanians a break on this picture folks, they deserve it.

And President Roosevelt is still riding with his program to bring this country of ours back to where it ought to be. Just because he is a Democrat is no reason why any man or woman should want to buck his plans. This ain't no time for petty politics. It is a "time for all good men to come to the aid of their country."

Heard a fellow say the other day that if the President kept up like he started doing things, he would run out of something to do in six months. Well, there might be something to that after all. He's done more in three weeks than I could do in a life-time.

* * *

I see that the Democratic Executives of this county put a stop to this seeking endorsements from the members of the committee individually, and anybody wanting a job as postmaster in Chilton county and wants the endorsement of the Democratic Executives, they gotta come before the committee sollectively.

There was a mighty heap of gold brought to the banks in the county since the President ordered folks to bring it in. I had no idea there was so much gold in Chilton county.

Won't be long until you people will have an opportunity to do a lot of writing and talking about the repeal of the 18th amendment, so it looks from goings-on at the State capitol.

I saw in some newspapers where these reformers by mail were furnishing newspapers with material to start the morning fires, these days.

Folks, it looks like I'm going to have to stop this giving you the inside dope on things happening round town, or else lose some mighty good friends. And friends are mighty hard to get these days.

Maybe I'd better stop it and get to writing about the things are that transpiring out in public, or something. Of course there is plenty of that to write about, but sometimes it is mighty hard to make it interesting, and it gets a little monotonous to you—and me.

* * *

I see by the News this week that business in Clanton last Saturday went way over the top. Well, that sounds good. At least, it ain't as bad as you or I thought it was, after all, is it?

There's nothing like trading at home, I'm telling you. And there's nothing like you merchants advertising in the local papers so as to get the folks to trade at home. I'm telling you that, too. I believe the News hit the nail on the head last week when it said that prices were going up. And prices are going up.

Did it rain last Sunday? You're asking me.

Nope, I can't blame you folks for hurrying to your storm pits. They are mighty handy things to have around sometimes, but I'm afraid some of you are going to wear out the door hinges.

Was reading after Henry Vance the other night in his column "The Coal Bin" in The S. G. N., and he just rambled from Jericho to everywhere and then landed. Boy, how he can write. There's nothing like having a good vocabulary, a volume of "Who's Who" and a license to prevaricate, or something. No insinuations, Hy. Just envy, that's all.

And what am I going to say about the local bill for the electing of a county superintendent of education here? Absolutely nothing. I'll leave that for others to say.

If any of you folks in the country have a spare load of pine, bring it to the News and pay a subscription with it. I heard the Ed say he wished someone would bring in a load or two, or three. The weather looks like the boys at the News office are going to be hunting the fire these mornings. You readers can't afford to let them go cold. Yep, that includes me too.

Folks, let's get to swapping some things for awhile now. Lance Franklin, who lives on Jemison, Ala., Route One, tells me that he wants to rent a mule for awhile this year. Lance says he would like to get one for its feed, or maybe a small monthly rent. Lance is a good sort of a boy, too. I know him and he's all right. He's the kind of a fellow who wants to do something all the time. That's the kind of a boy that will get somewhere. If you got a mule you can spare, let Lance use him.

Over on Billingsley, Ala., Route One, lives Mr. R. P. Williams, and he says he has some small Poland China pigs he wants to swap for some corn. That ain't no bad trade at all, and seems to me Mr. Williams ought to get that trade going.

E. H. Calfee, who lives on Clanton, Route Seven, writes that he has a good milk cow he wants to trade for a three-piece living room suite. Now, we're getting somewhere. If you have a three-piece living room suite, and want a cow, why not trade with Mr. Calfee?

Send in your swap or trades, folks. This don't cost you anything, and I'm going to have to discontinue this offer after while, and get back to letting the Ed charge for those things. He needs the money.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was a guest in a home and after we had feasted on a well prepared meal a tramp knocked at the door, asking for something to eat. The lady of the house went back to the kitchen and in a few moments came out with a few scraps. She apologized to the beggar saying, "I have nothing but a few left overs but you are welcome to what I have." I did not see all that was on his plate, but I was certain that his meal of "Left Overs" did not even compare with the well prepared meal that she had placed before me a short time before that. Is it not a fact that we prepare the best things for ourselves? We make all kinds of preparations for our good meal. Our wants are first supplied. We refuse to make scanty anything that we want, but when God knocks for His share, we have nothing left over for Him other than a few scraps. Most people treat God just like the housewife treated the tramp—if there is anything left over after our wants have been supplied, He is welcome to the scraps. Why not give to God a well prepared meal? Prepared liberality is the kind that God appreciates.

There was a farmer near my boyhood home who was great on building fences. He would split many Chestnut rails and stack them high around his farm. All during the spring and summer this farmer would walk around his fence and see that every panel was in perfect order. The objection to this farmer was that he spent all of his time in building and guarding his fences, but failed to cultivate the crop on the inside. To spend one's time on the fences while the crop is being eaten up with grass is very poor farming. There are many preachers who are fence builders. They are great on denominational doctrines. They build high their denominational fences, but the devil is eating up the crop of souls on the inside of their church. We would not do away with our denominational fences, but it is high time that we should exercise ourselves more diligently in cultivating the crop on the inside.

We grew a rich harvest of rice on an acre of slash land. The rice was thrashed from the straw and the straw was thrown to one side. Along came two brood sows, followed by many squealing pigs. They dived into the pile of rice straw, expecting to find much grain. The herd of swine buried themselves in the straw in search of something to eat but after rooting it through and finding nothing, they set up a regular battle. It was sow against sow and pig against pig. Finding onthing but chaff, there was nothing left for them to do but squeal and fight. When a preacher's sermon is nothing but a pile of chaff the audience knows it. When a congregation roots through a sermon and finds no food for the soul, much squealing and biting will follow. The best way on earth to keep down all church trouble is to serve the rich grain of the gospel. Even a hog has no time to fight when he is eating. When there is much heel and tongue play, it is indicative that food is scarce.

While entertaining a group of young people we put on a light race. Six young men were selected and to each one was given a small bundle of fat lightwood splinters. Each young man lighted his torch and at a signal started on the race. The prize was for the boy who could make the race track first with his light still burning. They started with great speed. Lights burned brightly at first, but soon the speed began to pull the blaze from the splinters, some even lost their lights on the account of haste. The young man who won, was not the leader in the first of the race, but he was the one who was careful about his light. His light meant more to him than speed, and he won. As Christians in this race of life, we can not be too careful about our light. The prize is for all who will keep the lights burning to the end of the way. It is not speed that wins, but it is keeping the light shining until the race is over.

In talking to a fisherman who ploughed the gulf with his sail boat, he related to me his experience. Said he, "One morning I tried to go out to sea with my boat. I had up one main sail, and the wind being favorable, I was sure that I could make speed, but I had not observed that the tide was coming in. I set up another sail and still another, until I had every sail on my craft pulling me out to sea. Then I laughed in the face of the drifting tide as I made speed on my journey." Many a church member has set up the main sail of belief in Christ and they think that they are heaven bound. Favorable winds are helping them on, but they have failed to take knowledge of the worldly tide that is holding them back. If you are not making satisfactory speed against the tide of the world, let me advise that you set up another sail. Set up the sail of church attendance, the sail of prayer meeting attendance, the sail of liberality, the sail of Christian work. Set up every sail of your soul that heavenly breezes may ever push you toward the everlasting shore.

Letters To The Editor

JEFFERS WRITES ON HIS STAND ON ECONOMY BILL

—o—

Editor's Note: The following letter from Congressman Lamar Jeffers, is a reply to an editorial which appeared in the News last week.

Washington, D. C., March 18, 1933.

Mr. Billy Smith, Editor,
Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Sir:

In view of the great public interest in the Bill just passed by Congress which will so drastically reduce and discontinue many of the relief measures and benefits which have heretofore been granted by law to Spanish-American War veterans and World War veterans and their dependents, I desire to make this statement about the matter and I hope you can give publicity to it in the columns of your valuable paper.

There are many angles to the proposition, some of which have not appeared on the surface, and I would like to touch upon several phases of the situation. I shall do so as briefly as possible and I trust you will not find this communication too long to publish.

The Bill, 19 pages long, was not made available to Members of Congress until the day it was brought up for hasty passage in the House, the Membership of the House not having time to make anything like a real study of its many far-reaching provisions. It was quickly seen that the Bill would give all powers to an administrator of veterans' affairs, with authority to promulgate the rules and regulations under which the vast powers vested in him are to be administered, and provides further that when any claim shall be disallowed under the regulations issued by the administrator "it may not thereafter be reopened or allowed." This means, of course, that a claimant would not be allowed the privilege of even reopening for consideration any disallowed claim no matter what sort of new evidence the claimant might produce. I feel that a claimant ought to at least have that privilege reserved to him in any case where the evidence or circumstances would seem to warrant reconsideration. Otherwise, many just claims would be forever barred. Of course, it states that the President shall approve these regulations promulgated by the administrator. Now I do not for one moment want to be understood as questioning the personal good intentions of the President of the United States, nor would I say one word which could rightfully be construed as speaking critically of him, but as a practical matter it would be placing an impossible burden upon the President to personally apply the regulations to all cases in the land just the same as it would be humanly impossible for him to administer the laws which are administered by all the other governmental departments and bureaus. So, as I understood the Bill, it meant that, so far as veterans and their dependents are concerned, practically all existing laws would be wiped out and an administrator empowered to substitute therefor rules and regulations which he would himself administer. As a matter of principle and policy, it seemed to me that it was unnecessary for the provisions of the Bill to be so drastic along that line.

Immediately before the session of the House on Saturday, March 11th, when this Bill was hastily passed, all Democratic Members were called into caucus for the consideration of the Bill. During that caucus an amendment was agreed upon by a substantial majority vote providing that a reduction of not more than 25 per cent should be applied all along the line to all benefits touched by this Bill. Such amendment would have placed the Bill clearly in line with the Platform of the Democratic Party which pledged itself to a reduction of 25 per cent in the costs of Government. This proposal struck the caucus of the Democratic Members as being fair and was adopted by a majority vote, thus representing the will of the Democrats of the House. But in spite of that fact the Bill was brought up for consideration on the Floor of the House under an air-tight rule which did not allow the consideration in the House of that amendment—although it had just previously been adopted by a fair and open vote in the Democratic Caucus. I felt very strongly that the action of the caucus should have been respected and the Bill presented to the House as it really was amended in the caucus.

On Monday, March 13th, just as the Bill was being taken up for consideration in the Senate, the National Legislative Committee of the American Legion met in special session and issued a formal statement that in view of existing economic conditions and in view of the Democratic Party's pledge to a reduction of 25 per cent in Government costs, that while the American Legion was unwilling that the basic structure of all veterans' pension, compensation and relief laws be destroyed the Legion was willing to agree to and support a reduction of not more than 25 per cent all along the line. This declaration was in line with the Democratic Party Platform and with the amendment which was adopted by our Democratic Caucus but which was not permitted to be presented for consideration in the House.

Reductions in Government costs should be made in all departments alike. Reorganizations within departments and bureaus, all consolidations that may be practical, and elimination of any useless governmental activities that may be located, should be put into effect in all Government departments and services to the extent of 25 per cent all along the line. In the Veterans' Administration the right place to begin to effect the saving is in the top-heavy overhead expenses of the administration, and not by placing the burden so heavily upon the little $12 and $18 a month fellows. I am sure that a great many cases that are technically rated as non-service-connected or are rated as service-connected under the presumption of the law are really and truly service-connected cases but it has been humanly impossible in many instances for the beneficiaries to go back and get the evidence which would actually prove them to be service-connected under the strict administration of the law. Many of these, it seems, will be completely cut off.

Now, the Bill has been passed which grants to an administrator of veterans' affairs the powers of life and death over thousands of men who once gladly offered their lives in a period of National emergency. And we will, of course, as patriotic citizens, give every possible aid to the Chief Executive and we trust that the administrator of veterans' affairs will realize the need, in many instances, for compassion and mercy, and that his rules and regulations and the administration thereof will be tempered with human sympathy.

I want to state that I do have in mind proper consideration for the public welfare, the welfare of the whole people, but I feel that a very greatly exaggerated emphasis has been placed upon the payments to our war veterans and their dependents as a cause of the crash and the depression through which we have been suffering. I think the President hit upon the principal cause of the crash and the disastrous results thereof, when he inserted this paragraph in his inaugural address:

> "Finally, in our progress toward resumption of work we require two safeguards against a return of the evils of the old order; there must be an end to speculation with other people's money, and there must be provision for an adequate but sound currency."

I am strong for the President, and as a Democrat, I rejoice that the people of our Nation are strong for hm, and believing as I do in his broad vision I d not believe he would want a Member of Congress to cast his vote for a measure in a case where the Member conscientiously felt that the provisions and the policies embodied therein were not right.

My own vote against this Bill when it was up for consideration in the House was not an easy one to cast, as I well realized, of course, that I was voting contrary to the way the majority was going; but after giving all possible thought to every factor, within the limited time that we had to try to consider what would be the far-reaching effects of the measure, I can truthfully and conscientiously state to all our citizens that I voted the way that in my heart I felt was right.

Respectfully submitted
LAMAR JEFFERS

SOME HONEST BOYS

—o—

Not because honesty among boys is uncommon, but because too much stress is placed on the recording of dishonesty in the news of the day, a little story from Humboldt, Sask., is worth repeating.

Six boys were playing in a straw stack near that town when one of them found a purse containing $2.20. This caused them to search for more, with the result that a total of $94.20 in cash and a check for $41.49 were found in the straw.

Did they divide the spoil and proceed to use it for themselves? They did not. They promptly turned it over to the Humboldt chief of police, who recalled that three men had reported being robbed at this straw stack some time before, and took steps to locate them.

Incidentally, the six boys have established a repuation for honesty which is of much greater vaue to them than the money they might have easily appropriated to their own use.

INK DROPS FROM C. C. H. S.

By Dan Smith

Well at last, thanks to Mr. Little, the mystery of the far away gazes that some of our students have (maybe a few teachers too) has been explained. They are in love. Poor things.

All the sheiks of C. C. H. S. sat up and rubbed their eyes more than once last Friday when a most beautiful girl was seen strolling down the corridor. But much to their disappointment a small boy in short breetches and a big black bow tie was tagging along behind her. Someone had already beat their time it seemed. But close examination revealed the identity of this fair damsel and her blue eyed boy. The maiden was none other than Morgan Reynolds and the little kid in short pants bouncing a ball everywhere he went was James Dennis. These two were going through their end of the initiation into the "C" Club.

A very entertaining and educational program was given in chapel last Friday. This program was given by the members of the Home Economics class under the direction of Miss Griffin. The program was in charge of Tina Hyman who was chairman of the committee. Famous pictures were told about in this program and for each picture a poem and music which were inspired by that particular painting were interpreted by a member of the class. Several piano solos were rendered and a number of poems were recited. The feature on this program was a duet by Hilda Hart and Marilyn Hardy, two talented singers of our school. They sang "Whispering Hope," which was inspired by the picture entitled "Hope".

Don't be alarmed over the despondent and worried look on the faces of the majority of our students, this is only test week.

This is a rather large world after all. There are some students in this school who did not know "Silky".

Prepare yourselves, fellow students, to meet that dashing, romantic, captivating and entertaining young lady, "Miss Adventure." She will be presented at this school Friday (tomorrow) night week under the auspices of the Senior Three Home Economics Class. This promises to be a play full of rollicking good fun.

The entire Senior Three class went on a very educational and worthwhile trip Tuesday of this week. Mr. Warr, our principal, carried these students to Montgomery to witness the Alabama Legislature in action. This visit to the legislature materialized from the study of government and its functions by the the Senior Three Democracy Class under Mr. Warr.

That really was a swell play which the Seniors offered in chapel yesterday. Those who were responsible for it deserved a hearty compliment. This playlet was postponed from last Friday and at the time of writing this column last week it was not known.

The members of Mr. Varnell's biology class went on a very entertaining yet helpful field trip last Thursday. These field trips are always worth the time they consume as they familiarize the students more with Mother Nature. On these trips the student is able to observe nature in its own surroundings. (No, not the students' surroundings, but nature's). The theories and enlightenments that he or she may get from the text book can be made practical. The members thank Mr. Varnell for this kind consideration and hope to enjoy another field trip before school ends.

After the field trip each student had to write a composition about the field trip. The three best written were those of Roberta Cochran, Helen Moore and Dan Smith. Of those three Mr. Varnell selected Roberta's to be published.

OUR FIELD TRIP

By Roberta Cochran

Our biology class, under the supervision of Mr. Varnell, went on a very interesting as well as beneficial field trip last Thursday. The day was beautiful; the sparrows were singing and flying about; the flowers were blooming; and the trees budding, showing every evidence of spring. We students left the school building very joyfully, equipped with paper cups, collecting jars and nets. We went down the road near the cemetery where we noticed many field daisies and butterflies. The field daisy is a very small flower with blue petals, growing on a stem about four inches from the ground.

Within a short distance we left the road and continued our trip across a marshy pasture where some of the streams had to be crossed on logs. After reaching a nearby creek we watched the organisms that were found there as we had been studying fresh water biology in class. Minnows and tadpoles were plentiful, but it was rather hard to find any frog eggs; although, two students succeeded. Several adult frogs tried to attract our attention by croaking and making a loud noise as they were taking their morning swim. Most of these were found along the banks of shallow, muddy back waters. We found other small organisms.

By pulling off the dead bark of old logs we found many soft shell snails, wood beetles, and worms that make their habitat there. The soft shell snail is not as dark in color as other snails and as is implied by its name, has a soft shell. The wood beetle is about the size of a large roach, has three body regions, and is covered with a dark coat of chitin. There was fungi growing on some of the logs and we shall study it under the microscope.

On our return to the road, we had to cross a small stream with boggy banks by walking a log. Helen Moore and I had the pleasure of testing the mud by slipping in. This little incident did not interfere very much and we continued our trip. All along the road yellow weeds and different species of laurel were growing. The trees were budding and we noticed most especially the maple trees with their reddish yellow leaves. After collecting a few gall growths we returned to the school.

Due to unavoidable circumstances the editor was not able to continue his story of the former graduates of this school this week. But watch next week's column for some more interesting facts about our former graduates.

Thorsby Institute News

The Helen Keller Literary Society presented an interesting program at the Institute auditorium Saturday night. The Thorsby Band, under the direction of Mr. J. O. Johnson, played two numbers at the opening of the program and two at the close. The Institute Boys' Quartette sang two numbers, On the Road to Mandalay, and Gypsy Life. The quartette consists of Leo Spivey, Hal Broadhead, Phares Raybon, and J. T. Faircloth. The Thorsby Band and the Quartette were new features on the program and were very much enjoyed. An important part of the program was a debate on the question, Resolved: That at least one-half of our state and local revenue should be derived from sources other than tangible property. The affirmative was supported by Conway Thornburgh and Maray Bratton; the Negative by Lois Thompson and Carl Ekblad. The point for the better of the first two speakers was awarded to Conway Thornburgh; the point for the better of the second two speakers to Mary Bratton. The point for the debate as a whole was given to the affirmative. Juanita Each, the newly elected president, presided over the meeting. J. T. Faircloth acted as chairman of the debate.

School will be held at Thorsby Institute next Saturday, March 25, from 8:30 A.M. until 1:10 .M. There will be only one session.

STELLAR CAST IN "SMILIN' THROUGH"

Norma Shearer's newest photoplay, "Smilin' Through," which is at the Wadesonian Theatre tonight, presents the unique phenomena of a star being supported by four other stars.

For appearing with Miss Shearer in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's talking picture version of the renowned Jane Cowl stage success are Frederic March, Leslie Howard, O. P. Heggie and Ralph Forbes, all of whom are stars in their own right.

Both on stage and screen the members of this quartet have individually headed the list of dramatic casts. Collectively they comprise the most brilliant supporting cast with which any has been surrounded.

"Smilin' Through" marks Frederic March's first appearance with Norma Shearer. He was borrowed from Paramount for this picture in return for the oan of Clark Gable. March is one of the screen's most popular male stars. His list of hits include "The Royal Family," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and "Jealousy."

Leslie Howard previously appeared with Miss Shearer in "A Free Soul." He returns to the screen in "Smilin Through" after a year's absence during which he scored on the New York stage in "The Animal Kingdom."

O. P. Heggie is another Broadway stage notable who is returning to the screen in this film. A veteran character actor, he has a record of thirty years of brilliant achievements on the London and New York stages; and has also appeared prominently in several screen productions.

MY EXPERIENCE IN 4-H CLUB WORK

By James Dennis

Clanton, Ala., March 17, 1933.

In 1929 I became interested in 4-H Club work and purchased a purebred Jersey heifer as my first project. During that year I attended the annual club rally and camp. I cooperated in every way possible with our County Agent and club members during the local Jersey show and at the State Fair at Montgomery. I was chosen to be one of the three members from Chilton County on the livestock judging team to judge at the State Fair.

In 1930 I was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the Jersey Cattle Club of Chilton County. I attended the club rally and camp, exhibited my heifer at the local spring and fall shows, also at the State Fair at Montgomery. I was again chosen to be a member of the livestock judging group from my county and won high score from my county. I also cared for and exhibited an Angus bull for my father at the State Fair.

In 1931 I was elected Vice-President of the Jersey cattle club of my county, and Vice-President of the county-wide 4-H club organization. I attended club rally and camp. That year I exhibited two head of registered Jerseys and an Angus bull at the local spring and fall shows. I also exhibited these (except Angus bull) at the District Jersey show at Anniston, Alabama, and was again made a member of the judging team from my county. I won the gold medal offered by the American Jersey Cattle Club for showmanship in the contest with thirty-three other boys.

I made a talk before a group of more than one hundred voters in behalf of the county commissioners continuing the appropriation for county agency work.

In 1932 I was elected President of the Jersey breeders association and vice-president of the county-wide 4-H club organization. I attended the club rally and camp. I exhibited my projects at the local spring show and at the district Jersey show held at Clanton in the fall. I was a member of the high scoring judging team at the district Jersey show (four teams competing) and made third high individual score, which brought me a bronze medal given by the American Jersey Cattle Club. There were twelve boys competing in the contest.

I really enjoy club work; I did not join the 4-H club merely for pastime. I do not think the 4-H club was organized for this. I think it was organized for the purpose of making citizens and leaders out of its members.

The 4-H club work has given me many happy and pleasant hours. Many trips are taken annually by our Jersey cattle club. Such as, visting each member's home and inspecting his project and going to Auburn, our State Experiment Station, each year. This is a trip of great importance to any club member. The trip that seemed most important to me, however, was a trip to Tupelo, Miss., with our County Agent, Mr. C. E. Stapp, for the purpose of purchasing more purebred Jersey calves for our club. There are many events in 4-H club life more important than the club rally and camp.

My association with other boys and with our County Agent has been of more value to me than I can estimate. I have learned to be a better judge of people and have learned to appreciate the value of good leadership and the necessity for it. I have enjoyed exchanging ideas with other club members. I think that I am a better citizen than I was before I entered the work, because I have learned to respect the rights and opinions of other people. I know the joy of having some definite purpose behind the work I am doing and working to accomplish that purpose.

I have had my Heart my Head and my Hands in all that I did and I think that I have developed into a Healthier boy than I would have been without "4-H" work.

I hope that my experience will encourage some other boy to enter the work and enjoy it as much as I have.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. T.J. Henderson and family of Mt. Creek, Ala. wish to extend to their neighbors and friends their appreciation of kindness and sympathy extended to them in the great loss of their dear husband and father, T. J. Henderson, March 3rd. Especially to Rev. S. J. Ezell for his comforting words, also the quartet for their beautiful hymns, and the Spigener Undertaking Co.

Come To Church Sunday . . .

Men have come to associate religion wholly with a fixed attitude of mind on the life hereafter. That is not entirely true. Religion is a practical approach to the solution of the problems of everyday life. It is the result of the thoughts of the better minds throughout centuries of human culture. It has direct meaning for you.

Study the people who go to church regularly. Without exception you will find they are the real people of our county. The people who are providing this town and county with its moral stamina --- its faith in life --- its will to serve humanity. * * * Attending church makes possible your association with the worthwhile of our citizens --- the lay prophets of a new era --- an era of real good will toward men --- the true expression of practical religion.

Pleasant Grove News

Our community was a scene of heartfelt sadness last Thursday morning when the report came of the death of "Uncle" Dainwood Freeman, an old gentleman of the age of 73 years. He was dearly loved by his fellowmen and bore the title of "Uncle Dainwood" by everyone. Mr. Freeman's death came later than we thought it possibly could. His condition was very serious the few days preceding his death. The cause of his death was due to a cancer of the stomach, it was reported.

Mr. Freeman was born in the community of Antioch in Bibb county. He is a member of a large family, while only two are living, Rev. George Freeman and Mr. Jasper Freeman. He bore the name of a Christian having united with Anitoch church at a very early age, later joining the Masons, giving them the right to bury his body in Pleasant Grove cemetery last Friday afternoon at three o'clock. He is survived by his wife, five children, Mrs. Arthur Maddox, Miss Eula Freeman, Messrs. Tom and Jim Freeman and his formerly mentioned, two brothers.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Monroe Honeycutt of Jemison. He used the second chapter of I Corinthians. Pallbearers were Profs. J. A. Peterson, J. P. Montgomery, Jane H. Turner, Messrs. E. B. and Stanley McNeil, and Dr. A. A. Conway, all of Jemison's Masonic Lodge.

T. J. (TOM) COBB DIED AT HIS HOME IN SARDIS

On Saturday morning of last week the death angel hovered over the home of one of our most estimable families, claiming one of our best and most lovable men, Mr. T. J. (Tom) Cobb. The death of this man of God cast a gloom over the entire community and the sad intelligence came to all as a shock. For a number of years Mr. Cobb was a great sufferer, most of his time confined to his room and bed; yet, he was never known to complain, but bore his suffering with patience. Probably no man who has lived in our midst numbered his friends so widely as did Mr. Cobb. To know him was to love him. The life he lived while here on earth was indeed a beautiful example, a path, as it were strewn with flowers and truly the world was made better by him having lived in it. For a number of years he has been a member of the Center Hill Missionary Baptist church. As in every other duty of life, he was true to his church, living an exemplary life, making his church, so far as he was responsible, attractive to those in the world.

He was the last one of a large family. He died at his home on March 18, 1933, at 1:45 a.m. February 6, 1877 he married Miss Paralee Martin who preceded him to the grave on February 14, 1929. To this union there were born seven children, five of whom survive, namely: Jim, Joe, Mrs. Ola Sammons, Berney and Vernon. There are thirty grandchildre and sixteen great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at Center Hill Monday morning at eleven o'clock by Rev. Johnnie Martin, nephew of the deceased, and Bro. Honeycutt. The services were very impressive and the floral tributes magnificent. Interment followed at Center Hill cemetery. Grandsons were honorary pallbears.

The spirit of this good man is among the angels where he is tenderly cared for by the bodyguard of God. He who holds worlds in His hand called your loved one to Himself. He who gave His only son that this world might be saved. On the golden shore of eternity father, relatives, neighbors and friends will be waiting for you. The time will be short when you will join him on the isle of everlasting life, then bereaved, near ones, cease to weep, be brave, for we know he is safe in the arms of Jesus where he awaits your coming. While the fond and devoted tender hearted children and watchful relatives are unconsolable with grim fortitude we ask that you remember the promises Christ made while here on earth, when He spoke of the place that would be prepared for those who would live right. Mr. Cobb was truly a good man, a faithful father, tender and loving, and we are of the firm belief that his reward is a home at His right hand, where no storms ever come, where they know no sorrow, where trouble never enters, where all is happiness and bliss. Beautiful in death as in life, his soul departed these earthly cares and soared to the realms of the blessed, and again we say, cease to mourn, cease to sorrow, it's rest, rest.

The community with a host of friends extend condolence.

A NEIGHBOR.

AMERICANS ALL

An interesting little study in names is presented by the list of nine New York public school boys who were awarded Pulitzer four-year scholarships at Columbia University, they being chosen from a field of 90 of the brightest in the metropolis.

Their names, in the order of the grades made in the competitive examination, are as follows: Herman Kremer, Helmut Schulz, Thomas Jonaitis, Andrew Chiappe, Jerome O'Neill, Fred Tonetti, Hippocrates Apostle, John Morrisroe, and Milton Black. It will appear that German, Greek and Italian names predominate, and in fact only two of the boys were born in the United States. Among their fathers are a cook, a waiter, a construction laborer, a milkman and a janitor.

But in spite of foreign names and foreign birth, these boys are now Americans all, with an opportunity to rise to whatever heights their ability and energy can carry them.

In going around to see vocational boys, I have seen signs of good practice in vocational home economics instruction. I will have more to say about this in a later issue.

Do you know Ben Brown? Well, he is one of our successful local colored farmers who has accumulated sufficient capital (cash and property) which enables him to carry on, even in this day of depression, with a fair degree of east. Ben attributes his success to four things: His visits to the Annual Negro Farmers Conference at Tuskegee, advice given by Booker T. Washington on buying land and clearing mortgages, definite and well made plans, and the intelligent use of a lot of hard, honest labor. He tells the story of how he gathered valuable information at Tuskegee and returned each year putting it into practice to the best of his ability. He is an ardent believer in the live-at-home idea, and has on hand practically everything that makes for comfortable living on the farm. Ben is a believer in the farmers creed. It is now time that some young farmers were blazing the way, for he is growing old and more good farmers are needed to take his place.

Farmers' Creed

I believe in a permanent agriculture; a soil that will grow richer rather than poorer from year to year.

I believe in a 100-bushel corn and in 50-bushel wheat and a bale-to-the-acre cotton, and I shall not be satisfied with anything else.

I believe that the only good weed is a dead weed and [illegible] clean farm is as important as a clean conscience.

I believe in the farm boy and the farm girl, the farmers' best crop, the futures' best hope.

I believe in the farm woman and will do all in my power to make her life easier and happier.

I believe in the country school that prepares for country life, and church that teaches its people to love deeply and live honorably.

I believe in a community spirit, a pride in home and neighbor and I will do my part to make the best in the state.

I believe in the farmers. I believe in farm life. I believe in the inspiration of the open country. I am proud to be a farmer and will try earnestly to be worthy of the name. — Selected.

Hardest Job In The World

"Trying to satisfy an automobile appetite with a wheel-barrow income."

Saw a fellow planting something in the field the other day. He said it was early corn. Every time I mention the practice to a farmer, he shamefully admits that his corn is running short, his oats were planted too late or something. Every farmer should plant some early corn. It doesn't matter whether his corn is running short or not.

BENJ. ANDERSON,
Teacher Vocational Agriculture.

CHARGE FOR HELPING FARMERS APPLY FOR LOANS IS PROHIBITED

Farmers who apply for loans this year from the $90,000,000 fund authorized by Congress for crop production loans, should refuse to pay any fees for help in the preparation of their loan applications, it was declared by U. H. Prickett, Field Inspector of the Crop Production Loan Office, stationed at Clanton and Rockford.

The law as enacted by Congress this year specifically prohibits the charging of any fee for the preparation of the application, Mr. Prickett explained, and provides for fine or imprisonment, or both, for any person found guilty of assessing such a charge. Notarial fees, however, are still necessary, as are fees charged by the county recording official for recording the lien given as security for the loan, and for searching the records for prior liens.

Prospective borrowers need not write to Washington for application blanks and detailed information about the loans, Mr. Prickett said, but may get that material direct from him.

The application blank this year requires a statement of the amount of the loan desired, the number of acres for which seed and fertilizer are to be purchased, the amount desired for feed, and the amount desired for fuel and oil for tractors. The application also requires a statement of the amount of the loan which is to be used for making repairs or for the purchase of other supplies. The sum total of these several items must not exceed the maximum rates per acre specified in the regulations.

A legal description of the land on which the crops are to be planted is also required, together with a statement of the acreage of crops grown by the applicant in 1932, and the yields obtained. The applicant is required to file a statement of seed and feed on hand at the time of applying for a loan.

To obtain the loan, the application blank stipulates, the applicant must agree to use the money loaned only for the purchase of supplies necessary for crop production in 1933 on the land described. Prospective borrowers must also state that they have neither the means nor the credit with which to secure these production supplies, and that unless the loan is granted, they will be unable to farm in 1933.

Significant differences between the 1933 and 1932 regulations governing crop production loans are that this year the maximum permitted to any one borrower is $300, and that to qualify for a loan, borrowers must agree to reduce their acreage of cash crops 30 per cent below their 1932 acreage, provided their farming operations are above a specified minimum. As in 1932, a first lien on the 1933 crop is required. Loans are to be repaid on or before October 31, 1933. The regulations make it unlawful for any person to dispose of or assist in disposing of any crops given as security for any crop loan, except for the account of the Secretary of Agriculture and provide for fine and imprisonment for violation of such requirement. The regulations require each borrower to agree to plant a garden for home use and to plant sufficient acreage to provide necessary livestock feed.

Editor, the News:

Please give a few lines from this place. Health is good at present and our Sunday school is improving every Sunday, although we get rained out once in a while, but when we are not it is good. I hope that we will soon have better and more settled weather. Maybe then we can get more of our older folks and young men to come. We are going to meet next Sunday, March 26, at ten o'clock a.m. for Sunday school and at 1:30 p.m. for a singing and also to organize a singing society at this place. We especially invite the adjoining communities to come and help us and all singers will please take this as a personal invitation. We want you to come and help us. We will leave it this way: Everyone who reads this take it as a personal invitation and come. We will be looking for you. Hoping to have a large crowd and a good singing Sunday, March 26, and many thanks to the good old paper.

It Takes More Than Salts, Calomel, Mineral Waters, Oils, or Laxative Pills to Arouse a Sluggish Liver

They Give Only Temporary Relief From Constipation and Biliousness, Because They Have No Effect Whatever on the Liver or Its Production of Bile

Bile is nature's own laxative and your stomach and bowels require at least one quart of fresh bile every day to keep them clean, pure, free from fermentation, putrefaction, gas and disease germs.

When your liver becomes torpid or sluggish the bile stagnates and stops flowing freely. The contents of your bowels become the breeding place for germs and poisons; your food does not digest—it just ferments and decays in the bowels. The blood absorbs these poisons and you suffer from constipation, gas, sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness and sour stomach.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills will remove the cause of this condition and purify your entire system in nature's way. They are not like any other medicine you have ever taken. They are so gentle, thorough and natural in their action that there is nothing about them to remind you that you have ever taken a medicine, and most remarkable of all you gradually reduce the dose until you no longer require a laxative at all.

Five years ago it was generally believed that calomel and laxative drugs stimulated the liver, but modern science has proved that calomel, salts, mineral waters, oils and other laxatives have no effect whatever on the liver.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills act directly on the liver because they contain two amazing substances which highest medical authorities agree are the only effective stimulants to the bile-producng activit of the liver known to modern science. These substances stimulate and invigorate the liver to cleanse and purify itself through increasing its production of bile. This fresh bile immediately starts to work neutralizing acids and poisons, stopping fermentation and decay, cleansing and purifying the bowels and sweeping out accumulated poisons.

Unless you have tried Sargon Soft Mass Pills you can have no idea of the effects produced by t natural cleansing of your liver and bowels. It makes you feel ye younger, stronger, healthier and happier. It brings back life and color to faded eyes and cheeks, stores the appetite and sound gestion—gives you a new outlook on life itself.

Insist on genuine Sargon Soft Mass Pills. Don't be misled. There are only two known substa which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them.

WHEW! WHAT A NARROW ESCAPE! AND THE TIRE WAS ALMOST BRAND-NEW!

Now...you'll be 3 times safer from blow-outs

See how this utterly new way of making tires prevents blow-outs by overcoming the cause of blow-outs before they start

WHEN the speedometer reads 40, 50, and 60 . . . mile after mile . . . the heat inside the tire becomes terrific. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A blister starts . . . And grows . . . Until BANG! A blow-out! In a flash, a terrible drag starts pulling your car off the highway!

3 times safer at high speeds!

To protect you from blow-outs, every new Goodrich Silvertown Tire has the amazing new Life-Saver Golden Ply. This remarkable invention resists heat—prevents separation of rubber and fabric. Thus blisters don't form. The real cause of blow-outs is eliminated before they even start.

At gruelling speeds on the world's fastest track, the New Goodrich Safety Silvertown, with the Life-Saver Golden Ply, lasted three times as long as first quality tires that did not have this feature. These SILVERTOWNS never blew. They were run till the tread was gone—but the Life-Saver Golden Ply refused to give!

Safest Anti-Skid Tread

Furthermore, scientific tests with leading makes of tires prove that Goodrich Safety Silvertowns have the most skid-resisting tread.

Get this Silvertown Tire on your car. Let us put real protection between your family and the highway. Silvertowns cost no more than other standard tires.

HEAT inside the tire CAUSES THIS BANG!

Boll Weevil May Do Less Damage

Auburn, Ala.—Boll weevils may not be as numerous in Alabama during the coming crop season as they were last year or in recent past years, according to Prof. J. M. Robinson, head of the department of zoology and entomology of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"Two factors have combined to lessen the possibility of serious weevil damage," he said. "The first was the fact that we had an early frost in November which destroyed the food supply of the weevil; and the second was the cold temperatures reached in early February.

"These are important factors but another consideration is the weather at the time weevils emerge in June and July, and until then we cannot be certain," he added.

NEWS FROM THE STARS

Investigations by Dr. Harlow Shapley, noted Harvard astronomer, following the flare-up of a new star in May, 1925, led him to believe that the phenomenon was caused by the collision of two stars, an extremely rare occurrence.

But the collision which caused the appearance of the new star to earth dwellers in 1925 really happened in the year 1390, according to Dr. Shapley, whose measurement of the distance of the star from the earth indicates that it is so far away that it would take a ray of light 535 years to come to us, although its speed is about 186,000 miles a second.

Such things give food for reflection, although the figures involved can not be even faintly comprehended by the human mind. But it is interesting to contemplate that if it were possible for a being on that particular star to look through a telescope powerful enough to see the details of what is going on on earth, he would not see what is taking place today, but would witness the happenings of 535 year ago—or about 100 years before the discovery of America.

By a similar calculation, if a radio program were broadcast tonight from the star called Nova Pictoris, with sufficient power to reach the earth, our radio sets might pick it up in the year 2468, but not sooner.

But Nova Pictoris is a relatively near neighbor, as celestial distances go. Our present telescopes bring into view objects from which it would take a ray of light millions of years to reach the earth. And what is beyond? It almost makes one's head swim to think about it. Perhaps that is why the average person seldom thinks about such things.

NATIONAL UNITY

Never in our history, with the possible exception of the period of the World War, has the American people given any President such assurances of whole-hearted cooperation as has been given to President Roosevelt in his efforts to relieve the present economic distress.

The loyal manner in which all elements of our people have rallied to the call of the President in the present emergency is most heartening and inspiring. It affords an example of national unity without a parallel in the annals of any people.

Citizens of all parties and of all classes are displaying a most patriotic spirit in supporting our chief executive in his program for natonal rehabilitation. All seem to realize the stern necessity for courageous and determined action to end the period of fear and panic which has paralyzed business, industry and agriculture for many months.

Already the intelligent and energetic efforts of the new President and his advisers have produced excellent results in the direction of restoring faith and confidence in our institutions. The spirit of defeatism and despair is giving way in favor of a well founded optimism.

While President Roosevelt, being only human, is not infallible, and while he and his administration may make some mistakes, the vigorous manner with which he is attacking our national problems is serving to inspire confidence in the wisdom of his program.

Therefore, let us all, whatever our political affiliations may be, support the President in his sincere and patriotic efforts for economic betterment. For in national unity lies the hope for national progress and a return of prosperity.

Polk Bros. Show New Golden Ply

Blowout Prevention Is Claimed For New Product Made By Goodrich

"Three times safer" is the claim made by The B. F. Goodrich Company for its new "Golden Ply" Safety Silvertown which was recently announced, according to Polk Brothers Motor Co., Goodrich dealers located at Clanton, Ala.

"High speeds and smaller wheels, setting up a terrific centrifugal force, together with the heat of friction caused by the rapid revolution of the tire on the road and the constant flexing of the tire carcass, bring about tire failure under today's service conditions," Mr. Polk said.

"A new kind of rubber compound, designed to resist heat and to bind more firmly the tread and tire plies, is the development which Goodrich tire engineers claim makes this new product three times safer than any ordinarily constructed tire.

"This claim is not based on theory," Mr. Polk declared. "For months before this tire was publicly announced, it was tested on the road and in the Goodrich laboratories against every conceivable service hazard.

"On the fastest track in the United States and at the hands of impartial test drivers, this new 'Golden Ply' Silvertown stood up three times as long as any other tire.

"The Goodrich Silver Fleet then put the 'Golden Ply' tire on the highway in the north and south, and again it stood up under exceptional conditions. The Goodrich 'torture chamber', said to subject tires to more gruelling hardships than any laboratory of its kind, failed to break the claim that the new tire is "three times safer'.

"The 'Golden Ply' protects the tire where protection is most needed," Mr. Polk said.

"By preventing separation of the fabric and tread, internal blisters are eliminated. Thus, the origin of blowouts attributed to this cause is removed and a dangerous motoring hazard overcome.

Spring Arrives Midst Shudders

Be-yoo-ti-ful Spring encountered many cold shoulders Tuesday morning, when she made her debut into Chilton County. Despite the fact that it was the day for the formal appearance of the goddess in all her glory, old Man Winter, with his characteristic tenaciousness, refused to surrender the scepter.

Early Tuesday morning, following the biggest local rainfall since '29, the mercury had slid to freezing point in Clanton. Strawberry growers over the county scowled, and simultaneously, breathed fervent supplications for the safety of their crops. Shreds of hope were based chiefly on the fact that a brisk breeze, Monday night, prevented frost.

For many days honeysuckles, dogwood blossoms and other Spring flowers have been prevalent over the woods of the County, and the planting of Spring crops is well underway. Thruout the entire county the sympathy of the people is with the goddess, and with public sentiment against him, it is believed that old man Winter will soon be forced to abdicate the throne.

C. E. Stapp announces that in order to continue a progressive Jersey breeding program and avoid inbreeding, the owners of the bulls in the Club have exchanged bulls. The Lawton McDowell bull was moved to O. R. Robinson's place on Clanton Route 5, and the O. R. Robinson bull was moved to Lawton McDowell's place near Cordry Old Mill. The Hunter Rascoe bull which is now owned by the Club and was kept at McCain's stables in Clanton, was moved to Ralph Mim's and J. W. Mims' place. The Ralph Mims' bull was moved to Chester Messer's, south of Verbena. The old bull formerly owned by R. M. Foshee is being kept in Clanton at McCain's barn. Some of the other bulls will possibly be moved later to avoid breeding them back to their daughters.

Mr. Stapp states that there are some fine Jersey bulls in the County, that service fees have been reduced and that every farmer who is interested in improving his cattle should breed to the best bull available. At the same time they should not breed a daughter back to her sire. Mr. Stapp feels that when the depression is lifted that there will be a better demand for good, well-bred Jerseys, and that those who continue to improve their breeding will be able to realize on their cattle.

Mrs. J. H. Barrett of Verbena was in Clanton shopping last Monday.

Mr. W. Y. Keel of Enterprise community was in Clanton Saturday.

Miss Jane Roberts In College Recital

Montgomery, Ala., March 20, 1933.—(Special to News)—Miss Jane Roberts of Clanton, a major in public school music, took a prominent part in a recent Womans College recital when she played "Nocturne in B. Major," also a "Polonaise, in C. Minor, both numbers Chopin.

Miss Roberts displayed a fine degree of interpretative versatility in her playing of these widely varied compositions of Chopin. The Nocturne was given with a degree of emotion, especially characteristic of Chopin and with a variety of appeal, notable in the more pensive readings.

The second number was given so as to display the stately Polish form; but with a bold spirited attack and a well developed sense of structure and expression. Although by no means so simple a form as the Nocturne, it was by far, more difficult of rendition and made demands that were adequately met by Miss Roberts.

Not only did Miss Roberts show marked variation between the type of playing demanded by compositions of wide variance in form, but within each number, she showed definite ability to interpret the Slavonic style of music in a highly promising manner.

Miss Roberts is the daughter of Mrs. Barney Roberts of Clanton.

NEW FISH LAW PROHIBITS SALE OF GAME FISH

Other Specifications Set Out In New Law In Effect March The 18th

The Carmichael Act, which became law March 18, makes unlawful the sale of any game fish taken from public waters and grants extensive power to the Alabama Department of Game and Fisheries to protect the fishing resources of the State.

The new law prohibits the sale or offer for sale, either within or without the State, of any game fish named in the act and caught in public streams. It provides, however, that owners of private ponds and members of their families may catch and sell game fish raised in such ponds.

Meeting a long-recognized need, the Act further provides a non-resident trip fishing license for a fee of $2 and a non-resident trip hunting license for a fee of $5, each good for seven consecutive days from the date of issuance. The annual non-resident fishing license remains at $5 and the annual non-resident hunting license at $25.

Title and ownership of all fish in the public waters are vested in the State. A public body of water is defined as any body of water that touches the land of more than one person, firm or corporation or that is impounded by a dam, lock or other device used for impounding waters. Any body of water wholly on the premises of any one person, firm or corporation is defined as a private body of water. A person may enter posted lands to fish only with the consent of the landowner.

Game Fish Specified

Game fish are classified as large and small mouthed bass, commonly called trout or green trout; bream, including the bluegill, copper-nosed and red belly; crappie and white perch; calico bass; rock bass or goggle eye; wall-eyed pike; jack salmon or pickerel and the brook trout.

Non-game or commercial fish are designated as drum, buffalo, channel catfish and all members of the catfish family; all members of the sucker family, and all other species not referred to as game fish.

The Act also provides a maximum daily catch of fish and places a size limit on game fish. The maximum daily

OFFERS FREE USE OF BOATS AT GRAVEL BEACH CAMP

Due to prevailing business conditions and to the fact that many persons wanting to fish and are not financially able to rent boats, Mr. T. L. McKee, owner of Gravel Beach Fishing Camp, offers the use of his boats free to these people.

Of course those who are able to pay, will be expected to rent the boats, Mr. McKee stated. This free offer is only for those not able to pay the regular prices of the boats.

Mileage Tax Also For Empty Truck

Under provisions of the Contract-Common Carrier Motor Vehicle Act of 1932, mileage tax must be paid on empty movements of vehicles as well as loaded movements, if and when they are engaged in transportation for hire on the highways of Alabama.

In an opinion addressed to Hugh White, president of the Alabama Public Service Commission, the office of Atty. Gen. Knight has made this ruling in response to an inquiry from Mr. White who said the question has been raised by some of those holding permits under the act, whether the tax is required on movements of empty as well as loaded vehicles.

The additional ruling has also been made in an opinion forwarded to County Superintendent of Education E. T. Bolding, of Russellville, that interest-bearing warrants issued by counties and cities are exempt from State ad valorem tax. Banks and individuals should list such warrants as assets subject to taxation, it is stated, but should mark them as subject to the exemption.

This opinion withdraws one in conflict with it, which was rendered on February 18, this year.

Mrs. Ben Tyus returned Saturday after a visit in Birmingham with relatives and friends and was accompanied home by her daughter, Miss Margaret Tyus, Mrs. J. H. Gallagher and Mr. Fred Lawson.

True to their policy, they are offering to take in corn for groceries at these stores this week. In their ad in this issue they are asking for five thousand bushels. Commercial Cork May Bring Revenue to State

Commercial cork production may be a source of future revenue for Alabama foresters.

Investigations made by the State Commission of Forestry show that the cork oak, the principal source of cork, will thrive in various parts of the State.

Cork production in commercial quantities in Alabama is still several years away, however, since the first bark taken from the cork oak usually yields an inferior grade of cork.

CAMPAIGN TO REPEAL PROHI LAW STARTED

Governor's Veto Disregarded By House And Senate Last Tuesday

By Atticus Mullin
The Montgomery Advertiser

Immediately following the action of the Alabama Senate and House Tuesday in overriding the Governor's veto of the Mullins bill, Senator Mullins, of Tallapoosa, and Representative Sossaman, of Mobile, gave out a joint statement saying that the campaign for repeal of the 18th amendment and the election of members of the State Convention will be begun as soon as possible and the voters of the State will be informed of the issue by many volunteer speakers.

After the Governor's veto had been overridden by enormous majorities in both the Senate and House a large number of legislators and lookers on gathered around Senator Mullins and Representative Sossaman and congratulated them for the fight they made. Senator Mullins began the fight on the 18th amendment immediately after he returned to Alabama from the World War and as soon as he entered the Legislature he pushed it to the conclusion it has now reached. Representative Sossaman ably piloted the bill through the House. The two legislators were given little chance by the "wise men" to put the convention bill through either House. But they kept at it and almost alone at first, they kept going until the fruition of their fight came Tuesday with the overriding of the Governor's veto. They deserve all the credit, according to veteran legislative observers, that should go to anyone for the passage of the measure.

Senator Mullins and Representative Sossaman in their joint statement say that headquarters for the repeal campaign will be opened in Montgomery in

APPLICATIONS FOR CROP LOANS BEING PUSHED

County Agent Asks That All Applications Be Put In Right Away

County Agent Stapp urges all farmers who expect to make application for Government crop loans to do so by the middle of next week. Mr. Stapp calls attention to the fact that it takes some time to get an application through and get the check to the applicant, and that he is making every effort to take care of all applications as fast as possible in order to get the money to the applicants at as early date as possible. Mr Stapp further states that in order for him to get to work at something else, he urges all farmers who expect to make application to come to his office by the middle of next week.

In making application for a crop production loan an applicant must agree to a reduction of cotton acreage, also to use seed and fertilizer recommended by the Department of Agriculture.

Attention is called to a new ruling relative to the person who did not farm last year. Mr. Stapp formerly stated that those who did not farm last year were not eligible for crop production loans, but his latest instructions are that he may take applications from even those who did not farm last year, but have suitable land and livestock this year to work same.

Mr. Stapp again points out that this money is for crop production only and not to be used for paying debts.

There Is Cause for Consideration NOW

A place and time for immediate consideration in this county is here and now. This is in regard to the railroads servng our county and the amount of money paid into our county treasury each year by the railroads compared to the amount paid in by the freight trucks and busses that are using our highways to ply their trade.

The total amount in taxes paid into Chilton County's treasury yearly by railroads is $42,558.36. Bear in mind that this is paid each year to our county, and that the amount paid to cities and towns is $1,428.24, which makes a total of $43,986.60 paid into our county by the railroads.

Now, let's look at the freight trucks and busses. According to the figures found by the News on this, there is only $1,050.40 paid to the county in taxes by these carriers each year.

It is perfectly obvious that if the railroads are not better supported by the shipping and traveling public, they will not be financially able to pay the present assessment, which, of course, means that the public will have to bear a larger share of the taxation for schools and other purposes.

Shippers and travelers should give this some serious consideration, and determine in their minds whether they are supporting the business that helps support our county.

o-o-o-o

Readers of the News will do well to take time and read the advertisements in the paper each week, and especially in this week's issue. The merchants who spend their money to advertise in the paper have messages they want you to read. The News urges its readers to read the advertisements each week, and mention to the merchant that they saw the ad in the News.

They Call Us Civilized!

The Travelers Insurance Company has published a booklet entitled, "They Call Us Civilized," which is an invaluable addition to the literature of safety. It shows vividly, through tables and descriptions and illustrations, the horror and the magnitude of our annual toll of automobile fatalities and injuries.

It is true that last year automobile deaths decreased as compared with 1931—but there is little cause for pride in that. Gasoline consumption and automobile registrations likewise decreased. And—here is the main thing—in 1932 deaths and non-fatal injuries actually INCREASED per accident. In other words, there were fewer accidents, due largely to the fact that there was less driving; but each accident, when it occurred, was more likely to have serious consequence than in any other year.

The most difficult phase of the entire problem is public lethargy and indifference. As the booklet points out, the world shuddered at the sinking of the Titanic, costing 1517 lives, the San Francisco earthquake, costing 500 lives, and the wreck of the Shenandoah, costing 14 lives. Yet last year, the automobile, driven by the reckless, the incompetent and the unthinking, cost 29,000 lives, and in 15 years it has cost 325,000. Automobile deaths are a greater disaster than any of those which have been blazoned in headlines throughout the world—and they cause hardly a ripple.

The streets and highways of America are as dangerous as a battlefield. They are an ever-present menace to life, property, safety. A condition has been created that will require, in its solution, the active help of every thinking citizen.

Share The Work --- Now

It is doubtful if any relief plan set in motion the last few years has received the overwhelming endorsement given the share-the-work movement—a movement entailing the employment of two or more persons part-time, instead of one full-time.

Presidents Hoover and Roosevelt have gone on record for it. So have the governors of a majority of the states. So have business men and heads of industries, large and small. Employes have adopted it voluntarily, even though it meant sacrifices for them, that a livelihood might be provided for some of those with no jobs at all.

The fact that the movement is making such excellent headway gives all the more reason for pushing it. The seriousness of the present unemployment situation can hardly be exaggerated. The magnitude of human distress, particularly in the great industrial centers, is almost unbelievable. Share-the-work must go on until it embraces all industries, all businesses. It must be continually remembered that the movement requires the cooperation of an industry employing five people as well as of one employing 5,000. The little businesses furnish the bulk of employment in this country. The success of share-the-work depends greatly upon them.

Those who object to share-the-work because it is not a permanent solution, must remember that the main thing now is to afford relief until such a time as employment resumes a normal level—and then the problem will have solved itself. Share-the-work costs nothing, requires only a little readjustment in the average business—and really does what it is supposed to do.

"ROUND TOWN"

---by Doug

Since the time of Noah, or even before that, there have been laws and laws. There have been laws that prohibited this and prohibited that, but there has never been a law that would stop fishermen from telling how many they caught, until now.

* * *

When the new law goes into effect, a fisherman will be more inclined to tell how many he "didn't" catch.

And I see that Mr. Frank Foshee has moved his Clanton Mattress Factory from the Smith Building to the building right behind the Clanton Cash Store. Grady Taylor has put up a pressing shop where the Mattress Factory was located.

Gold has quieted down in its rush into the banks in the county. However, I'm sure the banks will continue to accept it if it is brought in.

This has certainly been one time when any question about whether our banks were good or not, was immediately answered and answered in the best kind of way. Now I suppose some of these folks who might have been afraid of our banks, don't have any cause for talk. Unless they do a little boosting.

* * *

Dr. Barson filled his regular appointment in Clanton last Monday at the Exchange Hotel. Doc is a pretty good sort of a fellow.

I see that the strawberry shed that the L & N is building is going right on up. That shed is going to be a big help to the strawberry shippers in Clanton. Thorsby already has a good shed at the depot.

* * *

Speaking of strawberries, don't we all hope that we will have another crop like we did a few years ago. Just a mere $150,000 crop shipped from the county. Even that much would look mighty big now.

Well, I've been asked to satisfy some folks about whether Roosevelt is the thirty-first or thirty-second president. All the daily papers refer to him as the 32nd president. I said he was the 31st president, and here's my proof. I'll name all the presidents:

Every time Dr. Samuel Johnson comes to Clanton to spend a few days, somebody is going to get a job. I don't believe that Dr. Johnson has ever been to Clanton to look after his property unless he did some improving work. He's been here this week, as you could see Monday and Tuesday. Doc is certainly one of these fellows who believes in keeping things looking good.

Here you are again folks, a newspaper chocked full of ads from merchants and other places. Just look through the pages in this issue and see for yourself that I know what I'm talking about when I say there's bargains in this issue.

Glimpses here and there round town. Mrs. George McCain is able to be up and riding around in the sunshine. . . . Julian Evans is as busy as anyone can get him to be. . . The Dixie Cafe is doing some advertising now in a new way. . . and it ought to work. . . Court week is here. You can tell by the crowds at the court house. Some are hesitating about spitting on the floor inside the newly painted court house. Pud Walker seems to be enjoying this fine sunshine. Things get mighty quiet in Clanton after nine o'clock at night. Dief's Service Station boys are still painting things up a bit. Julia Ruth Hester is enjoying her work at the county agent's office. Ben Margolis is still busy fixing up his new store. Farmers Hardware Company might put in some show windows on their east side. It would add greatly to the looks of their store. Mrs. Mattie Williams going home at three o'clock as usual, from her work. Lawrence Gerald all rigged up for court week. Mrs. Fenn Jones on her way to her farm this morning. Claudie Pipes enjoying life. Polk Brothers showing off the new Chevrolets. Harmon Broadhead "comes to town" from West End. Joe Franklin's dray with Bill Coggins at the wheel going up the street. Dolphus Maddox in front of his new place of business. Joe Calloway welcoming customers in his drug store. Ress Driver and Mr. Poole painting the traffic lines again. Wade Ice Plant getting ready for summer. Farmers coming in town to get strawberry crates. Dr. Gragg's car looking mighty nice and clean. Mack's getting ready for the afternoon bus trade. Alex Callen looking good in white uniform, and with his usual witty remarks.

Do you remember back in the good old days when stores opened about five o'clock in the morning and many didn't close until about eight or nine o'clock at night? Do you remember when "Pa Billy" Mullins rode on his dray with West driving the mule? When most of the young people went down to meet the afternoon trains. When there were picture shows here in the afternoons. When the streets in town were not paved. When there was a pool room down near the depot. When there were more buggies and wagons in town on Saturday, than you could count. When there were no big trucks and busses on the roads. When there were no regular filling stations, just gas pumps here and there. When the theatre was in the building where Evan Parrish is located. When Pinkards store was here. When sidewalks were made of brick. When the big oak tree stood near the Baptist church in the street. When Wade's Ice Plant gave the fire alarms for the town, and you had to pull the fire wagons by hand. When "Daddy" Fox had his auction place below the Fair Store. When children were cautioned to stay away from the over-head bridge.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

While passing through one of the Apartments in Yorkminister Cathedral in England, Oliver Cromwell looked before him and saw the statue of twelve men. The forms had been cast in silver and he asked, "Who are those twelve men?" He was told that they were the twelve apostles of Christ. "If that be so, then let them go about doing good." The statues were taken down and melted and the silver put into the treasury of Cromwell, and this money was sent out to do good. We have seen costly things in the house of God. We would not discredit beauty and Art, but sometimes we have felt like saying with Cromwell, "If that costly thing represents our Master, then let it go about doing good." Sanctified stiffness and coldness fail to represent the warm heart of Christ.

The moon in eclipse complained to the sun, "Why dost thou not shine upon me as usual?" The sun replied, "I am shining upon you as usual and it puzzles me why you do not enjoy me as usual." Then the moon looked closely and replied, "I see, the earth has come between us." The moon could not enjoy the rays of the sun as long as the earth came between. In my church I am constantly meeting folks who are complaining, "Something is wrong, I fail to enjoy the services as once I did." Close inspection might reveal that the world has come between. When the world floats between the church member and the heart of God, there is produced a spiritual eclipse. If you want to be happy in your worship and filled with light in your experience, get the world from between you and God. There is nothing wrong with God's shining.

The City of Stockston, Calif., received its light from a power plant that was a hundred miles away. One night all the lights in Stockston went out. A phone call went into the power plant to know the trouble. The report was that there was no trouble at the plant. The current was going out without interruption. Line men were put out to locate the trouble. All night they labored up and down the line, but they could find nothing wrong. Daylight came and they found where a black cat had climbed a post and was electrocuted, and fell across two wires, creating a short circuit. Just a black cat had put a whole city in darkness. The Power Plant of the soul is up in God's heaven. May I ask if your heart is shining? If not, do not deceive yourself by claiming that there is something wrong at the Plant. The power is going out without interruption. It may be that there is a black cat somewhere on the line that has produced a short circuit, and you are in darkness. Just the "Black Cat of Sin" has short-circuited many a heart and left them in darkness—not for one night, but for weeks and months. Better take the cats of sin from the line of the soul.

I sat in my study. I became chilly and yet I knew that there was abundance of fuel in the stove. Lifting the cap I looked in and saw that there was fuel and that there was fire, but there was but little heat. I shook the grate vigorously and then broke up the lumps of coal with the poker and opened the door for circulation. Soon I had a roaring fire and a warm room. I had added no fuel but had opened up the way for oxygen and the flame did the rest. If you feel yourself chilly in a spiritual sense, there is something wrong on the inside. You need shaking, you need to stir up your soul and open a way for the power of God to set you on fire. If you will just give circulation to the spirit of God in your life, you will soon be all aglow with heavenly heat and light.

I stood in the shop by the side of the smith and watched him at his anvil. A customer brought in a long piece of rusty steel to be made into bolts and rods. The blacksmith informed his customer that he would first have to remove the rust. He did this by thrusting the steel into the furnace and heating it red then beating it with his hammer. Under the skill of that smith the rust was removed and it was done by the fire and the hammer. When a church member exposes himself to the ways of the world, he will soon be covered with rust. The rust of selfishness, avarice, carnality, covetousness and greed will soon cover his soul. I have seen many a rusty church member thrust into the fire of tribulation and beaten severely under the hammer of God that the rust might be removed. I have also seen some church members who were too rusty for even the good Lord to ever clean up, and they are left for the rust to eat them up. You had better thank God for the mercy of His fire and His hammer when he is beating the rust off of your old rusty soul. Do not fume because of the fire, do not fuss because of the hammer, but thank God that he has found sufficient value in you to merit His efforts at cleaning you up.

Brief Farm Items

Out of the many millions of eggs which are placed in the incubator or under the hen for hatching, only about 60 per cent hatch, taking the United States as a whole. Any practice which will increase hatchability is worth using.

More than half the farmer's income is now derived from the sale of livestock and livestock products such as meat animals, dairy products and others, according to the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Buttermilk, unless diluted with water, is equal in feeding value to skimmilk when fed to hogs. It also is a good substitute for skimmilk.

Dr. Roxford G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, said ". . . We know, for example, that the city industries which make farm implements, and fertilizers, and binder twine are directly dependent on the farmer's buying power. We also know that the automobile industry, the tire industry, the oil industry, and portions of other industries which supply materials to automobile makers—we know that these industries find a large part of their outlet upon the farms. The industries I have just named found their market so reduced last year that more than half of their employees (as of 1929) were laid off. Much the same story must be told for the makers of clothing, of paint, of magazines and newspapers—of everything, in a word, that farm families normally buy. All told, it is conservatively estimated that between six and seven million city workers are now unemployed directly or indirectly because of the decline in the farmer's buying power. I contend that that is a national emergency. The place for immediate action, quite obviously, is at the source of the difficulty. That calls for the restoration of farm buying power. It calls for putting an end to 30-cent wheat and 6-cent cotton . . ."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

TOM J. HENDERSON

Mountain Creek, Alabama, March 11, 1933.

Hall of Marbury Lodge No. 534.
A. F. & A. M. Marbury, Alabama.
To the W. M., Wardens and Brethern of Marbury Lodge No. 534, A. F. & A. M.

We, the committee to draft resolutons of respect to the memory of our late Bro. Tom J. Henderson, beg leave to submit the following report.

Brother Henderson lived to a ripe old age, 75 years, going beyond the allotted time, "three score and ten," departed this life March 3, 1933, and was buried on his 51st anniversary.

This brother has been called upon to lay the working tools of life, that he might appear before the Supreme Grand Master of the Universe and present his work for final inspection.

No longer is heard the sound of chisel or mallet, but only the dying echo of the footsteps he makes in joining that innumerable host, who are moving to that Temple, not made with hands, eternal, in the "Glory World." In his behalf we drop the sympathetic tear, we fondly cherish his memories; and the working tools which he has dropped from his nerveless grasp we take up, that we may carry to completion the glorious work, which the Grand Architect of the Universe had laid out on the trestle board of life.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That though we miss his genial presence, his sunny smiles, and wise counsel, we can in humble submission, bow to the will of God, who takes and gives at His pleasure.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to all the bereaved, and point them to the "Star of Hope" the resurrected Lord, who gave the beautiful promise: "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am you may be also."

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the county papers for publication; one sent to the family of the deceased Brother and one spread upon the minutes of our lodge.

Respectfully submitted,
R. L. DUFFEY, Chairm

Can Tell Ebony From Otootans

Auburn, Ala.—A test for distinguishing between Ototoan and Ebony soybeans, two black-seeded varieties commonly confused and usually considered impossible to identify until the plants have matured, has been developed by two workers of the U. S. Department of Agriculture after preliminary experiments in the last two years, according to J. C. Lower, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The time required for the test is approximately ten days.

The test provides better protection for southern soybean growers and seed dealers, the department says, because, although Otootan and Ebony soybean seeds are almost identical in appearance, they are suited for growing in entirely different regions. The Otootan is a late-maturing variety for the South; the Ebony is a small, early-maturing, northern variety.

The new test consists of planting the soybean seeds and then examining them carefully in the seedling stage. At that time minute but marked differences are found in the tiny plants, chiefly in the height of seedlings as well as the shape, size and markings of the cotyledons. These tests have been carried on under varied conditions of temperature, light and soil and the distinguishing characters have been sufficiently consistent under these conditions to make the identification. The differences which distinguish the two varieties were discovered by Guy C. Fuller of the Division of Forage Crops and Diseases and W. A. Davidson of the Division of Seed Investigations.

Up to now seed dealers have been unable to positively identify the two varieties except during the growing season in the field, and the sameness of the seed has resulted in much confusion among southern growers. W the new test, any dealer may have his seed identified for these two particular varieties and thereby assure his customers that they are getting either Otootan seed or Ebony seed.

What Negroes Are Doing

County Training School News

The N. F. A. met last week for the first time since the close of school. The club was reorganized, new officers being elected. They are as follows: Booker T. Anderson, President; Earl Brown, secretary; Clinton Calloway, treasurer; and Charles Calloway, reporter. The club was reorganized for the summer due to the fact that some of the officers lived in town and could not attend regularly. The new president is having a call meeting Thursday.

Terracing

After a careful checkup on land terraced during the drive put on for the last three months, it was found that a total of 110 acres of land was terraced for the following persons: Archie Hall, George Williams, Robert Williams, Moses Brown, Felton Pierson, Ralph Oden, Ben Love, Ben Looney, A. T. Holifield, Bud Barbour, Marion Smith, W. L. Allen, and L. A. Draper. I shall make frequent visias to see that these terraces are well kept.

Do you know A. T. Holifield? Well, when it comes to yields in abundance, he leads the community. Whta do you think of these figures: 16 bales of cotton, 150 bushels of corn, 125 bushels of sweet potatoes, 50 gallons of cane syrup, 80 gallons of sorgrum syrup, 30 bushels of peas, 90 bales of hay, 1200 pounds of meat, and six gallons of milk each day? He had one of the best fall and winter gardens in the community. It seems that our biggest problem is that of management. Let us steady ourselves and see if we can't do a better job of this thing called "Farm Management."

Home Economics Girls At Work

The painting of kitchens, building of pantries, remodeling of old furniture, planting of flowers, and many other things which help to beautify the home show that the Home Economics girls are actually putting into practice the good things learned in the Home Economics Department. These girls also have a wonderful opportunity to show their ability to take common foods and make them wholesome and appetizing. The fact that the depression has limited our foods makes it important that someone come on the scene and alleviate some of this high pressure.

Culture and Agriculture

It has long been a favorite theory of mine that agriculture could be made one of the most cultural in the whole range of studies, and an agriculture the center of a very high type of culture.

For, has not agriculture intimate relations with chemistry and physics, with botany and zoology, with transportation and commerce, with banking and the development of society, and with politics? Has it not indeed its aesthetic aspects, and its possible relations with the fine arts? And might it not be possible to so educate the farmer that he should be conscious of these relationships, that his daily task should relate itself in his mind to the great world of the physical and vital forces on one hand, and to the evolution of society and the trend of history, and the making of a better world for children to be born into and men and women to live in, on the other hand? —Selected.

News from Thorsby

Miss EDITH JOHNSON, Correspondent

Mr. J. Bice, an early settler of Thorsby, died at the home of his son, Grover Bice, Thursday afternoon, March 23, at the age of eighty-three. Mr. Bice was postmaster here for twelve years, mayor for some time and while mayor here, had the park built and water works for the town installed. He belonged to the Masonic lodge for forty-odd years, having filled all offices, even worshipful master; was county treasurer of Chilton county for a while; a member of New Salem Baptist church where he had been an active member for years, and helped build the church. Mr. Bice was very active in church and Sunday school work.

Mr. Bice first married Sallye Bussel, who died leaving five children. Three of the children are still living. They are Clarence of Pomona, Fla. Stoughton of Montgomery and Grover of Thorsby. His second wife was Ema Ogletree. There were seven children born to them, Chester, Adam, Ellen and Werness, all of Missouri, J. Bice, Jr., of Kentucky and Lona Bell of Tennessee. Only Stoughton, Ellen and Grover were able to attend the funeral.

Mr. Bice has lived for the past several years with Grover and has been in ill health for quite a while. He was buried with Masonic honors Saturday morning at New Salem church, Rev. J. W. Jones having charge of the services and Rev. J. E. Each assisting. Spigener of Clanton was in charge of interment.

So it will be very much appreciated if the people will help in this attempt to raise money. Tickets are being sold by the members all the rest of the week. An exceptionally good plate is being served and there will be music furnished by the Band while you eat. Serving will begin at 4:30 and wll cost twenty-fve cents per plate.

Mr. Editor, if you will allow me space in your valuable paper I'll say enough to let our neighbors know that we are still here.

It is spring at last with the merry chattering of the birds, humming of the bees, and the gentle Gee and Haw of the farmer who feeds us all.

It is wonderful to watch th eprocess of Spring and Nature. God surely must have a beautiful vision to make Spring so beautiful.

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are progressing nicely. We have several new members and we want to take this opportunity to invite all visitors to come back and join in with us. We need your help.

Our prayer meeting is dragging. Folks, we must do better. Let's all go next Sunday night with a determination that we can, and with God's help we are going to make our prayer meeting better.

On account of sickness and so much bad weather, we have missed several meetings of W. M. U. but we have organized and have more members and really mean business now. We want to invite all the ladies to come and help us. Everyone is acquainted with W. M. U. work and know you really get a great lesson from each meeting.

Almost all the land in our community is broken and some have planted corn.

On account of the weather most of the gardens are late, but about all of them are planted.

Little chickens seem to be plentiful in most every home.

Mr. Thomas, who meets with us each Wednesday night, is a great help to us all, giving hints toward farming and also chicken raising. We welcome him in our community at any time.

Our school building is pretty and we hope to complete it in the near future.

We all regret so much the illness of Bro. T. J. Deason. We feel interested in him, he has done so much for us all. Our wish is for a speedy recovery for him.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Trammel and their sister, Lucinda Sansom, are spending a few days with relatives in Selma.

Mrs. G. W. Sansom has visited several neighboring communities the past week and reports having had a great rest.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gandy spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Headley.

Mrs. G. H. Gandy's mother and sisters, who have been away for the benefit of their mother's health, are expected to return home soon. We have missed them and a warm welcome awaits them.

Beginning today and continuing thru Saturday the Alabama Educational Association meets in Montgomery. The purpose of this organization is to promote interest among the teachers in their school work. Here teachers from all over the entire state meet and exchange ideas and learned men and women in the educational fields lecture and give suggestions for teaching which are worthwhile and valuable to both the students and the teacher. No teacher who has any interest whatsoever in his or her school will want to miss this meeting. It is one of the steps in modern education. We, the students, hope that our teachers will display that amount of school and student interest that we give them credit for and attend the A. E. A.

Well, folks, tomorrow night is the night when "Miss Adventure" will make her appearance at the high school auditorium and she has in store for you an hour or so of comedy, mystery and romance. Under the capable coaching of Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin the cast will provide you with entertainment and acting that you will never forget. The cast runs from Jo Carter, the daring tomboy, played by Hilda Hart, to Rebecca, the romantic, indeed, and ignorant country gal, acted by Mabel Harris. Then from Albert Brown, John Ezell, the wealthy handsome and bachelor farmer, to Cyrus, the country boob, played by Joe Moore, who is in love with Rebecca and Samson the janitor at the girls boarding school, Jesse Frank Foshee, and the one who solves the mystery of the kidnaping. So bring your dimes and quarters and prepare to have a real good time tomorrow night at 8:00.

Things surely have livened up here at the school lately. At first I thought it was because the beer bill had passed the National Congress, but I later found out that there are only about seven or eight more weeks till school's out, and everyone is trying to read those six essays, six poems, three or four novels and so on that should have, I believe, been read long ago. Oh well, I had better quit before I tread on someone's pet corn, maybe stumble on my own.

This is a time of motion and action backed by clean and clear thinking. A rest now would mean failure. With final examinations casting their shadow before us we must not fear them, but greet them with a smile. A great writer said that a degree of confidence in himself helped him greatly to overcome obstacles, but remember there is such a thing as too much confidence.

A smile doesn't cost a cent, but its value and effect cannot be measured in money.

Is the money we pay for taxes in this county wasted?

How much of our taxes help in educating the school children of this county?

What part goes to maintain the county government?

The speaker at chapel period Monday was the Rev. R. L. Huffman. Mr. Huffman claims to have trisected a given angle, a geometrical problem which has stumped mathematicians for thousands of years. He gave us a brief talk on his solution of the problem. Tuesday he discussed his trisection at the Geometry class which was very interesting not only to Geometry students, but those people who appreciate the efforts of men as well.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF WE HAD A BLOW-OUT HERE?
THOUSANDS ARE MAIMED BY BLOW-OUTS EVERY YEAR!

PUT BLOW-OUT PROTECTION on your car!

NO EXTRA COST

WHEN the speedometer reads 40, 50, and 60 — mile after mile—terrific heat is generated inside the tire. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A blister starts . . . and grows bigger and bigger— until BANG! A blow-out! A terrible drag sets in—you can't steer. And then CRASH!

New Invention Prevents Blow-outs

To protect you from blow-outs, every new Goodrich Safety Silvertown has the amazing new Life-Saver Golden Ply. This new invention resists heat. Rubber and fabric don't separate. Thus blisters don't form, and blow-outs are prevented before they start.

At gruelling speeds on the world's fastest track, the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown, with the Life-Saver Golden Ply, lasted three times as long as first quality tires that did not have this feature. These SILVERTOWNS never blew. They were run till the tread was gone—but the Life-Saver Golden Ply refused to give.

Safest Anti-Skid Tread

Moreover, road tests with leading makes of tires show that Goodrich Safety Silvertowns have the most skid-resisting tread. This tread gives your car extra road-grip . . . reduces danger of skidding to a minimum.

With all these extra values, Goodrich Safety Silvertowns cost no more than other standard tires. Why not put them on your car? Come in today!

LOCAL INSPECTOR EXPLAINS BASIS OF 1933 CROP LOANS

Three hundred dollars is the most that any farmer may borrow for crop production loans in 1933, U. H. Prickett, Field Inspector for the Crop Production Loan Office in this community, says in announcing details on the proposed loans. Applicants who are in arrears on as many as two previous loans made by the Secretary of Agriculture may not borrow more than $100.00.

Loans for crop production in counties where fertilizer is not commonly used will be based on the approximate cost of the supplies needed, but can not exceed $3 an acre for general field crops and $12 an acre for truck crops, including potatoes and sweet potatoes. Loans for buying fertilizer will be made only in counties where a representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture certifies that fertilizer is necessary. In these counties loans for supplies, including fertilizers shall not be more than $6 an acre for general field crops, $10 an acre for tobacco, and $20 an acre for truck crops, including potatoes and sweet potatoes. Not more than $1 an acre of these amounts is to be used for repairs and miscellaneous expenses other than seed, fertilizer, feed for workstock and fuel and oil for tractors.

Additional sums (within the limit for each farmer) may be borrowed for fighting insect pests and plant diseases. These are to be not more than $2 an acre for spraying and dusting materials to protect cotton and tobacco, $4 an acre for spraying and dusting truck crops, and $25 an acre for fertilizer and spraying and dusting materials for bearing fruit trees and vineyards.

In irrigated sections, funds may be borrowed up to $3 an acre to pay for water charges such as operation and maintenance, payment of electric power for pumping, or for fuel and oil for pumping. For sugar beets growers may borrow not more than $12 an acre for production expenses including the employment of hand labor for thinning. For other crops the limit is $25 an acre for hops and $12 an acre for rice, except that for rice lands farmed by tenants in which the owner furnishes irrigation water, the limit shall be $7 an acre.

Loans will be made for summer fallowing up to $2.50 an acre for an acreage not in excess of that planted in 1933, provided a first lien is given on all crops growing, or to be planted, grown and harvested in 1933 sufficient to cover the advance. Loans may be granted for rates lower than these limits. Applicants must state for what purpose they intend to use the funds.

Farmers intending to apply for loans need not write to Washington or regional offices, but may secure the application forms from him, Mr. Prickett says. Loans will be made only to farmers who can not secure credit elsewhere, and who can not farm unless they can secure the loan.

To have a loan application approved this year, a farmer must agree to reduce his acreage 30 per cent under that grown in 1932. The 30 per cent withheld from cultivation may be sown to soil-building crops. A first lien on the 1933 crop is required. Loans are due October 31, 1933.

The regulations make it unlawful for any person to dispose of or assist in disposing of any crops given as security for any crop loan, except for the account of the Secretary of Agriculture and provide for fine and imprisonment for violation of such regulation. The regulations require that each borrower agree to plant a garden for his home use and to plant sufficient acreage to provide necessary livestock feed.

It Takes More Than Salts, Calomel, Mineral Waters, Oils, or Laxative Pills to Arouse a Sluggish Liver

They Give Only Temporary Relief From Constipation and Biliousness, Because They Have No Effect Whatever on the Liver or Its Production of Bile

Bile is nature's own laxative and your stomach and bowels require at least one quart of fresh bile every day to keep them clean, pure, free from fermentation, putrefaction, gas and disease germs.

When your liver becomes torpid or sluggish the bile stagnates and stops flowing freely. The contents of your bowels become the breeding place for germs and poisons; your food does not digest—it just ferments and decays in the bowels. The blood absorbs these poisons and you suffer from constipation, gas, sick headaches, biliousness, nervousness and sour stomach.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills will remove the cause of this condition and purify your entire system in nature's way. They are not like any other medicine you have ever taken. They are so gentle, thorough and natural in their action that there is nothing about them to remind you that you have ever taken a medicine, and most remarkable of all you gradually reduce the dose until you no longer require a laxative at all.

Five years ago it was generally believed that calomel and laxative drugs stimulated the liver, but modern science has proved that calomel, salts, mineral waters, oils and other laxatives have no effect whatever on the liver.

Sargon Soft Mass Pills act directly on the liver because they contain two amazing substances which highest medical authorities agree are the only effective stimulants to the bile-producng activity of the liver known to modern science. These substances stimulate and invigorate the liver to cleanse and purify itself through increasing its production of bile. This fresh bile immediately starts to work neutralizing acids and poisons, stopping fermentation and decay, cleansing and purifying the bowels and sweeping out accumulated poisons.

Unless you have tried Sargon Soft Mass Pills you can have no idea of the effects produced by this natural cleansing of your liver and bowels. It makes you feel years younger, stronger, healthier and happier. It brings back life and color to faded eyes and cheeks, restores the appetite and sound digestion—gives you a new outlook on life itself.

Insist on genuine Sargon Soft Mass Pills. Don't be misled. There are only two known substances which will actually stimulate a torpid or sluggish liver to cleanse and purify itself by increasing its production of bile. Sargon Soft Mass Pills contain both of these substances and no other advertised medicine on the American market today does contain them.

Campaign To Repeal Prohi Law Started

the near future. The location of the headquarters will be decided at a later date, most probably after the Legislature finally adjourns. The joint statement in full follows.

"We are delighted that the convention bill has become a law. Few could object to submitting a question to the people for their decision, and in the case of the 18th amendment, the people are especially anxious that they be given an opportunity to express themselves on it. Under this bill, all delegates to the convention provided for in the measure will be bound by the results of the vote in the State on the question of repeal or no repeal. In our judgment, there is no question of the outcome of this referendum; Alabama favors repeal of the 18th amendment and will therefore vote to ratify the proposed 21st amendment. We are not unmindful, however, that we have an active opposition and one that never quits fighting, and this means that there will be conducted an active campaign in behalf of the ratification of the proposed 21st amendment. Headquarters for the State of those favoring repeal will be in Montgomery, and a close touch will be kept with every nook and corner of Alabama until the votes have been counted."

SINGING AT COURT HOUSE ON LAST THURSDAY NIGHT

The singing held at the court house last Thursday night turned out fine, although at the beginning it looked as though it would not be much. There were no books, but someone went home and got the Central Society books; then the singing was fine for about an hour and a half. T. E. Wyatt presided, and the following directors took the floor: Emmett Wilson, Jesse C. Jones, Dr. J. B. Williams, Floy Devaughn, Chester Wyatt, Marion Easterling, S.V. Miller, W. G. Culp, C. H. COUNTY BOOKS AUDITED AND REPORT MADE

Report States Sum Should Be Charged Back To Probate Judge

A recent audit of the books of Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, the county treasurer of Chilton county, by G. W. Wilson, special examiner from Birmingham, who made the audit upon authorization of Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, resulted in a charge back against the Probate Judge, L. H. Reynolds, of a total sum of $1,845, according to a copy of the report.

Eighteen hundred dollars of the sum charged against Judge Reynolds was salary paid for clerk hire in the Commissioners' Court during two years — the salary of the clerk, which office was recently discontinued by the Commissioners' Court, was seventy-five dollars per month. The law, according to excerpts and opinions quoted by Mr. Wilson in his report, allows the probate judge fifteen cents per hundred words for writing the minutes of the Commissioners' Court, but does not permit additional pay to a clerk from county funds.

Other charges against Judge Reynolds were as follows: Six dollars paid for envelopes for the office of G. C. Walker, county solicitor, and thirty-nine dollars paid the Carter Electric Company for an electric fan for the probate office.

All charges were based on opinions from the office of the Attorney-General of Alabama, it was stated.

Mr. Wilson complimented Mrs. Calloway on the efficient manner in which she has kept the accounts of her office. A 1907 Act of the Legislature provided that the county treasurer was responsible for any illegal warrants paid out of county funds, but in 1915 a new Act was passed which made the President of the board of county Commissioners, or the Probate Judge, responsible for errors of this type, since all warrants must be signed by him.

A local Act (Chilton County) tended to revive the old 1907 Act and place the Chilton County organization under the provisions of that Act, it is under-

NEW LOW RATE ON RAILROAD IS ANNOUNCED

L. & N. New Two-Cent Fare Went Into Effect Last Saturday, April 1

"Throughout the system of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, reduction of passenger fares went into effect April 1st," states President Whitefoord R. Cole. "In coaches, the new rate will be 2 cents a mile. In sleeping and parlor cars, it will be 3 cents a mile, with no surcharge."

"It is a well known fact that for several years the railroads have experienced a continuous decline in passenger revenue," said Mr. Cole. "We have encountered one form of competition after another. We have realized that changing conditions call for changes in our operations. Various methods for solving the problem have been presented, but we have agreed upon the reduction of fares as the most practicable solution."

"We believe the public values the advantages of travel by rail. People like the cleanliness, safety and comfort of our trains. They appreciate the savings of time and trouble. Now we are making these benefits available at a rate which removes the economy of competitive methods of transportation from consideration."

"Beginning with April 1st, countless men who have been using their own automobiles for short trips will prefer the greater economy and ease of the train trip. For long trips, there will be no question as to the desirability of the train, from the standpoints of comfort and convenience, as well as cost.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad is authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission," said Mr. Cole, "to make this experiment in reduced fares for a period of six months. At the end of that time the justification of the reduced rates must be judged by the results, but it is our hope and expectation that the 2-cent rate will bring back lost passenger traffic to such a degree that its continuance will be justified."

14,235 WILL BE REMOVED FROM PENSION ROLL

This Number Effects Saving Of About $211,000.00 In Alabama

More than 14,000 Alabama veterans now receiving disability allowances for injuries or illness not incurred in active service with the military forces of the World War will be stricken from the lists of those receiving benefits from the Veterans Administration, it was shown Monday by T. J. Calvert, regional manager in Birmingham.

The action, taken under President Roosevelt's new schedule of veterans benefits, will result in a saving of approximately $211,000 in the amount paid to these Alabama veterans.

Disability allowance claims in the state totaled 14,867 in February and the total amonnt paid out was $223,630.65, Calvert said. Of the total number of veterans receiving benefits, 632 are classed s total and permanent cases. Under the new schedule these veterans will remain on the lists but at a figure of $20 a month.

The remainder of the class, numbering 14,235, will be stricken from the lists. The new schedules will be effective July 1.

Approximately 6,300 veterans in the state are receiving disability compensation for service connected injuries or illness, Calvert said. These will remain on the list, but some reduction may be made.

Between 800 and 1,000 Alabama veterans are receiving hospitalization, about 70 per cent of them for non-service connected disabilities. A large number of these cases will be cut off, but Calvert was unable to estimate the saving.

The new regulations allow hospitalization of all service-connected diseases, total disability for non-service connected cases and neuropsychiatric and tubercular cases.

BOY SCOUTS SHOW SPLENDID SPIRIT IN WORKING DUES

Boy Scouts of Clanton have been busy getting ready to pay their entrance fees during the past week. W. L. (Louie) Smith, leader, has been placing several of the boys at different places in town and securing jobs for them so that they may earn their entrance fees.

The News was fortunate in securing Wade Alford, one of the most promising of the Scouts, to work for several hours in order that he could secure his entrance fees. Wade did some real work at the News office and showed that he is going after his Scout work. Other boys were seen doing their bit in town last Saturday to earn their fees.

CLINIC FORMED TO OPEN HERE ON APRIL 10TH

Plan Of Doctors Will Bring Wide Medical, Surgical Service To People

Beginning April 10th, at Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton, the Chilton County Clinic will be conducted under direction of doctors V. J. Gragg, T. J. Marcus, and C. O. Lawrence. The clinic will be held each day for one hour from 8:30 to 9:30 in the mornings, except Sundays. A complete medical and surgical service will thus be provided to patients who wish to avail themselves of the advantages offered.

These three doctors, and other doctors of the county as well, will work together in the clinic, for examinations and treatments of all cases that come to their attention. When a patient comes in the doctors associated in the clinic will make the necessary examination together. If it proves to be a surgical case it will be given over to the attention of a surgeon. If a medical case, it will get the attention of a physician.

Anyone may come for examination or treatment on any day, except Sunday, from 8:30 to 9:30 in the morning. The clinical service begins on April 10th. The Central Alabama Hospital will serve as a central clearing house for all cases that come through the clinic.

The formation of the Chilton County Clinic, and the co-operation of the doctors therein will afford to the people of this section of Alabama a better medical and surgical service than they have ever had here before.

GARNER GETS 22 YEARS IN MURDER CASE

Jury Delivers Second Degree Charge After Short Deliberation

A Chilton County jury of twelve men Tuesday afternoon—after little more than an hour's deliberation, returned a verdict of second-degree murder against Ernest M. Garner, for the slaying, last July 2, of his brother-in-law, William Anderson Franklin, and set his punishment at twenty-two years in the state penitentiary.

Garner is alleged to have broken Franklin's neck during a scuffle at the Franklin home, on the Lay Dam road near Clanton, July 2, 1932, when an argument arose because Garner spanked his little four-year-old girl, whom the Franklin's had reared since she was two days old.

Evidence presented by the state charged that Garner had contemplated, and even threatened, the life of Mr. Franklin before the day of the murder. Several witnesses, including the wife of the dead man, Aubrey Gore and Mrs. Emma Gore, neighbors, and others were placed on the stand in an effort to substantiate a charge of first degree murder against Garner. Solicitor Winston Huddleston, in his final argument to the jury, declared that Garner had proven himself unworthy of a place in society, and said his record forfeited any right to mercy.

Walking over to Garner and pointing his finger in his face, Solicitor Huddleston hurled the accusation, "Garner, you

Chilton Doctors Enjoy Annual Outing Tues.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, staff surgeon of the Central Alabama Hospital, was the host Tuesday noon, to members of the Chilton County Medical association, their wives, and a score of visitors, when he gave his annual pheasant dinner and fish fry at the Gragg camp, on Mitchell Lake, several miles east of Clanton.

With Dr. F. G. DuBose, retired surgeon of Maplesville, acting as toastmaster and entertainer, the dinner was a continuous round of amusement and entertainment. Dr. DuBose is known over the state as one of the most witty members of his profession and members of the party were kept in a continuous uproar of laughter by his witty stories and repartee.

For several years Dr. Gragg has made his pheasant dinner an annual get-together party for members of the Chilton County Medical association and friends. Tuesday's celebration was the same emblem of success and co-operation among Chilton County physicians that like celebrations have been in the past.

Those present were Doctors V. J. Gragg, J. P. Hayes, C. N. Parnell, J. J. DuBose, T. J. Marcus, H. F. Franklin, R. J. Eiland; C. S. Strock, Arthur Johnson. H. F. Downs, J. P. Crumpton, J. E. Edgar, Earl Gowan, H. M. Nix, P. T. Hinkle, M. L. Parrish, and their wives; Dr. F. G. DuBose, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mell Martin, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wyatt, D. A. PLAY WILL BE GIVEN AT BILLINGSLEY HIGH SCHOOL

The News has been requested to announce that the play, "Under Contract" or "Enter Elinor" will be presented at the Billingsley High School on next Saturday night, April 8th, by the Concord Christian Endeavor.

This play is extremely interesting and worth seeing. Proceeds will go to the church and school. Everybody is urged to come.

MRS. GARLAND FOSHEE HAS RETURNED FROM MISSOURI

Friends of Mrs. Garland Foshee will be glad to learn that she has returned from Missouri where she has been for sometime for treatment, and it is stated she is on the road to recovery.

Mr. R. W. Lowe and Mr. Horace Popwell left Tuesday of last week, motoring through St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, and were accompanied on the return trip by Mr. and Mrs. Foshee. They arrived in Clanton last Saturday morning. Mr. Lowe stated they covered a distance of 2089 miles and had only one puncture, and no car trouble except that.

PREPARATIONS UNDERWAY FOR SCOUT OUTING

Local Scouts Will Be Hosts To Selma Scouts And Sea Scouts Soon

Boy Scouts of Clanton District will be host to Scouts of Selma, Ashland, and all Sea Scouts of the Council when from July 2 to 9 these groups will camp on an island already nicknamed "Treasure Island," located two and a half miles up the Coosa River from Lay Dam, in Paint Creek. This island contains 60 acres of rolling land, and even a natural swimming area has been discovered. To spend a week in this camp, with all the advantages and opportunities it will afford will be the answer to the dream of every Boy Scout for outing, adventure and romance.

Last week John J. Sigwald, local Scout executive, and who will serve as camp director, inspected the site with local district Scout chairman, Sam R. Powers. Mr. Sigwald was delighted in every way with the layout, and especially the cooperation of the Alabama Power Company in making this site possible for Scout campers.

In the past local Scouts have attended Camp Spring Villa, near Opelika. In a recent meeting of the scouters of the Central Alabama Area Council a need for a closer site was discussed. The "Treasure Island" site thus comes as the satisfactory solution of the problem. Local camping chairman, John Hollis, issued camp application cards, and young Scout Guy Alred, was first to register. Others will follow immediately. The camp can accommodate only 60 boys.

Tents will be used by all campers. Besides regular instruction in Scoutcraft, the Scouts will have boating, canoeing, and fishing. Instructions in swimming and life-saving will be a

Here's Good News For You Clanton Guys

Oakland, Cal., March 29.—It may be only spring hitting, but Minter Hayes whose batting in previous American league campaigns was nothing startling, is the Chicago White Sox leading slugger to date. Hayes' fielding has been sweet enough to offset his lack of batting power to the extent of keeping him out of the minor leagues. So far this spring, however, his work with the bat has outranked that of the mighty Al Simmons and Manager Lew Fonseca, both of whom have done some valuable clouting.

Calloway Settled In New Location

On another page in this issue of the News appears an advertisement from the Calloway Drug Co., of Clanton, inviting the public to visit them in their new home.

Sometime ago the Calloway Drug Co. moved and has been busy getting things in ship-shape for business. Now things are all set for them to give the people excellent service. The new location of this drug store is just across the street from their former location. In their new place they have prepared themselves to serve the public better. Joe Calloway, with his brother, Claude, are proud of their new store and extend a wide invitation to the people. Read their advertisement.

Reports from the newly organized Sunday school at Jackson Chapel are very pleasing. The school was organized last Sunday, April 2nd, and is promising to grow right along. The invite everyone who can to be with them each Sunday morning.

TEACHERS WARN THEY WILL VOTE AS A UNIT IN 1934

To Weigh All Candidates As To Their Stand On Schools, Education

Long impoverished and now desperate Alabama teachers, professors and superintendents Thursday removed their gloves, rolled their sleeves and with raised fists stepped into the political arena with a resounding challenge for enemies of the public schools to "come on and fight."

They served notice in unmistakable terms by action of the Assembly of Delegates, the official spokesmen for the Alabama Education Association, that the next Governor of Alabama and every member of the Legislature, if it was in their power, would be men who placed first the welfare and education of the children of the State.

By unanimous vote they adopted a resolution sponsored by the Montgomery delegation insisting that schools should be operated next year only for such length of time as teachers can be paid "a living wage commensurate with the high calling of the profession and on a parity with other public servants," for the 1933-34 school term.

They authorized all members of the Boards of Education be called to meet in Montgomery this Summer to consider "uniform policies of procedure.

Unanimously they wrote into their code of ethics that a teacher who refused to teach without pay was not a disloyal teacher, saying: "No teacher shall be considered disloyal who declines to continue to teach when all prospects of receiving recompense for services is gone."

They adopted the four-point program as already urged by the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers, pledging themselves to economy, and urging a limited income tax, a "reasonable and adequate" sales tax and legislation to compel all departments of government to bear proportionately with education prorations under the Fletcher budget act.

"Subscription schools" whereby schools are continued upon a subscription basis were condemned as being undemocratic and "certain to result in work not creditable to teachers or pu-

COUNTY WIDE CLUB EXHIBIT BEING PLANNED

4-H Club President Outlines Topics For Discussion In Clubs Here

By Clifford M. Manning
4-H Club President

Plans are being made for the boys in 4-H Clubs to exhibit, and show to the public some of the products of their projects this fall. The exhibits will be in one of the vacant buildings in Clanton and will probably be on display for about one week. Sometime during this week the annual calf show will be in Clanton. So I would advise the boys to start now in preparing for the exhibit this fall, and keep your record book up to date, as they will be placed by each individual exhibit to show what you have done during the year.

The following is a number of topics for discussion in 4-H club meetings for the month of April. These topics were suggested by the 4-H club specialist, Mr. T. A. Sims, and some were added to them by your county president. The subjects should be assigned to the members a month ahead of the time for discussion in order that they may get all available information. The information can be had on any of these subjects by writing the County Agent. Tell him the subject you have been assigned and ask him to give you what he has on that subject.

Topics for April

1. Brooding baby chicks.
2. (a) Methods of planting cotton and corn. (b) Turning winter legumes. (c) Use of soybeans and cowpeas for soil building, methods of planting, etc.
3. Use of cultivators.
4. Treatment of work animals.
5. Fence posts, how to grow them and kind.
6. Damages of woods fires, and protection of timber.
7. Growing feed for calves and pigs.
8. Pastures of peanuts, oats, water-

Dollars Come Home

Trace the course of a dollar spent for property improvement, repairs, or replacement.

Part of it goes to local merchants, who provide the needed materials. Another part goes to the workman on the job.

The workman spends his part for the necessities of life. The corner grocery, the drug store, the department store get it—and through them it goes to their employees, to the farmer and the manufacturer. Then the circle begins again—the money enters new pockets, passes through other industries, travels to other sections of the country.

The part of the dollar going to the store providing the supplies follows much the same course. It pays the store's workers. It pays bills. It goes to factories to purchase new stock. From the factory it goes to other workmen, to related industries supplying raw materials, to investors.

And, at last, the dollar comes back, through one channel or another, to the original spender.

In a short length of time that dollar has had a thousand uses. It has done the work of a thousand dollars.

That's the beauty of money which is actually circulating—it is used an infinite number of times, and it does as much good each time.

Now is the time to obtain needed repairs at the lowest cost in decades—and at the same time do your bit in fighting depression.

Jobs are cheaper than charity—and without the jobs, there won't be anything for charity.

Share-the-Work Now

A short time a go President Green of the American Federation of Labor, stated that unemployment was at its all-time peak of more than 12,000,000. As a partial solution, he urged adoption of the thirty-hour week.

Whether such a policy should be put into effect through legislation or not, may be a debatable point, but the desired result is now being obtained voluntarily by industry's increasing acceptance of the Share-the-Work plan. This plan was first advocated but a comparatively short time ago—and ithas made amazing strides through all branches of industry. It is simplicity itself—t asks employers to distribute what worg they have among two or more workers instead of one.

It represents one of the greatest efforts ever made to secure the most important need of the moment—universal purchasing power. With 12,000,000 wage-earners out of work, it is easy to understand why the products of farms and factories are being thrown into a market in which are few buyers. Only by again providing those 12,000,000 with a livelihood that will at least permit the purchase of the necesities of life and an occasional luxury, can business and agricultural stability be attained.

It should be reiterated that if Share-the-Work is to meet with the success it deserves, it must have the cooperation of small businesses. Industries with several thousand workers are impressive, but they are few and far between. The little industries with ten to a hundred employees, furnish the bulk of employment. The future of Share-the-Work is in their hands.

A Record Which Needs Bettering

The Safe Worker reports that the American safety movement declared a dividend last year in the form of a nine per cent reduction in accidental deaths—which means a saving of 9,500 lives. Four thousand less persons were killed in auto accidents than in 1931, 1,000 less in home accidents, 2,500 less in industrial accidents, and 2,000 less in other types of accidents.

This is good news and is something to be proud of. But it is only a beginning. Last year we killed 88,000 persons through accidents—and the percentage of accidents that were honestly unavoidable would be close to non-existent. Greatest progress was made in the field of automobile accident reduction, where a 13 per cent decline occurred. Much of this, however, is offset by the fact that there was a 6 per cent drop in automobile registrations and a 6.84 per cent decline in gasoline consumption. In all phases of the accident problem, the depression, with its consequent decline in industrial activities, etc., was necessarily a factor in pushing the accident totals down

We have, though, made a start toward real achievement in accident prevention. If it is to be more than that, it will require the continued efforts of every business, every worker, every housewife, every motorist, every individual. Accidents can be brought down—and to rock bottom. Let's start out for new safety records.

The Electric Industry and Recovery

It is an interesting fact that, in the depressions of the past, the United States has been led out of them by unusual expansion of some major industry. This was true, for example, in the case of the automobile industry in the depression that followed the war. Car sales zoomed—and related industries, which in the long run provided more employment than did the automobile industry itself, grew up.

The electric industry is in a more or less similar position today, even though it has expanded amazingly in the past. The well lighted home is still the exception and not the rule. Industry is, to an increasing extent, turning to electric power and away from other forms of mechanical power. Better and cheaper electric labor-saving devices are appearing on the market—and, aside from such commonplace appliances as electric percolators, toasters and vacuum cleaners, the average home has none of them. It is not inconceivable that ten years from now the domestic market for electricity will be ten times as great as at present.

As depression lifts, more and more money goes into such articles as these labor-saving devices. Every time one is sold, whether by the utility or a dealer, the market for power is broadened, and a potential demand for repairs, parts and service is created. Money is put into circulation—men go to work. In conquering depression electric industry will be in the front rank.

Mr. Steve Hughes, who lives on Jemison, Ala., Route One writes through one of our correspondents that he has two good breed hogs and maybe three, he wants to trade for some corn, potatoes, or most anything he can use.

Also on Jemison, Ala. Route One, Lance Franklin says he wants to furnish eggs to someone who has had experience with an incubator on a percentage of the hatch. This and the trade above seem mighty good to me, and ought to get results.

My old friend S. E. Bruce dropped into the News office and left me a note saying he wants to trade a good Singer sewing machine for some good lightwood posts. Mr. Bruce needs some posts to fix up his fences or something. Now if you need a sewing machine, get out and get Mr. Bruce some lightwood posts. Mr. Bruce lives on Clanton, Ala., Route. You all know Ed Bruce.

Over on Billingsley, Ala., Route Two, comes a letter to me from Mrs. S. B. Mills. She says she has a good eight-tube Atwater Kent electric radio she wants to trade for a piano. She also has a seven-tube Philco electric radio she will exchange for a sewing machine of some value. And an L. C. Smith typewriter to exchange for something. Says make her an offer for these things. Mrs. Mills says you can write her or see her about this.

Now if Ed Bruce could use a radio, he could swap his sewing machine to Mrs. Mills for her radio.

"I have a Columbus cane mill, motor power complete, will trade for a good mule," says J. A. M. Jacks, who lives on Clanton, Ala., Route Four. Mr. Jacks says this mill is a dandy and is too large for his needs. Anyway, he says he'd much rather have a mule.

* * *

W. S. Cox, who most of us know, and who lives on Route 2, Clanton, says he has a good milch cow and a good riding cultivator he wants to exchange for most anything he can use. If you need either of these, make Mr. Cox an offer.

Ezra Wilson, who lives on Route 2, Jemison, sends word to me that he has some seed sweet potatoes he wants to trade for anything he can use and that is a good trade. This is a good chance for you to get some seed potatoes.

Now, folks, there are seven good propositions from different parts of the county. I suppose it will be all right for you to write to any of these folks about these things they have to trade. Now, there's one favor I want to ask of these people I am using these trades for. If you get any replies or propositions from this column, let me know about it. One good turn deserves another, or something.

I see in the column "Ink Drops from C. C. H. S." about a Chilton county boy who is rising in the educational world. That column, which is written by the Ed's brother, gets quoted in the daily papers now and then.

I hope the pensioners who are cut off by the President's bill, will not start to griping about it, but take their medicine like good patriotic citizens.

There are a lot of us folks who were not getting a pension, and have been receiving salary cuts during Mr. Hoover's regime. Turn about is fair play, or something.

Hear a lot of talk about the postage rate being reduced. Well, it can't come too soon to suit me. Those old two-cent stamps will look good again to me.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

—o—

A song leader told this story on a good man. Said he: "I was singing in a certain locality out of which this man had moved and they told me that one day they found this man in the woods sitting on a barrel of whiskey." The truth was that the man had found the whiskey and had perched on the barrel to wait for help to dispose of it according to law. It was so much better for that man to be sitting on the barrel of whiskey than it was for the barrel of whiskey to be sitting on the man. In this time of prohibition Uncle Sam has outlawed the whiskey business and he is sitting on the barrel trying to dispose of it according to law. However, it seems that we politics have decided to lift the barrel of whiskey and put it on the body of Uncle Sam. Talk about trying and crying times, we are going to have them if the barrel of rum is once more allowed to crush out the life of our nation. I still claim that it is better to sit on a barrel of whiskey than it is to have the barrel of whiskey sitting on us.

A thoughtful man made this remark to me: "If the banks will stay closed for a few months, our churches will be crowded." It is a fact that we have grown to put our confidence in the dollar. We have spent our time and our strength in adding dollar to dollar, and now we are reminded how easily our money can be taken from us. America has piled up her millions where moths and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, and now we are in the dust because our wealth is beyond our grasp. When will we learn to lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven? I saw a sad man leaning against a brick wall and with quivering words he said: "Parson, all I have is behind that closed door."—pointing to the door of the closed bank. I thank God that my treasures are not in closed banks. My bank is never short of currency; my bank does not observe holidays and neither does it hold to certain banking hours. My bank is always open and no president or potentate can order business to cease. Blessed is the man who is rich toward God.

I sat with a company of jolly good fellows around the table of the Kiwanis Club. A distinguished man from Washington was introduced and the president of the club gave him all the time that he needed to tell of the work that he had been commissioned to do. He was on the ground to crush out a certain kind of fever that was prevelent and he announced that he had twenty thousand dollars of the government's money to back him up. He was received with approval and with applauds. No one opposed him in his program. All were rejoiced that he had come to bring a needed relief. I often wonder why men will approve an effort to crush out the diseases of the body and then turn right around and oppose the efforts being made to crush out the diseases of the soul. We pass resolutions against Typhoid and T. B. and turn right around and endorse Sunday picture shows. Sunday ball games, the repeal of the 18th Amendment and the return of rum. May the good Lord have mercy on our clouded ideals.

A rope walker was advertised to appear at a certain hour in a down town section of a large city. He was scheduled to walk a rope across the street between two sky-scrapers. Thousands of people had assembled to see him pull the stunt. Just before he was to make the trip across the street he informed his managers that he had a hunch that he must not try to walk the rope at that time. He was urged to keep faith with the crowds below, and finally consented to walk the rope. All went well until he was about half way between the two buildings, when he lost his balance and fell to his death. "Keep your Balance" is one of the best slogans in life. Keep your balance in your business, in society, in politics, in religion. If you fail to keep your balance you will fall to your own ruin and you will pull others down with you. Keep your balance in the coming election that will determine the fate of our prohibition laws.

One day I heard the cries of a bird that was in distress. I went to where it was sitting in a plum bush and discovered that it had lost its young. There was the nest in which the eggs were laid and the birds were hatched but it was empty now. The trouble went back to the time of nest building. The parent birds were not careful in the construction of the nest and the bottom had fallen out with the little birds and they were in the rubbish below, writhing and dying from the sting of ants. Little birds jump out, or fall out, of poorly constructed nests. Nests that are poorly built and located will expose the little birds to snakes, rats and cats. If we vote to do away with our prohibition laws we are going to make defective our homes. Our children will jump out of our home nests to be devoured by the sting of rum. I am not a phrophet and I am not the son of a phrophet, but I can safely say that the man who votes to have whiskey released in this land of ours will some day sit and cry over an empty nest. We had better make safe the homes in whch we are to raise those dear little spirits, flesh of our flesh.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By
Edson R. Waite
Shawnee, Oklahoma

One of the most beautiful thing in life is a spirit of friendship among neighbors, for without friendship life for all of us would indeed be but an empty shell.

We have been passing through some very trying times—times that have tested the character and courage of neighbors as never before, and the cooperation and courage shown by the fortunate and the unfortunate neighbors in every community in this land has done the most to relieve suffering.

These ties of friendship, based on confidence and understanding, have woven many people closer together, and when this cloud of depression and economy has passed away and the pleasanter days come, a true Neighborly Spirit will have developed which will stay with us forever.

You should boost the home city and help to make it mighty.

Many citizens fully realize the great prospects for the development of the home city and are on the job.

Those who realize its great prospects and are asleep are equally as bad as those who fail to recognize its resources. It is the duty of those who are fully awake to see that those who are asleep do their share toward making the home city a greater city.

You should tell everybody you meet about your city.

Your city should welcome all industries and strive to keep those you now have.

Letters To The Editor

A CALL TO ARMS

—o—

Editor News:

The legislature at Montgomery battles on in its third session dominated by Governor Miller and cajoled and coerced by the greatest office holders lobby the state has ever known, has turned its face against every major move for economy and retrenchment and is advocating every conceivable tax imaginable. A number of economy bills have been introduced that would hav kept the schools open and solved the state's financial troubles without more taxes, but this unholy alliance has been able to block every move for real economy. The legislature is wasting its time in a fruitless effort to saddle an income tax on a people who have spoken in unmistakable terms of two to on that they did not want an income tax If it comes before us again we will defeat it three to one, and would do likewise with all other tax measures if we were allowed to express ourselves at the polls.

I am sorry to see that some of the members of our parent-teachers association and some of our teachers have been duped into joining hands with Governor Miller and his cohorts in their efforts to saddle an unbearable burden of taxation upon an already overburdened and tax ridden people. We have been very sympathetic towards our much abused teachers, but they ar fast losing our sympathy by joining forces with the enemies of the public at large and direct enemies of themselve They are joining hands with the forces that have not only cut the teachers salaries, but have abolished their jobs by closing the schools, and yet they have refused to let all salary cutting bills, including constitutional offices, and all retrenchment measures go through They are calling for a sales tax that is calculated to yield about $15,000,000.00 That added to the present income about $30,000,000.00 would make $45,000,000.00, an entirely unnecessary amount for the proper function of a departments of our government, and a expenditure that, if continued, would bankrupt the state and its citizens. The department of education at Montgomery is fighting every move for econom in their department and have joined the state administration for more taxes Economy must come in education as well as other departments. There is much dead timber, much overlapping of service, and many useless positions that add little or nothing to the educational advancement of our children. Here are a few figures given by G. W. Bens principal of Gamble School, Route Jasper, Ala.: In 1914 the total expenditure for education in city, county and state was $4,446,076.00, with an averag term for rural schools of 118 days. I 1924 the total educational expenditur was $14,540,233.00, with only an average term of 128 days. We have four normal schools when we do not nee more than one or two. We have te secondary agricultural schools that should be abolished. All supervisor should be dismissed. Our transportation system is a great burden to th school department. I believe it is claimed that about one-fourth of the tot outlay for rural schools is for tran portation. And yet if I do not happ to live on the proper road I am not given that service and it is up to me get to school the best way I ca Transportation should be abolished During this period the teachers have had only a small increase in salary, you can see that the huge sums we are spending for education are not all going to educate our children, but much of it is going to maintain a very costly and top heavy system. From the foregoing you can see why the educational department is joining hands with the administration for more taxes and against economy.

It seems that the legislature is going to close again without having given us but little constructive legislation, and that our only hope lies at the polls in 1934. It is the greatest disgrace that has ever come upon the state. Come on ye old true and tried cowboys of th steady old party and make ready for th great roundup. Get out your mount and dust off your saddles and be ready to march to the clarion call. We are going to separate goats from the sheep Those that have only worked for selfish interests and have not shown themselves worthy of wearing the true mantle of democracy will be cast out into the political graveyard and buried deep under an avalanche of ballots that they will never be able to hear Miller's trumpet call. And there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

IN MEMORY OF WILL VANZANT

——o——

On the evening of Feburary 20 Mr. Will Vanzant was hit by a car and seriously injured while he was walking down the highway just above Jemison. He was rushed to the Central Alabama Hospital by Martin's ambulance where he was cared for by faithful nurses and doctors until Wednesday night and the Lord saw fit to take him to his eternal home.

He leaves to mourn his departure, a wife, Mrs. Ella Vanzant, two sons, Bascom and Ollie, four daughters, Mollie, Mrs. Joe Honeycutt, Mrs. J. C. White and Mrs. Jerome Honeycutt, six grandchildren, four brothers, two sisters and a host of friends.

Mr. Will was truly a good man, a faithful father, tender and loving. We are of a firm belief that his reward is a home in Heaven where no storms ever come, where trouble never enters, where all is happiness. He will walk the golden streets where the Savior bids us come and we are praying to meet him up in Heaven when our work here on earth is done.

Mr. Will bore his sufferings bravely to the end, having fought a good fight and finished his course.

Softly his soul has traveled alone
The valley of shadows, dark and unknown.
Softly his hands are folded at rest,
While his soul, with a smile that has ever carressed.
The friends of his heart.
There's a smile on his face smiling at life,
He has found so true.

He was laid to rest at Union Grove on Thursday evening of Feburary 23rd. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Parrish with Martin in charge.
